JUDGE LUKE FREED BY THOMAS COUNTY JURY ON CHARGE OF HAVING MURDERED GROOVER

BANKERS WILL AID U. S. IN REVIVING FOREIGN TRADE

Leaders Offer Assistance to Peek as Evidence of Good Faith in Pledge To Co-operate With Administration.

A. B. A. EXECUTIVES CALL ON PRESIDENT

'Big Four' of Association Reiterate Promise To Modify Lending Policies To Loosen Credit.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 26.—(AP)—American banking leaders sought to show President Roosevelt in concrete fashion today that banker promises to co-operate were being translated into action.

In conjunction with George N. Peek, special foreign trade adviser to the president, representatives of the American Bankers' Association decided to name a committee of outstanding financial men to act continuously with Peek in developing a foreign trade policy.

A revival of this country's international trade is held by many government officials to be a major necessity to the recovery program.

At the same time the "big four" of the bankers' association called at the White House to ask for jobs on the "All-American" recovery team which Mr. Roosevelt recomended in a speech to the bankers earlier this week.

They promised the president they would make business understand they were willing to lend.

"Big Four."

The "big four" consisted of the newly-elected officers and the retiring president of the association, which adjourned its convention here yesterday with pledges to aid in sound recovery measures.

Present were President Rudolf S. Hecht, president of the Hibernia National bank, of New Orleans; First Vice President Robert V. Fleming, president of the Riggs National bank, of Washington; Second Vice President Tom K. Smith, president of the Boatsmans' National bank, of St. Louis, Mo., and retiring President Francis Marion Law.

Mr. Roosevelt, at his press conference, offered no comment on the bankers' visit. He discussed facetiously various positions which they might play on the team, but made no nominations.

Lunch With Peek.

These four were at the luncheon with Peek today. They agreed to name a committee, as recommended by Peek in a speech before the bankers, and even went beyond the original idea.

It was decided that the group should be available almost continuously, and that it should confer with Peek regularly in Washington.

Peek's theory has been that it

TOTAL FOR CHEST PASSES $200,000; DRIVE IS SPEEDED

Campaign Slightly Behind 1933 Total to Date. Workers Plan Activity Over Week-End.

The declaration of Preston S. Arkwright, president of the Georgia Power Company, that misunderstandings have been so thoroughly dispelled by now that he believes "almost everybody will contribute if you go ask him," featured the Friday afternoon daily report luncheon of Community Chest workers.

The tabulation of reports at the luncheon showed the half-way mark in the drive for a quota of $400,000 passed with contributions totaling $202,202, which is $5,480 less than the amount contributed at this stage of the campaign last year. Subscriptions for the day totaled $50,342, against $60,935 for the preceding day.

Also featuring the meeting was the brief talk of Robert F. Maddox, Chest president, who further emphasized community responsibility when he declared that emergency relief work of the federal government is actually retarding balancing of the national budget.

Maddox Welcomed Back.

Mr. Maddox was enthusiastically welcomed on his return from a quick trip to Washington to hear President Roosevelt address the American Bankers' Association, of which he is past president. His trip, he declared, emphasized the importance of communities taking over all possible burdens of human welfare work, as a national responsibility if for no other reason.

Mr. Arkwright pictured the idea that the federal government will meet all relief needs as "entirely exploded" and people generally so thoroughly appreciative of the work of the Community Chest and its various agencies "that almost everybody wants to help."

He told the hundreds of volunteer workers present at the Atlanta Athletic Club that "You couldn't be doing a better work" and urged them to push the campaign with renewed vigor over the week-end, personally soliciting as many individuals as possible before the next report luncheon on Monday.

Mr. Arkwright's address was an inspiration to his large audience who accepted with enthusiasm his challenge to solicit personally everyone in Atlanta able to make a contribution of any size to the Community Chest.

LEADING CITIZENS JOIN GREAT 'CADE FOR HISTORIC TRIP

Registrations Continue To Mount; Sanford To Lead 25-Car Caravan From Athens.

Many of Georgia's best-known citizens will be in the "Four Capitals" motorcade which leaves Atlanta next Thursday morning for Savannah, officially opening the new "Four Capitals" highway which runs from this city to Savannah, via Milledgeville and Louisville, one-time capital cities of the state.

The state highway department, through whose whole-hearted co-operation the last link of paving on the historic highway, between Madison and Eatonton, has been completed this week, will be fully represented. All three members of the highway board, Chairman W. E. Wilburn, Max L. McRae and John A. Heck, have entered, together with Henry Newton, chief engineer.

John Wilson, secretary of state, will be another state official in the 'cade, as well as M. J. Yeomans, attorney-general; M. S. Yeomans, state entomologist; Tim Wisdom, state auditor; George Hamilton, state treasurer; William B. Harrison, comptroller-general; Zack D. Cravey, commissioner of game and fish; Jud P. Wilhoit, chairman of the public service commission, and others.

Other Prominent Citizens.

Also there will be many prominent citizens of Atlanta who have already signed entry blanks, while at every city along the route local delegations will swing into line, constantly adding to the number of cars which will move across the state toward Savannah.

Although Athens is not actually on the highway, at least 25 cars, headed by President S. V. Sanford, of the University of Georgia, and Mrs. Sanford, will join the motorcade at Madison. It also is expected that a delegation from Macon will be waiting to swing into line when the procession leaves Milledgeville.

Savannah's welcoming caravan will meet the 'caders at Statesboro, to escort them from there on into the port city, famous all over the world for its hospitality.

That reputation will not suffer by the program arranged for the hundreds in the motorcade. A program that includes a Thursday night dance at Hotel DeSoto, official headquarters, a shore dinner, oyster roast and general jollification at Savannah Beach on Friday, an elaborate entertainment Friday night in the DeSoto's Dancing

BONDING SYSTEM CHANGES SOUGHT

$5,000 Trust Fund Proposed; Sale of Sewage Sludge To Be Asked.

Recommendations that a new ordinance regulating the bonding system be passed and that the city take advantage of an important source of revenue through the sale of sewage sludge were contained in audits of the police and construction departments which were being considered Friday by Mayor James L. Key.

An ordinance requiring bondsmen to establish a $5,000 trust fund with the city will be sought at the November 5 session of council and the measure will have the approval of the mayor, he said.

The innovation is sought as the result of an auditor's report which declared the three professional bonding companies in Atlanta owe the city $10,315 on forfeited bonds and that they did not pay the city anything from August, 1932, to September 27, 1934.

Representatives of the bond companies Friday protested they do not owe the city anywhere near $10,315 and the mayor told them to make a formal statement on the matter to be considered with the auditor's report. The companies were Garner and Bentley, Mobley and Lunsford, and Fred Stokes.

Deposit Fund Sought.

The proposed ordinance will be considered by the ordinance and the police committees of council next Thursday and members said both groups would move to pass a measure requiring all bondsmen to deposit $5,000 with the city comptroller as a trust fund to protect the city from any loss. The ordinance, if passed, will force bondsmen to keep that fund above $4,000 at all times.

The audit said the bond companies also owed Fulton county more than $22,000, but county officials denied this, as did the bondsmen.

Several councilmen said Friday they will seek to collect the sum from the bondsmen.

A possible important source of income for the city from the sale of sludge was pointed out in an auditor's report on the city construction department.

Milwaukee Received $289,252.

Where Atlanta last year realized only $706 from this product, Milwaukee, Wis., a city slightly larger than Atlanta, was paid $289,252 for 31,515

Rooseveltian 'Thumbs Down' Is Given Upton Sinclair

Farley's Letter of "Indorsement" Branded "Mistake"—Creel Also Withdraws Support. McAdoo Not To Aid in Campaign.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 26.—(AP)—The Roosevelt administration definitely turned away from Upton Sinclair today, dropping unmistakable indications that it does not care to have the former socialist elected as democratic governor of California.

A letter from democratic headquarters, urging the election of Sinclair and carrying the signature of Postmaster-General Farley in the green ink that he always uses, was termed a "mistake." The signature was affixed with a rubber stamp. Its dispatch was said to have been an error on the part of a minor employe.

A growing belief here that the administration would withhold support from Sinclair further was solidified today by publication of a letter to the democratic gubernatorial candidate from George Creel, withdrawing his backing. Creel was an unsuccessful candidate for the nomination.

Creel Has Copy.

It was established that Creel carried in his pocket a copy of the letter of repudiation when he conferred earlier in the week with President Roosevelt at the White House and with Senator McAdoo, democrat, California.

At that time Creel stated publicly that he was going to California to "assess" the situation. He did not go nearly so far, however, as in his letter made public today, declaring that Sinclair's statements about his "epic" plan were "optimism carried to the point of delirium." Then, as in his letter, Creel intimated Sinclair was stepping off the state platform.

The "mistake" of the Farley letter to the California governor candidate was surrounded by great mystery at democratic headquarters here. The incident carried some comic as well as serious touches. From the postmaster-general down, democratic spokesmen declined to discuss it.

President "Hands Off."

In fact, the entire California gubernatorial situation was silent so far as officials were concerned. The president, at his press conference, turned aside such questions with a reiteration of his hands-off-state-campaigns policy.

It was learned that form letters for indorsing many democratic candidates had been prepared at democratic committee headquarters to go out over Farley's signature, to be stamped in green ink. As the story was told, a Californian asked for a letter on Sinclair and a minor employe sent one before it was authorized.

Before that, however, it was ascertained, several copies of a Sinclair letter had been prepared and upon instructions from Farley were to have been destroyed. It was reliably reported, however, that not all had been destroyed and that when the request came, one was sent.

The recipient of the letter in California was reported to have gotten in touch with Emil Hurja, executive secretary, who was uninformed of the developments. Hurja assumed that Farley had sanctioned the letter, since it bore his green-ink signature, and upon request said it could be made public.

Thus the comedy of errors pro-

FORMER FERA MEN HELD FOR THEFTS

Grand Jury Indicts Ex-Manager, Clerk on Larceny, Forgery Counts.

A former district manager for the FERA and another former clerical employe were named in indictments returned by Fulton county grand jury Friday charging embezzlement, larceny after trust and forgery in connection with handling of relief funds.

Roy Dunnaway, described as a former manager of the "Edgewood district" relief station, and Arthur Stair were the relief employes named. In addition an indictment was returned charging Willie Atkins, a negro, with forging the names of relief workers to grocery and clothing orders.

Dunnaway is charged with larceny of $211 entrusted to him by persons working for the relief organization, and with embezzlement of additional funds amounting to $174.35. On a forgery count he is charged with raising vouchers for small amounts.

Stair is charged with forging the name of Miss Marie Wainwright, a fellow-worker, to a payroll check.

Officials of the transient bureau said that Atkins passed orders from a book which was taken from the Auburn avenue transient bureau by burglars. He is not connected with the relief organization. Bonds for the three were fixed at $1,000.

Dunnaway's indictment and that of Stair grew out of a federal investigation which was instituted after it was found that Dunnaway's books were short, it was understood. He was dropped from the payroll some time ago.

The investigation which resulted in the indictment of the three was brought about at the instance of Miss Gay B. Shepperson and was conducted by a member of her staff.

Daughter of Senator Vanishes in West

RENO, Nev., Oct. 26.—(AP)—Department of justice agents were reported tonight to have joined in a search for Miss Patricia McCarran, 15-year-old daughter of Senator Patrick A. McCarran, of Nevada, who Reno police said disappeared from her home Monday night.

Police said they learned the girl had spent one night in a Reno hotel and then vanished.

The girl's mother declined to comment here and Senator McCarran was reported in Florida where he attended the American Legion convention at Miami.

MOB HOLDS NEGRO IN NORTH FLORIDA

Officers at Loss on Means To Prevent Lynching of Slayer.

By WILLIAM I. TRUBY.

(Copyright, 1934, by the Associated Press)

GREENWOOD, Fla., Oct. 26.—(AP)—A crowd of several thousand persons, gathered to see the lynching of Claude Neal, negro, slowly dwindled away tonight to a thousand of the determined who remained to witness the death of the man accused of attacking and slaying Lola Cannidy, young white woman.

The crowd began gathering at noon when word spread that a mob had entered the Brewton, Ala., jail and would bring Neal back to the scene of the crime and kill him.

The lynching was scheduled for between 8 p. m. and 9 p. m., central time, but when the crowd grew to unexpected size a "committee of six" appeared and said they feared disorder and Neal would not be killed until the crowd grew smaller.

Hold Victim in Woods.

The "committee" told newspapermen that they had Neal "down in the woods" a short distance away and as soon as they believed it safe he would be brought out and killed. They said they feared shooting, there were numerous armed men in the crowd, and wanted to wait until it was safe.

After the negro was killed, the committee announced, the body would be taken to Marianna, the county seat nine miles away, and there hung in the courthouse square for all to see.

Natives of the county in the crowd when questioned said they recognized no officers and none could be found. The governor of the state had offered to call out troops if needed but the Jackson county sheriff said he felt

Mrs. Verne Sankey Freed of Kidnaping

SIOUX FALLS, S. D., Oct. 26.—(AP)—Mrs. Fern Mae Sankey, widow of the late Verne Sankey, gangster, tonight was acquitted by a federal court jury of a charge of conspiracy in the Charles Boettcher II kidnaping.

It was Mrs. Sankey's second trial on this charge, a previous jury having disagreed.

Mrs. Sankey was released immediately and planned to spend the night at a local hotel. Mrs. Alvina Kohler, sister of Mrs. Sankey, who had been held in the county jail here and against whom a conspiracy charge also is pending, was released on her own recognizance.

JAPS MAY WRECK HOPES FOR ACCORD IN NAVAL PARLEYS

Nippon's Delegates Adamant on Demand for Treaty Reforms, May Walk Out.

LONDON, Oct. 26.—(AP)—A belief was voiced in some American quarters tonight that Japan is trying to wreck tri-power naval talks in progress here.

Refusal of the Japanese delegates to fix the maximum figure to which they would be willing to limit defensive ships gave rise to the belief they were seeking so to entangle the conversations that compromise would be impossible, thus giving them an opportunity to abandon the discussions.

These American sources were convinced Japan would excuse her walkout on the plea that the other two participating powers, Great Britain and the United States, would not give her sufficient rights under the new treaty she proposes to make her defensively secure.

Thus, it was expected she would contend, she was forced to take matters in her own hands.

Separate Pacts.

Once the conversations were at an end, the Americans believe, Japan would propose a non-aggression pact among the three powers to forestall any difficulties which might be entailed in a possible naval building race.

To the joint demand of the British and American delegations that Japan suggest a maximum figure for tonnage limitation, the Japanese responded with suggestions that technical experts of the three powers set the figure.

Ambassador Tsuneo Matsudaira and Admiral Isoroku Yamamoto, the polished diplomat and the forthright sea dog representing Nippon, were described as feeling their proposal that the figure be mutually determined that very fair.

At today's meeting with the British, headed by Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald, Matsudaira and Yamamoto asserted their country was willing to compromise on any technical basis provided basic principles of her plan are recognized.

Principles Proposed.

These principles are:

1—Acceptance of the principle of equality in naval armaments of the defensive type.

2—Reduction or abolition of capital ships—aircraft carriers, battleships and heavy cruisers—to make aggressive warfare impossible.

3—Abondonment of the "ratio" principle.

CHURCH POST QUIT BY AUGUST JAEGER

Resignation May Pave Way for Healing Breach in German Affairs.

BERLIN, Oct. 26.—(UP)—Opponents of nazification of the German evangelical church won a preliminary victory tonight with the resignation of August Jaeger, nazi lay counsellor, from the church government of Reichsbishop Ludwig Mueller.

Jaeger, resigning under fire in one of the bitterest church conflicts in modern times, sent Bishop Mueller a letter explaining that work of reorganization of the evangelical church has been completed and his services no longer are required.

His activities, however, as assistant to the reichsbishop and an extremist in the move to remodel the church on nazi state lines, have led to serious internal dissension which it is felt has embarrassed the reich government, and his resignation was a compromise with the opposition.

In well-informed quarters, it was believed Jaeger quit to pave the way for a settlement between the opposition pastors and Dr. Mueller, to which the counsellor was considered a serious obstacle.

Nevertheless, his resignation officially was characterized as purely voluntary.

In his letter of resignation, Jaeger suggested that Reichsbishop Mueller establish a "bishops' council." Bishop Mueller, it was learned, already has discussed the suggestion with bishops still adhering to him in the conflict, including the bishop-commissar appointed to succeed Bishop Hans Meiser, opposition leader in Bavaria, hotbed of the rebellion against Mueller's church government. Mueller was understood already to have moved for appointment of such a council, but names of its members have not been revealed.

Jaeger's resignation followed the indefinite postponement yesterday of an audience between Reichsfuehrer Adolf Hitler and Bishop Mueller and his supporters. The postponement was generally regarded as a snub to the reichsbishop, and an indication Hitler feels it impolitic at the moment to throw his weight entirely on the side of the nazified church government in the current conflict.

Dr. Mueller had hoped in the audience to consolidate his position of authority as sole head of the evangelical church. It had been believed generally that Hitler was firmly in support of Dr. Mueller and Jaeger in their stern measures against opposition pastors and intended to back them in their determination to crush opposition.

Headed for Prison

MURRAY HUMPHREYS.

CAPONE AID TAKEN AND SENTENCED FOR DODGING TAX

Murray Humphreys, Captured After Month of Hiding, Pleads Guilty and Gets 18 Months.

CHICAGO, Oct. 26.—(AP)—Public Enemy Murray Llewellyn Humphreys, successor in rackets to Al Capone, fell heir today to the Capone fate as well and was sentenced to prison on his plea of guilty to a charge that he dodged his income tax bill.

Business genius of the gang that was wrapping its tentacles around the profits of bootleg liquor, cleaning and dyeing, linen supplies, laundries, teamsters' unions and bottled beverage trades in the latter days of Alphonse "Scarface" Capone, Humphreys came home after 16 months in hiding and took what he knew was coming.

Agents of the internal revenue bureau met him at the Indiana state line and escorted him to the federal court house.

Pleads Guilty.

He was led before Federal Judge Charles E. Woodward and immediately entered a plea of guilty to the indictment returned in June, 1933, charging that he tried to evade $23,190 taxes on an income totaling $169,561 for the three years ended in 1932.

Edwin Hess, the attorney through whom he had arranged to surrender, pleaded for leniency. Judge Woodward ordered Humphreys to Leavenworth penitentiary for 18 months and fined him $5,000. He will have to pay his delinquent tax and interest besides.

Thus the government transferred another big name from the list of public enemies to the roster of federal prisoners.

Only Grave Charge.

Humphreys was already away on his voluntary vacation when the federal grand jury indicted him 16 months ago. Besides that indictment—the same sort of weapon the government had used to thrust the Capones, Ralph and Al, the Guziks, Sam and Jack, Frank Nitti, Frank Lake, Terry Druggan and others as notorious, into prison—Humphreys was also a fugitive from a year's jail term assessed in county courts for carrying a concealed weapon. But in his absence the state supreme court erased that conviction on technical grounds. He still has against him an indictment charging a grand racketeering conspiracy, but his several codefendants all won acquittals early this year after a trial of record endurance.

Humphreys was named public enemy No. 1 by the Chicago crime commission after Capone's forced abdication.

Gangland had all but forgotten him when he showed up today. While the federal revenue agents were looking for his tracks, he was, admittedly, playing the races down in Mexico and enjoying California sunshine.

"I thought I'd better get it over with," Humphreys said. "When I get out I'm going straight."

The maximum penalty on the four counts in the indictments would have been 16 years in prison and $40,000 fine.

ONLY ONE BALLOT TAKEN BY JURYMEN TO REACH VERDICT

Former Business Associate Was Killed by Gun in Hands of Luke, Who Said Shooting Was "Accident."

DEATH IN CHAIR ASKED BY STATE

Jurist, After Acquittal, Expressed "Faith in Manhood of Country and of Our Courts."

By BEN F. MEYER,
Associated Press Staff Writer.

THOMASVILLE, Ga., Oct. 26.—(AP)—City Court Judge Roscoe Luke, a former member of the state court of appeals, today was acquitted by a superior court jury of the murder of his former business associate and "best friend," Oscar Groover.

Only one ballot was taken. The jury actually deliberated about 5 minutes, although it was 2 hours and 15 minutes after they received the case before the verdict was announced. In the meantime they were taken to lunch. The verdict was made public at 2:55 p. m., eastern standard time.

Friends Shake Hands.

Many friends rushed to shake hands of the judge. In a shaking voice, the judge said:

"I have always had an abiding faith in the integrity of the manhood of our country and of our courts."

He left shortly afterward for his home.

A coroner's jury, the day after Groover was killed while sitting in Judge Luke's automobile, returned a verdict of accidental death.

The judge throughout has contended death was accidental. The shooting occurred here May 20. When the gun, a short shotgun with pistol handle, which the judge said he was moving from the front to the rear of the car, discharged, Judge Luke exclaimed, "I have accidentally shot my best friend." He made an unsworn statement to the jury.

Judge Luke went on trial Wednesday morning.

The state claimed Groover, former secretary and treasurer of a building and loan association headed by Judge Luke, was the only person knowing about Luke's handling of affairs of the association and that Luke wanted to get him out of the way.

The building and loan association now is in receivership and Judge Luke has been indicted by a federal grand jury in connection with its affairs.

During the trial here, the state

Convicts Lock Doctor In Cage, Leave in Car

CANTON, Ga., Oct. 26.—Dr. J. R. Boring, Cherokee county physician, had the novel experience here yesterday of being locked in prison bars racks and then watching two "sick" convicts ride off in his automobile.

The physician was called to the county prison camp about three miles from town on the complaint of two prisoners, booked as Harold Facker and Ed Connell, who said they were sick. When he entered the cage or barracks, one of the prisoners threatened him and a guard with a knife, then locked the two men inside and left in the doctor's car.

Another guard, seeing the prisoners leave in the auto immediately gave chase and captured one of the men when the Boring car was overturned. The other man fled, but was also later recaptured. The prisoners were returned to camp and the physician and the guard were released.

Negro Porter Gets Carnegie Medal For Rescuing 2 Men in Atlanta Fire

An Atlanta negro porter, still critically ill from the effects of his hazardous exploit of nearly a year and a half ago, Friday was awarded a bronze medal by the Carnegie hero fund commission, for his heroism in carrying two white men from a burning building. Thirty-seven others were awarded bronze medals and a San Francisco physician was awarded a silver medal.

Included in the list of bronze medal awards was one to Arthur W. McKinney, 39-year-old Florence (Ala.) electrical foreman, for saving the life of Fred H. Maxwell, imperiled by high tension wires after he had been knocked out by contact with the wires at Emory University on December 4, 1930.

The negro medal winner is Olin D. Milner, 42 years of age, of 675 Ami street, porter at the Produce Row warehouse of the Loeb-Apte Company, scene of a fatal explosion on June 10, 1933. Although he has been able to work part of the time since the explosion, Milner at present is confined to his home, only recently having been removed from the hospital where he has been forced to go several times this year.

The porter won his medal for rescuing two men trapped and overcome by fumes after the explosion and fire

KNOXVILLE TVA SALE WINS STATE APPROVAL

Action, However Is Begun To Block Utilities Transaction.

NASHVILLE, Tenn., Oct. 26.—(AP) Acquisition by the Tennessee Valley Authority of privately-owned utility properties at and near Knoxville—the first large city to invite the TVA "yardstick" rates—was approved today by the state railroad and public health utilities commission, but immediately court action was started in an effort to block the transaction.

Declaring that the "sole question" before it was "the question of the public interest"—whether users of electricity in the territory will continue to get proper service at reasonable rates, either through operation of the property by the TVA or eventually by the municipalities—the commission relegated to the courts for determination all legal and constitutional questions that had been raised.

Embraced in the sale contract are the electric utility properties of the Tennessee Public Service Company at Knoxville, Sevierville, Newport, Dandridge, White Pine and other near-by communities. The street car transportation system in Knoxville was not included. The agreed sale price was approximately $6,191,000.

The commission also approved the sale of the TPS to the Appalachian Electric Power Company of a transmission line from Waterville, N. C., to Kingsport, Tenn., for around $1,290,000.

SALE FIGHT IS TAKEN BEFORE LEBANON JUDGE

LEBANON, Tenn., Oct. 26.—(AP)—Chief Justice Grafton Green tonight took under advisement a petition for a writ of supersedeas to set aside a circuit court order issued today temporarily blocking purchase by the Tennessee Valley Authority of certain east Tennessee properties of the Tennessee Public Service Company.

The petition was presented to Judge Green at his home here tonight by attorneys representing the TVA. The chief justice said he probably would give his decision tomorrow morning.

The action followed approval of sale of the properties today at Nashville by the state railroad and public utilities commission, before which a hearing had been in progress on protests against the transaction lodged by Tennessee Public Service Company stockholders and a number of ice and coal companies.

With approval given by the utility body, objectors to the sale obtained in third circuit court at Nashville an order directing that negotiations should not be carried further pending a hearing Tuesday.

Australians Given Gift For Aiding Dutch Flyers

MELBOURNE, Australia, Oct. 26.—As a mark of appreciation for the aid given by the town of Albury when the Dutch Air Lines plane in the England-Australia air Derby was lost in that district, the Dutch government is presenting 1,000 florins (about $400) to the Albury hospital.

The gift is in appreciation of the "true sportsmanship" of Albury residents, it was stated. They guided the Dutch plane safely to a landing by controlling all lights of the town from the powerhouse and flashing signals thereby in Morse to the aviators overhead.

should be virtually established beforehand that foreign exchange for repayment would be available, either through direct interchange of goods, or indirectly through a circle of international trading.

The export-import banks are designed to supply funds which commercial and other bankers have been loath to grant since the depression. Officials were hopeful that banker cooperation would facilitate the private use of funds for foreign trading on the basis of Peek's theory.

Peek is to address the foreign trade council next week, and Hecht will give out a formal statement at the same time, designed to give fuller development to the present tentative scheme.

ed campaign in the history of the Atlanta Community Chest, declaring no one better qualified as chairman than "Chubby" Turner, and no one better able to lead as president than Robert F. Maddox.

Mr. Arkwright then declared that the distribution of information has been such that "I think everybody surely understands the Community Chest and that you very rarely will meet anybody who will refuse to contribute."

He pointed out how not only has detailed information about the Chest and its agencies been distributed over Atlanta, but that the president of the United States himself has appealed for support of local agencies.

"The people are interested," declared Mr. Arkwright, "but you have got to sell the individual. A man will sit in his office and wait until you bring him a card. There are some exceptions, but generally people won't subscribe until you go to them and ask, and that is our job.

With people generally so thoroughly well acquainted with the Community Chest and its work, Mr. Arkwright declared his belief that "you can get a subscription from almost everybody if you go out and see them and ask them. Nearly everybody," he continued, "wants to be of help. They want to be generous and it takes somebody to go to them and ask for subscriptions. That's our job."

Urged to Work on Sunday.

He urged the workers to utilize every possible hour of time over Saturday and throughout Sunday in efforts to bring in a record number of subscriptions to the Monday report meeting. Turning to Chairman Turner, he asked and obtained the minister's approval of devoting Sunday to Community Chest work.

After explaining how the federal government relief work is an emergency measure and declaring that "the idea of the government taking care of our relief has been exploded," Mr. Arkwright pointed out that the Atlanta agencies have been in existence for many years and are by no means organizations designed to meet a sudden emergency.

"Not a single agency has come into existence since the depression," he said. "They are not an emergency proposition. They were necessary in prosperous times, in boom times, when employment was general and when wages were higher than ever before.

"What has happened is that fewer people are earning money and those that are earning are getting less than they formerly did. So the need of the agencies is greater than ever before."

Agencies' Work Outlined.

He detailed briefly the work of some of the agencies, how they do more than furnish food, providing homes and shelter.

"The government might give an old woman food if she were starving," he said, "but what she wants is a home and shelter. Who is going to look after the old? Who is going to look after the incurably sick? There is no place to send them except the home for the incurables. Grady hospital is for emergencies.

"The United States government is not going to take care of the incurable. It doesn't pretend to do it and we don't want them to do it."

The agencies of the Chest, declared Mr. Arkwright, "were born of need."

"We can't individually do the things they are doing, as much as we may feel like we would like to do so. But everyone who contributes to the Community Chest does part of the work of these agencies.

"You workers," he declared, "do more than anybody else. You give both yourselves and your money, and of all the people who participate, the greatest satisfaction should come to people like you.

Satisfaction in Work.

"You couldn't do a better work," he asserted, "one that should give you more satisfaction than helping these agencies meet a vital need. The city ought to be proud of you and when you go about asking for contributions, remember that it is no one person's duty more than another's to give to the Community Chest. Everybody with any human feeling must have an interest in some of the work of some of the agencies.

"You volunteer workers are carrying on a task that is an obligation and duty of every citizen. That is to go out and raise these funds. You are doing it willingly, faithfully, and, as the result shows, successfully.

"Remember that people understand the Community Chest and appreciate it. Go to them. Ask them for donations. Ask them to give something, even of it isn't a large gift, and you will find that nearly everybody will contribute."

Certificates signed by Robert F. Maddox as president and Herman L. Turner as chairman were given to various 100 per cent firms, signifying that officers and employes "have together contributed and shared with their fellow citizens in support of the Atlanta Community Chest and have been named on the 100 per cent honor roll, thus having met their goal in the 1934-35 campaign for human needs."

Other 100 Per Centers.

Additional groups on the 100 per cent list include:

White Provision Company, office force; A&P Tea Company, all employes; First National bank, J. H. Harland & Company, Rand & Company, Max Goldberg Grocery Company, Union Bus Station, Adams-Cates Company; two departments of the city of Atlanta: purchasing agent and construction department; Atlanta Tuberculosis Association, Piedmont hotel, Withers Cigar Company, Atlanta Service Warehouse, National Casket Company, H. J. Heinz Corporation, Brown Distributing Company, municipal revenue collectors in the city of Atlanta, Howell & Post, Shaw & Furman and the Family Finance Company.

The workers were urged by Dr. Herman L. Turner, campaign chairman, to sustained effort in pushing the campaign to completion and were complimented on the vigor displayed so far.

They also heard briefly from R. A. Kline, vice president of Davison-Paxon Company, whose firm not only gave 100 per cent, but gave $1,000 more than last year, "with," declared Mr. Kline, "a great deal of pleasure in doing it."

Chorus Sings at Meeting.

In addition to community singing, led by Harry Stark, the meeting was entertained by the Salvation Army chorus of young women under the leadership of Miss Eunice Ward.

Chairman Turner asked those present to stress the fact that the daily report luncheons are being given without cost to the Community Chest. He thanked the donors of the food and expressed special appreciation to Mrs. Joel C. Harris Jr. and her committee of young women who are in charge of serving the luncheons.

Reports of various teams showed that the district under the direction of Mrs. Robert Young as colonel had exceeded its quota; two majors, Miss Emma Salveson and Miss Louise Baldry, having secured subscriptions in excess of the amounts allotted them. Mrs. Warren Kelley, major in the district of which Mrs. W. G. McRae is colonel, also was given a red feather for exceeding her quota.

In the Kirkwood district, under Mrs. L. M. Dugger, which previously was reported as exceeding its quota, Mrs. C. A. Virgin reported additional subscriptions.

Announcement was made by C. P. Vaughn that several firms in Roswell have qualified for the 100 per cent honor roll.

NEGRO PORTER AWARDED MEDAL FOR SAVING MEN in the fumigating room of the warehouse.

One Rescued Man Died.

John D. Jeffries, 52, one of the men rescued, died two days later but the other, George B. Sawyer, recovered.

The citation says Milner's health was seriously affected by fumes in the experience and that he had to be restrained by firemen from entering the building a third time in an attempt to reach John B. Gelissen, 39, a clerk. Gelissen was taken out by three firemen but died two days later.

The citation says:

"From the front door Milner ran through fumes on the ground floor to the elevator shaft at the rear of the building. He descended the frame of the elevator to the basement floor, and in darknss he walked 12 feet to Sawyer and dragged him to the elevator. He hoisted the elevator until it wedged seven feet above the floor and other men pulled Sawyer to the ground floor."

Milner then groped 33 feet to reach Jeffries and dragged him to the elevator. Trying to save Gelissen, he stumbled from weakness but attempted to return, "holding a wet towel to his nose." Firemen prevented him.

Co-Workers Laud Milner.

Milner's fellow workers were jubilant Friday when informed that he had been awarded the medal.

"Despite the fact that he is a negro, Milner is one of the finest men I ever knew," H. D. Wells, foreman of the warehouse, said. "He did not think of himself for a minute that day and if the firemen had not prevented him from doing so he would have gone back into the fumigating room a third time and the chances are he never would have come out alive. We are very happy to know that his deed has won him the recognition that is due him."

Mr. McKinney is an electrical foreman who was working at Emory at the time of Maxwell's almost fatal accident.

Maxwell, a timekeeper, climbed from a ladder to a steel frame on which there were wires and switches which carried a current of 19,000 volts of electricity.

Fell on Cross Bar.

Unaware that the wires and switches were charged, the citation says Maxwell received a shock, causing the grounding of the current. He fell in a recumbent position on a horizontal cross bar six inches wide, his leg resting on a switch. Although conscious, he was unable to speak or shift his position.

McKinney, knowing the current would soon automatically be returned to the switch through a switch at a distant sub-station, ascended a ladder to the top of the large transformer near the structure and sprang upon a beam close to Maxwell. Stooping, he grasped Maxwell's leg and pulled it from the switch, then grasped Maxwell under the armpits and drew him away.

The current returned to the circuit 30 seconds after Maxwell was moved. Maxwell was severely burned. McKinney was unhurt.

OPERATING ROOM DRAMA BRINGS MEDAL TO DOCTOR

PITTSBURGH, Oct. 26.—(UP—A thrilling drama of the operating room in which for a few brief seconds the lives of patient, physician, and an assistant hung in the balance, was revealed today at the fall meeting of the Carnegie hero fund commission.

A silver medal—second highest bestowed by the commission for acts of heroism—was awarded the 50-year-old physician, Dr. Miley B. Wesson, whose quick action averted probable death for one or more of the three persons in an operating room of a San Francisco hospital.

The patient, a child, lay on the operating table. Dr. Wesson was preparing for the operation. Gertrude Quinn, 35-year-old X-ray technician, seized a 30,000-volt electric wire to attach it to an X-ray tube above the table.

Nurse Knocked Down.

Miss Quinn was shocked and fell unconscious to the floor, her hand clinging to the wire. In addition to the danger to Miss Quinn there was a possibility that the wire might swing to the metal table and kill the child or that tanks of nitrous oxide and ether might explode.

Dr. Wesson, intending to pull the wire from Miss Quinn in hope that a spring on a pulley on which the wire was wound would pull it up, Dr. Wesson grasped the wire. He was knocked against an instrument table, losing consciousness. His weight, however, pulled the wire from Miss Quinn and broke the circuit.

He recovered consciousness after a moment and despite fractures of a vertebrae and the right clavicle, completed the operation on the child. He was incapacitated for nine and a half weeks. Miss Quinn regained consciousness shortly after the circuit was broken. She suffered burns on the hand.

In addition to the silver medal, the commission awarded 38 bronze medals. Eight of the heroes lost their lives.

Posthumous Award.

A posthumous award of a bronze medal was made to Peter Thomas Muller, of Little Rock. The medal will be given his father, Louis C. Muller.

Peter was drowned on August 3, 1933, at Little Rock trying to save 8-year-old William E. Preddy from drowning. While wading in the Arkansas river, William stepped over his depth. Peter swam to him but William grasped his neck. Both were submerged and rose separated. They both sank again and were drowned.

Floridan Honored.

Edward P. McCullough, of Pensacola, Fla., received a bronze medal for recognition of his bravery in rescuing 9-year-old Frances M. Smith from a burning automobile at Pensacola on September 7, 1933.

The child died later from burns, but the commission cites McCullough for breaking the glass windshield and crawling through the frame of the burning car "until only the lower parts of his legs were outside" and pulling her out.

Frances was in the rear compartment of the car.

New Truce May Save Doumergue Regime

NANTES, France, Oct. 26.—(AP)—A new truce to save the government of Premier Gaston Doumergue, formed when last February's riots scared warring political factions into an armistice, appeared likely here today as radical socialist leaders planned to try to compromise with him on constitutional changes.

Committees of the powerful radical socialists, in convention here, voted against Doumergue's proposal to strip the senate of its power to dissolve the chamber, but favored some solution that would not force the cabinet's fall.

Reports said the premier had discussed the question with Edouard Herriot, member of his cabinet and leader in the battle to patch up matters.

Some friends of Doumergue, however, voiced the opinion he had stood out so strongly against the senate that it would be difficult for him to back water.

Doumergue wants to change the constitution so as to give the president or premier or both power to dissolve the chamber and call for new elections.

BONDING SYSTEM CHANGES SOUGHT

tons of sludge, which is residue of sewage.

The audit showed that Atlanta's three disposal plants handle 50 per cent of the sewage and in 1933 sold only 1,376 cubic yards of sludge to the Atlanta Chemical Company. It was pointed out that this source of revenue is being neglected and should Atlanta develop sale of the product as Milwaukee has done the city would be adequately repaid.

Milwaukee sells sludge for fertilizer and has put on the market a product suited for lawn and garden fertilizer which is less expensive than the majority of commercial brands having the same fertilization value, it was said.

The audit found other divisions of the construction department in good order but it termed the method of billing used as "cumbersome" and recommended a change. The report was filed Friday morning with B. Graham West, city comptroller and Mayor James L. Key.

he was capable of handling the situation.

Killing Site Changed.

The crowd first gathered in front of the farm home of George Cassidy, father of the slain girl, in response to messengers who had said "there will be a lynching" at the Cassidy home. It was made up of men, women, children and babes in arm.

It was good-humored and orderly for the most part, patiently awaiting developments.

A man who identified himself as a member of the Florida legislature made a humorous address and promised action but urged his audience to be quiet.

The Cassidy family, father, mother, eight children and aunts and uncles cames from the house and stood before the crowd.

A member of the lynching committee said the negro first would be brought to the home and the family allowed to do with him as they pleased, then he would be taken to the pigpen a half-mile away in the middle of a cotton field where Lola Cassidy was killed and there Neal would be slain.

Sholtz Authorizes Guard.

Bonfires near the pigpen attracted the crowd shortly after dark and it moved into the cotton field but near midnight started breaking up and a mile-long line of automobiles slowly moved toward Marianna.

From Arcadia, where he was stopping tonight, Governor Dave Sholtz authorized calling out of the national guard if Jackson county authorities thought troops were necessary to prevent the slaying of the negro.

J. P. Newell, executive secretary to the governor, said earlier that Sheriff W. F. Chambliss told him he believed he was capable of taking care of any situation that might arise. Newell was again trying to reach the sheriff with the governor's offer of troops.

Sheriff Chambliss said he had sworn in special officers and believed he could handle the situation, but another officer said if the mob was determined to kill the negro he knew of "no way to prevent it."

Societies Protest.

He said his office had heard of several places where the scheduled lynching might take place and that a force of 32 deputies and a dozen special officers were prepared to try to stop the lynching.

The head of the Florida Counell for the Association of Southern Women for the Prevention of Lynching and the National Association for the Advancement of Colored Peoples said they had sent telegrams to the governor urging the use of troops to prevent the mob from carrying out its scheduled lynching.

Neal was taken from the Brewton jail, where he had been held for safekeeping, early today by a mob estimated at 100 men. Sheriff G. S. Byrne said the mob, which appeared in Brewton in automobiles carrying Florida license plates, covered an officer at the jail with a pistol and demanded that the negro be turned over to it, declaring they were going to carry him to the girl's father.

The sheriff said the officer was covered with guns and there was nothing he could do but let the mob have its way.

Miss Cannidy's body was found near her home 11 miles north of Marianna and two miles from the small town of Greenwood last Friday, hidden under some pine boughs.

She had been attacked and her head crushed in by some instrument. A hammer was found near the body.

Witnesses at the inquest testified tracks led from the body to a house where Neal lived and that blood-stained clothing was found in the house.

Sheriff Byrne announced last night the negro had confessed to the attack and quoted him as saying "I got to thinking I had done played the devil and she was half dead anyhow, so I went back and killed her."

Warm Weather Over For Few Days at Least

Clear skies and crisp weather are forecast for today by George W. Mindling, Atlanta weatherman.

"Atlanta can depend on clear skies for the next two or three days," Mr. Mindling declared, "but our unusual hot weather is over for some time at least."

Temperatures Friday ranged between 49 and 67 degrees. Today's extremes are expected to be about 48 and 70 degrees.

MACON, Ga., Oct. 26.—(AP)—Reports of better business than in several years are being made by shippers and receivers of railroad freight, H. D. Pollard, of Savannah, receiver of the Central of Georgia railway, said here.

Addressing a meeting yesterday of the Macon Business Solicitors' Association of Central of Georgia Employes, Pollard urged them to try to increase business as a means of putting more men back to work and improving wages and working conditions.

He said "wonderful results have been accomplished by these good-will business solicitors."

1,000 Teachers Attend District Meeting in Americus.

AMERICUS, Ga., Oct. 26.—(AP)—One thousand teachers and educational officials of the third congressional district and the state met here yesterday and heard outlined the plans and hopes of the movement under way for revision of curricula and school methods in the public schools and colleges of the state.

Nelson M. Shipp, editor of the Columbus Ledger, delivered an address upon "The New Deal in Education." He declared one of the urgent needs was to restore adventure in education which would create the desire, eagerness and anticipation for learning that are required for best results.

"The school rooms of tomorrow," he said, "will be largely workshops, laboratories, studios and libraries where the young, who are naturally given to the creative, can use their hands, eyes, ears and creative instincts to their fullest capacity."

Lincoln McConnell, state re-employment director, spoke on the unemployment problem as it relates to education, and stressed the need for vocational guidance. He gave as the main reasons for unemployment the development of machinery and scientific, improved technique.

Mrs. Helen G. Gurr, superintendent of the Terrell county schools, discussed the practical phases of curriculum revision.

Miss Allie Mann, president of the Georgia Education Association, presided. The welcome was given by Dr. Peyton Jacobs. Mrs. Charles D. Center, president of the Georgia Congress P.-T. A., brought greetings, and Urban Rumble, of Columbus, also spoke.

TUBERCULOSIS FIGHT PLANNED AT MEETING

CEDARTOWN, Ga., Oct. 26.—James P. Faulkner, of Atlanta, executive secretary of the Georgia Tuberculosis Association, was host today to all chairmen of the first district of Georgia at a luncheon here today. About 25 persons were present with J. E. Purks, of Cedartown, acting as toastmaster. Following the luncheon, reports were read and plans were outlined for the fight against tuberculosis in this section. An intensive drive to sell Christmas seals was outlined, from which source the bulk of revenue is derived in performing this work.

The first district of Georgia is made up of Dade, Murray, Chattooga, Gordon, Bartow, Polk, Paulding, Haralson, Carroll, Douglas, Heard and Coweta counties. The other counties in this immediote section have their own nurses. This year in this district 17 clinics were held, 780 persons examined for tuberculosis and 203 found positive. The nurse made 2,390 visits.

GEN. MOSELEY PRAISED BY LEGION COMMITTEE

Major General George Van Horn Moseley and the officers of his command were highly praised by Everett G. Jackson, general chairman of the Atlanta Preconvention Celebration for the American Legion, in a letter to General Moseley.

The letter commended highly the way in which the officers handled the parade October 20 and the drum and bugle corps competition at Grant Field stadium. Mr. Jackson said that never "in the history of Atlanta has a parade been handled at this one was. It moved off and proceeded with the smoothness and precision of a well-oiled machine."

U. S. to Appeal Ruling On Rail Pension Act

WASHINGTON, Oct. 26.—(AP)—Intention of the department of justice to seek a decision by the supreme court on the railway retirement act, held unconstitutional by the District of Columbia supreme court, was announced today by Attorney-General Cummings.

Cummings said that an appeal directly to the supreme court probably would be made.

The act was held unconstitutional by the District of Columbia supreme court, principally on the grounds that it affected wages of men not in interstate commerce and that certain provisions were retroactive.

In discussing the case, the attorney-general said "it is important that the supreme court pass on this act as soon as possible not only for the particular purpose of deciding on the railway retirement act but also to determine the scope to which any such acts can go."

DISMUKE IS GRANTED BACK PAY BY JUDGE

MACON, Ga., Oct. 26.—(AP)—A federal court has ordered Frederick D. Dismuke, former deputy prohibition administrator here, given back retirement pay of $1,476.45 and $98.43 a month until January 21, 1935, when the monthly payments become $102 and remain so until his death.

Federal Judge Bascom S. Deaver ruled that Dismuke was a government employe from December 16, 1895, to April 30, 1902, when he served as deputy field marshal. The government contended Dismuke was employed by the United States marshal during that period and was not a federal employe.

Dismuke retired from government service in June, 1933.

UNCLE REMUS 'CADE REACHES VIRGINIA

Georgia Party Dedicating Highway To Reach Washington Today.

DANVILLE, Va., Oct. 26.—(AP)—One hundred and forty-seven motorcaders rolled into Hotel Burton tonight on the way to Washington in celebration of the Uncle Remus highway opening from Macon north. Two hundred and eighty-nine miles were made today, with several stops for entertainment and refreshments.

Only one accident marred the trip so far. Kenmore Burns, of Macon, was having his car serviced at Charlotte, when a Charlotte motorcycle officer dashed into him and cut the back of his right leg at the calf.

Reports quickly spread up the road that he had broken the leg and that Mr. and Mrs. Burns would be detained at the hospital for some time. However, Mr. Burns reached Danville tonight with the regular procession. His car was driven by a friend. The leg was not broken, but it was cut to such an extent that he is being given anti-tetanus treatment.

Danville hosts have taken charge of his case and will seek to have him ready to go on to Washington in the morning.

The motorcade left Macon Thursday in celebration of the completion of a new paved road from the east to the south, passing through Athens and Macon.

Thursday night was spent at Anderson, S. C., the party coming to Danville today from that point.

ROUND OF FESTIVITIES PLANNED IN WASHINGTON

WASHINGTON, Oct. 26.—(AP)—A gala round of festivities in Washington will climax tomorrow an 800-mile journey of a 50-car motorcade from Macon, Ga., celebrating the opening of the new Uncle Remus highway through the heart of the south to the nation's capital.

The office of Representative Vinson, of Georgia, announced a reception will be held here for hundreds of persons participating in the motorcade. Special sight-seeing rates were arranged and a trip to the naval academy at near-by Annapolis was planned for Sunday.

At the White House, it was stated no arrangements had been made for the southern motorists to see the president. The motorcade was expected to arrive here late tomorrow.

Boats, Planes Hunt Quitman Fire Chief

QUITMAN, Ga., Oct. 26.—(AP)—Boats and airplanes were pressed into a search for Fire Chief James Oestericher tonight after Lester Eldridge, with whom the chief had been missing from a fishing trip, made his way out of the swamp to civilization.

First reports here said both men had been found, but later information was that only Eldridge had been located. Reports said he told searchers he left Chief Oestericher in their boat and that he was endeavoring to lead the party back to the point.

Concern had been felt for the safety of the men after they had been overdue from their fishing excursion for many hours.

Eldridge and Chief Oestericher left their fishing camp on the Aucilla river Wednesday night for a fishing trip, expecting to return Thursday morning. The alarm was spread when they failed to return for breakfast.

LUKE ACQUITTED IN GROOVER DEATH

charged Judge Luke had misapplied association funds and killed Groover to seal his lips.

The defense said the state had failed to show any misapplication or mishandling of funds and cited testimony of a state witness, Lewis Wilson, an auditor, who testified entries made in the books of the association by Luke were "entries which should have been made."

The state produced a number of witnesses who saw the shooting but all of them who testified concerning relationship between Luke and Groover at the scene of the shooting, said they appeared friendly and in good spirits.

The defense, in cross-examination, brought out that a city policeman near the shooting scene once narrowly escaped death when a gun similar to the one which killed Groover, went off accidentally in the hands of a sheriff and narrowly missed the policeman.

Judge W. E. Thomas, in his charge to the jury, before they retired to deliberate, told them they could return one of three verdicts—the death penalty, life imprisonment or acquittal.

The prosecution, in winding up its arguments, renewed a demand that Judge Luke be sent to the electric chair.

Attorney Asks Acquittal.

Lee Branch, of defense counsel, in summing up for the defendant, asked for acquittal on the grounds that the state had failed to make out a case against the judge.

During the argument of Scott Russell, special prosecutor, in which he charged Judge Luke had "embezzled" funds of the building and loan association, the judge read a newspaper, surrounded by members of his family.

35,000 Relief Families in Georgia Raise Vegetables Worth $550,000

Spring and summer gardens in Georgia of 35,000 families on relief rolls produced food with a net cash value of $550,000.

Miss Gay B. Shepperson, state relief administrator for the federal government, Friday announced the cost of the gardens, including seed, fertilizer, poison for insects and parasites and supervision ran $106,000 for the 35,000 gardens.

The spring planting included some 22 varieties of vegetables. The basis of the cash value was at four cents per pound, exclusive of heavy commodities such as sweet potatoes and cabbage.

Miss Shepperson said the social value of the project was teaching hundreds to work for themselves and pointed the way to ultimate rehabilitation for others and also provided a focal point of interest for entire families, who previously had known nothing but despair and insecurity.

The administrator said a winter garden program, based on the previous experience of the administration, is now being sponsored in every county in the state.

The spring gardens, Miss Shepperson said, were started last spring as a means of improving the diet and increasing the food supply of Georgia's relief families. Families were encouraged to plant and cultivate gardens and the success of the growing of vegetables was even more productive than the administration anticipated.

"It was found," Miss Shepperson said, "that the Georgia relief family wanted to work. Backyards and vacant lots for the city dwellers and idle lands at the disposal of rural families, were at once turned into productive spots by the families themselves.

"The aged as well as the young on relief rolls joined hands with the relief workers in the state-wide effort to grow food for the often-times hungry and undernourished clients of this state. Federal funds would not supply food in sufficient quantity and variety to feed all who needed food.

"The program was not undertaken on an expensive basis. But one head of a family wrote: 'We have eaten two meals each day from our garden, gave our neighbors all they could eat and have canned 26 quarts of beans. We will can as many more beans and tomatoes, if we can get the cans. We have six gallons of kraut.'"

Miss Shepperson said that on investigation it was found this family had been furnished only 65 cents' worth of seed by the county administrator. The man was "73 years young," as he expressed it and his wife "70 years young."

This case, she said, was typical of several others.

$40,000 RELIEF BILL IS PAID FERA BY CITY

The city paid its October relief bill of $40,000 Friday as preparations got under way for the city to assume caring for the 15,000 unemployable persons next year.

Mayor Key signed the $40,000 check Friday afternoon for B. Graham West, city comptroller, to deliver to Miss Gay B. Shepperson, state FERA administrator. In conferences this week Miss Shepperson said the government would provide only for able-bodied unemployed persons beginning January 1 and therefore the city will have to assume the responsibility of giving relief to the unemployables.

CUT IN CORN ACREAGE TO BE REDUCED 50 PCT.

Reduction in Hogs Is Expected To Be 5 to 10 Per Cent.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 26.—(AP)—The AAA is expected to seek only half as large a cut in next year's corn acreage as it did this year.

The farm administration arranged today to submit next year's contract to farmers within two weeks. The compact, it was learned, will require signers to cut corn plantings 10 to 15 per cent below the 1932-33 base acreage of 105,500,000. This compares with the 20-30 per cent cut asked this year.

The cut in hogs is expected to be between 5 and 10 per cent, compared to this year's 20 to 25. Most attention is paid to corn curtailment. Hog numbers are already low, and officials believe they can be governed by feed control.

Should an overwhelming majority of farmers sign next year's corn contracts, and some officials predict they will, expectations are that acreage will be reduced to between 90,000,000 and 94,000,000. Production, assuming an average yield of about 25 bushels an acre, would be between 2,250,000,000 and 2,350,000,000 bushels, compared with the average of 2,600,000,000.

THE REMODELED HOME

The opening to the public tonight of the remodeled home on Peachtree street will furnish a concrete example of what can be done in home modernizing under the federal better homes campaign, and should awake the home owners of the city to a clear realization of the exceptional opportunity presented for the rehabilitation and expansion of dwellings.

Probably never in the history of the United States has there been a greater need for such work, as during the past five years few structures have received the care necessary to their preservation. As a result the homes and small business properties of the country are, in most instances, badly in need of repairs.

In order to make it possible for property owners without the necessary cash to undertake these renovations, the national housing act was designed. Under its provisions, money can be secured on homes, regardless of whether other loans already exist, from the banks of a community, the banks being protected from loss by the federal government.

The program differs from most of the other recovery plans in that it makes it possible for private finance in a community to function normally in the effort to revive a lagging industry, and with complete safety and reasonable profit. The government makes no direct loans in connection with the better homes campaign, merely insuring the banks against loss.

The program does not anticipate that loans will be granted indiscriminately, as, for instance, where property is already too heavily burdened or where the owners could not reasonably be expected to repay the rehabilitation loans, but in cases where the only thing standing in the way is the lack of spot cash, an advance can be secured.

Without the payment of a dollar, and at the lowest construction costs in many years, home owners can now secure long-desired and badly needed refurbishing and enlarging of their dwellings. Repayment of the money secured will be over periods sufficiently long to entail no difficulty in liquidating the loans.

Every home owner who does not take advantage of this opportunity to obtain needed repairs is proving himself a poor businessman and doing his family an injustice.

Atlantans should go to see the remodeled home on Peachtree when it is opened to the public, in order that they may see for themselves how much can be done at small expense.

THE AUDITORIUM SITUATION

Alderman Gilliam has returned from Washington, where he went to ascertain whether federal funds can be secured for the erection of a new city auditorium, and reports that the money can be obtained if the city puts up security.

This security can be in the nature either of general obligation bonds or refunding bonds, or the government can be given a lien against the new auditorium building, repayment to be made out of the rentals from the building. The latter plan is similar to the one under which the state is now building a modern prison farm in southeast Georgia.

Coincident with Alderman Gilliam's report, the Central Improvement Association issued a statement urging that the present auditorium be remodeled. The association bases its argument on the fact that such repairs would cost far less than the construction of a new auditorium and also stresses the advantages of the present site.

No city in the country is in more emergent need of a building in which large assemblages can gather than Atlanta. Long known as one of the most important sites for nation-wide conventions in the country, it will lose its standing in this respect unless better accommodations are offered in which these great gatherings can transact their business.

The city should have a new and modern structure. If this proves not to be feasible, then the present auditorium should be modernized and enlarged. The important thing is that better accommodations for large conventions be provided, whether by the construction of a new building or the repair of the present one.

A DESERVED PROMOTION

Congressman Ramspeck's selection of Lon Livingston as postmaster, following the declination of the appointment by Steve Nance, Atlanta labor leader, comes in the nature of well-merited promotion for a veteran and highly efficient federal employe.

Mr. Livingston has served as assistant postmaster for a number of years and has been acting postmaster pending the appointment of a successor to Postmaster Large. He entered the postal service in 1901 and has served for 33 years in the Atlanta postoffice, during which period he has filled practically every position of importance. He has served under Postmasters Smyth, Blodgett, McKee, Jones, Rogers and Large.

During his service as assistant superintendent of mails and assistant postmaster, Mr. Livingston has gained national recognition for efficiency and close application to his duties. It is largely due to his efforts that the Atlanta postoffice has become known as one of the best managed in the country.

The new postmaster, a native of Covington, is a grandson of the late Congressman Livingston, who represented this district for many years.

Under his direction the Atlanta postoffice will continue the splendid service to the homes and business concerns of the city which it rendered in the past. Congressman Ramspeck could have made no better decision than to place the local postoffice under the direction of a man who is a veteran in the service and who has proven his ability by the fine service he has rendered in the past.

AN INEXCUSABLE CONDITION

The auditors' report that local bondsmen owe the city $10,315 in forfeited bonds, and that irregularities exist in the making of bonds by professional bondsmen, reveals a condition that is inexcusable and should be corrected at once.

According to the auditors, the same bondsmen owe the county $22,800, but county officials hold that this is in error, the indebtedness amounting to only a few hundred dollars.

The report shows that three bonding companies, holding only $42,175 in real estate, are now surety on bonds amounting to $282,730. It is shown that the files on the bond cases are not kept in the courts but are in the files of the police department. Recorder Cone takes the position that action against the bondsmen cannot be taken until the files are returned to the court, while Chief Sturdivant states that they are being held in his department only for safekeeping.

Under such a system—or lack of system—it is not strange that professional bondsmen have delayed payment to the city of forfeited bonds. It is an unbusinesslike method of conducting public business, unfair alike to the city, to the officials involved and to the bonding companies, which, without the proper pressure for collection, are naturally inclined to postpone payment of these bonds as long as possible.

Councilman Bridges, chairman of the police committee of council, and Councilman Milam, member of both the police and ordinance committees, have promptly and vigorously condemned the system under which bonds are being signed with improper protection and which has permitted the bonding companies to become so deeply in debt to the city.

The arrears should be collected at once, and council at its next session should perfect the system under which professional bondsmen are accepted as security for those accused of crime.

THE WORLD'S WINDOW

By PIERRE VAN PAASSEN.

The New Dynasty.

The Serbs after the murder of King Alexander Obranovitch, as related yesterday, called to the throne Peter Karageorgevitch, a fine and gentle old man, who lived in exile in France, where he gave lessons in English and did translation for the newspapers. Peter heard the news from his barber. He was surprised, because he was known to be a republican and had even translated John Stuart Mill's book, "On Liberty," into Serbian. Peter Karageorgevitch was a descendant of Kara George (Black George), a phenomenal figure in Balkan history, half-patriot, half-bandit. Peter went to Serbia and led his country through two wars, one against the Turks and one against Bulgaria. He was king when the World War broke out, but he was an old man by then. His eldest son, who should have been king, was deprived of his rights of succession by the Serb government when he assassinated his valet. Then Alexander became heir-apparent. He and his father could not get along.

There were two parties in the army. Alexander had the leaders of one of the parties assassinated during the war, at Salonica, on the pretext that they had hatched a plot against him. This proved to be falsehood later, but the men were dead. In his last days King Peter lived at a lonely house outside Belgrade. One of his former prime ministers, who also lives in Paris and whom I know well, told me that he visited the old king once. He had no sheets on the bed, only a horse blanket, and his bare feet were sticking out from under the cover. He refused to be taken to the royal palace to die.

King Alexander also has a sister. She married a Russian grand duke, whom the bolsheviks assassinated. Yet, she said, she hated her brother more than the reds. And now the brother is dead also, and a little boy, Peter, is king.

Woe the land, says the Bible, whose king is a child!

Political Consequences Of Murder.

King Alexander came to France to discuss the alliance of his country with Paris. Since Poland's desertion into the German camp, Yugoslavia was also beginning to waver. Louis Barthou, France's foreign minister, had rushed off to Belgrade to see the king and persuade him to remain in the French system of alliances. Alexander seems to have agreed in consideration for a large new French loan. The details of this loan were to be discussed in Paris, when the king was suddenly shot down at Marseille.

There was also a rumor that Monsieur Barthou would try to mediate between Yugoslavia and Italy, who are at loggerheads over Dalmatia and the Adriatic coast. The Italians claim this territory should by rights go to them. But the Jugoslavs have it and won't let go so easily.

The last few weeks there has been a violent campaign in the press between Rome and Belgrade. There is no question but Italy supported both the Macedonian terrorist organization and the Croatian national extremists or fascists inside Yugoslavia. The object was, of course, to weaken Yugoslavia. It is one of the members of that second organization, whose head is a certain Dr. Pavelovitch, who assassinated the king.

The death of Alexander is a triumph for Italy. For Yugoslavia which is by no means a homogeneous nation, but three different nations, the Serbs, Croats and Slovenes, was held together by Alexander's strong-hand methods. He had abolished parliament and jailed most of the Croatian leaders. The Hitler organization of Germany also stood in close relationship to the Croatian terrorists, it has been revealed by Geoffrey Fraser, well-known British journalist.

PROLONGATION OF YOUTH.

Page Ponce de Leon. Dr. Goldberger, of the United States public health service, discovered the cause, prevention and cure of pellagra. He pointed out that "latent pellagra" is common among children. By that he meant a condition in which the child's diet contains enough vitamin G (formerly called B2) to prevent the development of the characteristic pellagra, yet not enough to prevent less obvious nutritional deficiency. Other scientific workers have concluded that optimal nutrition requires a far more liberal intake of vitamin G than is necessary to prevent pellagra. Various investigators have reached similar conclusions in reference to other vitamins. The late Dr. Hess called attention to the frequency of minor health disturbances in infants or young children who receive enough vitamin C to prevent scurvy but not enough to maintain the highest degree of health and well being.

It is not unreasonable to assume that a moderate deficiency of vitamin B in the diet may be a factor in the causation of many vague maladies that are commonly called "neurasthenia." A total lack of this vitamin is the cause of polyneuritis (beri-beri).

Sherman, whose book "Chemistry of Food and Nutrition," is a classic of modern science, and Ellis came to the conclusion that the period between the attainment of maturity and the onset of senility is greatly lengthened by an optimal allowance of vitamin G.

There you are, old-timers. Senor de Leon would have been interested in this.

M. B. Strauss and W. B. Castle in the Loudon Lancet July 17, 1932, were of the opinion that vitamin G deficiency may be a factor causing the degeneration of the lining of the stomach, which results in pernicious anemia.

Now let us see where one can get vitamin G.

Beef liver and dried yeast are of almost equal potency in vitamin G. Beef heart and kidney, or calf liver and kidney are excellent sources. Eggs, round steak, dried peas, spinach, watercress, carrot tops, beet greens, turnip tops, malted milk, lettuce, raw cabbage, milk, scalded milk, condensed milk, evaporated milk, skim milk, dried milk, ice cream, buttermilk, cream are all good sources of vitamin G.

You know how it is with your gas and oil eater. If you install a gadget for energizing the gas you save at least 25 per cent on gas and oil bills. Then if you use only so and so's brand you save another 25 per cent. If you keep well posted and do as the great unknown engineers advise, presently your car will run beautifully for nothing, or somebody's lying.

Say you get lots of vitamin G and begin to feel, look and be, oh, you estimate how much younger. Then take a firm grip on your own bootstraps and begin treating yourself to a nip of iodin every day for a month each quarter of the year. That is, take one drop of tincture of iodin in a drink of water every day in October, January, April and July. That should bring you back to about 1912.

News Behind the News

By Paul Mallon

HANDSHAKE WASHINGTON, Oct. 26.—The bankers shook hands with the president, all right, but if you look behind it you will suspect that the president held out four fingers on them.

To all outward appearances, the affair was as inspiring as the Kentucky state emblem of two clasped hands over the motto: "United We Stand, Divided We Fall." Everyone now seems willing to let it go at that and forget it.

The wiser heads among the bankers convened privately in a hotel room, which was not smoke-filled, soon after President Roosevelt concluded his speech. They agreed they had not received what they wanted from the president, and that they would have a job next day keeping the 3,000 delegates pacified.

But this, they agreed, was a task which had to be done, so they performed some fast missionary work in discordant quarters. They were sufficiently successful to force the unanimous adoption next day of a compromise resolution pledging co-operation but demanding a balanced budget.

As far as history is concerned, it will be recorded that the bankers played a successful Romeo to Mr. Roosevelt's Juliet on the White House portico, but, backstage, the real scene bore some aspects of the rolling-pin relationship of Jiggs and Maggie.

AMAZEMENT Banker eyes started popping when the president was introduced by Jackson Reynolds, renowned archbishop of rugged individualism. Banker ears went deaf with amazement when they heard Mr. Reynolds taking the side of the New Deal.

One of Mr. Reynolds' friends on the platform nudged a companion during the address and said: "I'll bet Jackson doesn't believe a word he is saying."

As a matter of fact, they were all just about as dumbfounded as you would be if Mr. Hoover suddenly should make an appeal for the New Deal.

That feeling was increased by the fact that Mr. Reynolds was not an official of the convention. His name had not appeared on the program for the evening.

DEDUCTIONS Investigation on the inside discloses that Mr. Reynolds prepared his speech hastily the afternoon of the meeting. Mr. Roosevelt also began the preparation of his speech between 2 p. m. and 3 p. m. the afternoon of the meeting.

Up to that hour, rumors were current in the best-informed quarters that the president's speech to the bankers would be confined to a few words of greeting.

It would not take a bank examiner to figure out what must have happened backstage on that. Apparently the White House did not intend to deliver a good speech unless it received a good one in return, a good one from an outstanding foe of the New Deal.

RESULTS The reason both sides were willing to go through under such circumstances is that the psychological result will be good. Conflicts are costly for both sides. Co-operation is more constructive.

Many of the bankers were still peeved about Mr. Roosevelt's reference in his previous radio talk to the way British bankers had co-operated with their government. The leaders of the convention, however, were determined to see that the best possible appearance of peace be preserved. They realized they could not get a balanced budget or currency stabilization now, but they had hoped for more of a promise than the president gave them. They concealed their disappointment with hopes that their ultimate objectives could best be served that way.

The practical results are yet to be determined. That is, no one expects that the banks now are going to start lending money where they did not lend it before, as they express it. They are not going to finance fly-by-night promoters in speculative business schemes.

But if, for instance, the administration relaxes bank examinations, there is a possibility that the banks also will relax their lending restrictions commensurately. A step in that direction already has been taken. Loans marked "slow" by examiners formerly had to be called. Now there is another classification, "Slow but good."

For these reasons, the wisest of the bankers and the shrewdest of the New Dealers consider the handclasp a good one, even if a few fingers were missing.

LOANS There is evidence that bank loans are slowly increasing. The federal reserve had figures a few days ago showing that the outstanding loans of member banks were $300,000,000 more than at this time last year. When you consider repayments in that period, the figure is not bad.

The FDIC has been collecting figures on total loans for all banks. Recently these amounted to about 15 billions. No comparable figure for last year is available.

SPEED Mr. Roosevelt's best speech-writing adviser came to the White House two days before the banking speech. He is supposed to have a suggested advance draft which Mr. Roosevelt worked over.

That is why the president was enabled to write such a carefully rounded speech in such a short time.

Another Letter From a Bald-Headed Dad to His Red-Headed Daughter

By Robert Quillen

My dear Louise:

What would you think of a girl who spent her idle hours shaping and sharpening a weapon and explained her industry by saying: "Some day I shall love and marry the man of my dreams, and this is the weapon I shall use to wound and cripple him."

ROBERT QUILLEN.

Seem rather savage, wouldn't it?

Well, selfishness is that kind of weapon, requiring years in its preparation, and the blade of it cuts to the heart strings.

Marriage is something more than a swell church wedding, with envious girl friends serving as bridesmaids, and a shower of rice at the finish.

It is the beginning of a life-long partnership with an understanding comrade who is dearer than life itself, and the success of it depends altogether on mutual faithfulness to a vow that never is spoken.

It is the vow of unselfishness

The man says in his heart: "Henceforth I shall sacrifice myself for the good of this woman and our children." And the woman vows to sacrifice herself.

As a matter of fact, little sacrificing is done; for when two people are ager to please one another, neither will accept an advantage at any cost to the other.

A marriage of selfish people isn't a marriage at all, for two people can't be one while they remain two.

If both are selfish, neither deserves any sympathy. Whether they live on together in a contentious bedlam or each goes his separate and selfish way, they reap what they sow and the harvest is just.

But a patient and unselfish man, whose love and sense of duty keep him loyal to a selfish woman, is trapped unfairly by his own decency.

You know a few of this kind. Watch them break year by year as they lose heart and hope and give up all ambition. It isn't a pretty sight.

Unselfishness can't be learned at the altar, nor can years of marriage teach it. It must be a mental habit, and you are building habits now.

Selfishness is like a poison, and it isn't a sporting thing to poison the knight who fights for you. Love, DAD.

the total tonnage basis, instead of by categories.

The United States representatives, Norman H. Davis and Admiral William H. Standley, feel that the Japanese procedure has been entirely unsatisfactory, an opinion shared in some degree by the British. The latter have said the situation makes any early approach to an agreement impossible.

Both the British and the Americans, irked at Japan's failure to disclose technical details of her plan, feel they know little more now than they did unofficially before the start of the conversations.

An authoritative American source today pointed to Japanese policies at Shanghai and in Manchuria as proof of the way Japan can act when she believes her security menaced, adding that Japan entered Manchuria and fought the Chinese at Shanghai on the plea of self-defense.

An excuse of this sort could be offered for abandoning the conversations here, he continued. The Americans feel such action would greatly please the Japanese public.

FAIR ENOUGH

By WESTBROOK PEGLER

Brain-Storm Trust Dazes Old Pegler. SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 26. — Your correspondent has just reeled away from an interview with Upton Sinclair and some members of his brain-storm trust. The world is going around and around. There are wheels spinning in space, an old windmill, bolts and nuts and, everywhere in the confusion, there is an enormous Dane named Hjalmar Utzebeck, a writer, who is a composite of Jack London's Wolf Larsen, George Fitch's Ole Skjarsen and the mighty Popeye, the sailor, of the moving pictures.

Mr. Sinclair lay on one of the twin beds in his room with a sporty topcoat pulled over his thin shanks. Mr. Utzebeck stood immense beside the bed, turning now and again to scribble on a sheet of hotel stationery, remarking that he just had to finish this letter which he was writing.

Mr. Sinclair is so frail and Mr. Utzebeck so huge that the mighty man seemed to regard himself as protector of the Mahatma. Mr. Sinclair, on the other hand, regarded him as a pet giant. Mr. Utzebeck, at a word from Mahatma, might jump off a high roof or lick a roomful of policemen. But, at another word, he would retire to his corner and be still. There was great devotion between them.

Humble Toilers Among the Pecans Also present was a lawyer named John Packard, who comes out of Chicago but lives in Los Angeles. There were a couple of other members of Mr. Sinclair's brain-storm trust but they refused to spell out their names when it came down to that. They were only humble toilers in the pecan grove who desired no personal publicity but only wished to serve Mahatma Sinclair.

One was a fallen-away capitalist who said he had seen his business go down and down until he was now thoroughly converted to the epic plan of economy. He had been a manufacturer of come-apart houses in the days of the Los Angeles land boom. He had also acquired a bank. He had, furthermore, owned a moving picture company in Hollywood. He seemed strangely exultant as he told of the terrible decline of his come-apart house factory under capitalism. He mentioned the crash of the bank with a pride which confused your correspondent's confusion. And he was positively boastful when he came to the failure of the moving picture plant.

Ready to Help Come-Apart Man The come-apart man said Mr. Sinclair had one fine trait in common with President Roosevelt. Mr. Sinclair was willing to consult expert intelligence on technical matters. The triple-crash man was there as an economic expert, qualified by failure in manufacturing, finance and art. He was there as a patriot, too, willing to sell to the state of California his burdensome and almost inoperative factory for the manufacture of canned bungalows.

There was no mistaking his strange delight in failure.

"And do you want to know something else?" he exclaimed brightly. "President Roosevelt has been running in the red in his personal finances, too. What do you think of that?"

The fourth member had little to say for himself. He, too, was an outlander who came to California 20 years ago but found San Francisco inhospitable. He conveyed a suggestion that San Francisco had given him the bum's rush. He therefore continued on to Los Angeles, where he found the local temperament congenial and went native. He was still somewhat miffed to recall that the native Californians of San Francisco had treated him coolly. The mills of the gods grind slowly, but now, after 20 years, he was sitting in at a mighty conference of the outlanders who are bent on changing California's government to a socialistic what-not.

The Old Mahatma Is Most Elusive Mr. Sinclair is as elusive as smoke. Your correspondent asked him to name a few projects among the many which he has undertaken in his time which had been carried through successfully. Well, he replied in a frail voice, there was Helicon Hall, but that burned down. Then there was his publishing business, but he had been compelled to appeal to the public for money to support that one. Still, he insisted brightly, he had finally paid off all the borrowed money. Yes, but after all the years in the publishing business he was still a poor man. The venture was a commercial one and it had not paid. He drifted on like a faint odor in a light breeze. Now you smelled the merest whiff of a definite answer in his conversation. The next instant it was gone and the discourse was only words. He was still a believer in his old principles but he wasn't a socialist any more. He hoped to see his barter plan extinguish the profit system in California. That would communize the state, but he wasn't trying to change the form of government.

At this point the large Mr. Utzebeck broke in. He would explain it in simple terms. Mr. Utzebeck took the middle of the floor and began to wave his enormous arms in circles, explaining the epic plan in terms of great wheels spinning in space and windmills, bolts and nuts.

Nuts seem an appropriate note on which to conclude today's installment.

REVISIONS SOUGHT IN AIR MAIL LAWS

Limitation of Lines to One Contract Route Assailed at Hearing.

By GLADSTONE WILLIAMS.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 26.—representatives of more than a half dozen Pacific coast cities appeared before the federal aviation commission today to urge revision of provisions of the Black-McKellar act limiting air mail companies to one primary route contract.

Amendment to the act was sought for the purpose of permitting United Air Lines to continue operation of its present Pacific coast route from San Diego to Seattle. The present act has been construed to mean that the company, also operating one of the primary transcontinental routes, will have to give up the Pacific coast service not later than March 1, next.

Because of its pioneering activities and co-ordinated service with a regular transcontinental line, United Air Lines should be permitted to bid on a contract for continued operation of the Pacific coast route, representatives of the several cities agreed.

Plea for Dirigibles.

At the same time, the federal aviation body, headed by Clark Howell, Atlanta publisher, heard recommendations from Warren Burke, of the San Francisco Chamber of Commerce, for government construction of four or more dirigibles for naval and commercial service.

Declaring that the delay of American capital in entering the lighter-than-air transport field will cause the United States to lose markets abroad, the San Francisco man asked that two of the huge air ships be leased for commercial service to the orient after being constructed by the government. Two or more new dirigibles should also be built for the navy, he recommended.

"Considering the progress that has been made in the navy's active airship program," Mr. Burke said, "we believe that the lighter-than-air program should be continued. We feel that because of the great length of the Pacific coastline and the fact that a continuous patrol of the entire north Pacific area will be necessary in the event of a war with an enemy whose fleet may be operating in this area, we should develop all the possible means of naval scouting."

Importance of Speed.

Stressing the proposal for construction of commercial airships, the witness said, "the speed of the airship in the transport of passengers, mail and express, would be of great economic importance to this country in our foreign commerce."

The commission, which was named by President Roosevelt to recommend to congress not later than February 1, next a definite governmental policy on aviation, both commercial and military, also heard representatives from chambers of commerce of San Diego, Oakland, Sacramento, Seattle, Bakersfield, Denver, Kansas City and Tulsa.

Practically all of the city representatives joined in a recommendation for the establishment of some permanent government commission with control over civil flying activities.

Views of the Pacific coast cities on the proposed amendment of the Black-McKellar act to permit continued operation of the Pacific coastal route by United Air Lines were reflected in the statements of Edwin Wilcox and Leroy Goodrich, of Oakland.

Only Eligible Operator.

"There is not at present any other operator serving the Pacific coast territory equipped to be capable of performing this service except the operator of another transcontinental route, which likewise is barred from carrying air mail on the Pacific coast under provisions of the act," the two Oakland representatives said in briefs read to the commission.

"If the provisions of the air mail act here under discussion are permitted to become effective, the Pacific coast will be deprived of existing efficient and dependable coastwise mail-passenger plane service. New companies with hastily acquired equipment and inexperienced pilots and crew will be drawn upon to take over the coast air mail route with inevitable confusion, delays and almost certain loss of life and mail."

Making the same appeal, for revision of the act, Arthur S. Dudley, of the Sacramento Chamber of Commerce, said: "A new contractor could not hope, even after months of operation, to gain the present volume of express and passenger business now enjoyed by the present Pacific coast operating organization."

Called "Injustice."

Chairman Howell, while making it plain he was not attempting to speak for the rest of the commission, told Mr. Dudley he felt the act permitted an injustice in prohibiting transcontinental lines from holding a contract for the coastal service.

R. D. Garrett, representing the Kansas City Chamber of Commerce, made the following recommendations to the commission:

1. Unified control of military aviation.

2. Reorganization of flying clubs under government auspices and instructions by army officers.

3. Co-ordination of all civil aviation activities under one governmental commission.

4. Adoption of federal program for development and maintenance of airports and airways.

5. Government encouragement to program of aeronautical instruction in colleges and universities.

6. Expansion of government program for aviation research.

7. Adoption of program of national air defense.

Program Indorsed.

Indorsing the program recommended by the Kansas City man, George Collison, manager of the Denver Chamber of Commerce, urged re-establishment of the air mail route between Denver and Kansas City, which was discontinued after the cancellation of air mail contracts.

William Holden, appearing as a representative of the Tulsa Chamber of Commerce, criticized the present system of bidding on air mail contracts, declaring that many of the companies are forced to sacrifice something in equipment to make up for the loss in revenue suffered from rates incorporated in low bids filed to make certain of regaining their old contracts.

Other witnesses heard Friday included T. F. Bomar, of the San Diego Chamber of Commerce; L. S. McIntyre, of the Seattle Chamber of Commerce, and E. J. Symmes, of the Bakersfield Chamber of Commerce.

The commission, after recessing over the week-end, Monday will hear Dr. Hugo Eckener, of the Graf Zeppelin Corporation in Germany; P. W. Litchfield, president of the Goodyear-Zeppelin Corporation of Akron, Ohio; Assistant Secretary of Commerce E. Y. Mitchell, and Dr. G. W. Lewis, of the national advisory committee for aeronautics.

ECKENER AND HOWELL HONORED AT DINNER

WASHINGTON, Oct. 26.—Dr. Hans Luther, German ambassador to the United States, entertained at dinner last night in honor of Dr. Hugo Eckener, head of the German Graf Zeppelin Corporation and Chairman Clark Howell, of the federal aviation commission.

Dr. Eckener, now visiting in the United States, will appear before the Howell commission next Monday.

Other guests at the dinner, which was held at the German embassy, included Secretary of Commerce Daniel C. Roper; Edward P. Warner, vice chairman of the federal aviation body; Assistant Secretary of the Navy Henry Roosevelt; Assistant Secretary of Commerce E. Y. Mitchell, and Admiral Ernest J. King, chief of the naval bureau of aeronautics, and members of the German embassy staff.

HOLLYWOOD IN PERSON

By MOLLIE MERRICK.

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., Oct. 26.—Mystery attended the arrival of an airplane from the east coast with two passengers, a quiet-looking chap and one who obviously was a detective. Airport hangers-on were still more intrigued when the pair was met by the local chief of detectives, Joseph Tahlor, Detective Captain B. C. Lynn and a strongly-armed motor escort.

Pilots and passengers alike wondered if some famous criminal was being shifted from one prison to another. The quiet man with the suitcase was hurried into a car, surrounded by motor cops, and followed by a car bristling with more police. The sirens sounded and the little man was hurried off in the direction of Hollywood.

They finally halted but not at the jail. They halted at a Hollywood studio where Travis Banton enthusiastically greeted the little man with the suitcase. Everyone heaved a sigh of relief and relaxed . . . all but a few cops who still hung around.

Then the little quiet man's identity became known. He is William Howard Hoeffer, of New York and Paris—famed gem expert who had over $1,000,000 worth of gems in that suitcase. The jewels are to be worn by Claudette Colbert for her role in "The Gilded Lily."

I had known, for quite a few days, that the De Mille collection of jewels was being milled over with the idea of using some of them in this picture—for Colbert must be bejeweled to a fare-you-well. But, it seems, none of the famed pieces was sufficient for the needs of this role. The jewels will be rented for the making of the scenes—the insurance company undoubtedly will see that the studio lot is thoroughly policed and Mr. Hoeffer possibly will not draw a full breath until he returns the gems to the safe from which he took them.

Professional Hollywood knows little or nothing about the 38-year-old Hollywood extra, Rafael Lopez de Onate, who has captured the 19-year-old heart of Ellen McAdoo. His film operations have been small, yet, because everyone who gets into a picture atmosphere immediately is dubbed a film actor, he comes into the category.

Postponement of the wedding plans of the two and a deep silence from all concerned in the matter would lead one to believe that even if De Onate proves his contention that he is a full-blooded Spaniard, the wedding might still not come off due to financial difficulties.

LEADING CITIZENS JOIN GREAT 'CADE FOR HISTORIC TRIP

Tavern and Gold Room, most famous night club south of New York, with every feature and every ingredient that goes to make a night club the place of fun and good times that it is.

Many to See Game.

Then, on Saturday morning, following breakfast, the motorcade will head to Jacksonville to witness the University of Georgia Bulldogs battle the University of Florida Gators on the gridiron Saturday afternoon.

It is, beyond question, the finest motorcade program ever arranged since the first event of its kind was run, by The Constitution, from Atlanta to Columbus in 1909.

Geoffrey King, secretary to Mayor Thomas Gamble, of Savannah, and Charles Day, manager of the DeSoto hotel, Savannah headquarters for the motorcade, arrived in Atlanta Friday night after a pathfinding and contact tour up the new highway.

They reported enthusiasm high in every city along the route and predicted a minimum of 400 cars in the line by the time the 'caders reach Savannah.

Refreshments are going to be provided, they report, at Louisville and Statesboro, as well as the lunch which will be served by 1,000 G. S. C. W. girls at Milledgeville.

Entertainment Free.

There is no charge for registration and the program of events, including lunch at Milledgeville, and the entire two days of jollification at Savannah also is without charge. All it will cost the individual motorcader for a three-day holiday unsurpassed for fun and good fellowship, will be the gasoline for his car and the hotel bill at Savannah for himself.

Registrations continued to grow Friday both at the official headquarters on the sixth floor of The Constitution building and at the Atlanta Motor Club, on West Peachtree street. There are well over a hundred cars now registered from Atlanta alone and it appears certain that this city's quota, of 200 cars, will be filled before the close of registration next Wednesday night.

Numbers, stickers, badges and other insignia will be furnished all cars and passengers free.

Under the joint sponsorship of The Savannah Morning News and The Constitutions, the "Four Capitals" motorcade of 1934 already has given full assurance that it will be the largest and most enjoyable event of its kind in the history of Georgia.

MILLEDGEVILLE PREPARES FOR MOTORCADE THRONG

MILLEDGEVILLE, Oct. 26.—Mayor J. A. Horne outlined before a meeting of citizens tonight plans for Milledgeville's part in the entertainment of the four capitals motorcade which passes through here next Thursday, November 1.

Milledgeville is expecting several hundred motorists to come here from Atlanta and Savannah, Georgia's present and first capitals, to have lunch on the trip celebrating the completion of an all-paved route from Atlanta to Savannah. The route, one of the most historic in the state, not only connects four of Georgia's capital cities, but also is the route followed by Sherman in his march to the sea.

The visitors will be welcomed to Milledgeville and then conducted on a tour of the interesting historical points. Old Oglethorpe University, the capitol building, the old governor's mansion, Fort Wilkinson, Rock Landing and other places are on the itinerary. At noon a barbecue dinner will be served on the G. S. C. W. campus. More than 1,000 Georgia girls will serve this dinner. Committee chairmen named for the entertainment of the motorcade are: Dr. Guy Wells, T. H. Clark, L. S. Fowler, Otto Conn, W. H. Arnall, J. L. Sibley, Colonel Joe Jenkins, Captain Frank Mansfield and Marion H. Allen.

Seller of Marijuana Is Given Year on Gang

Convicted of selling marijuana cigarets, J. L. Criner, Atlanta hot-tamale vendor, was given a sentence of 12 months on the chain gang Friday by Judge Lee B. Wyatt, of LaGrange, presiding in the emergency division of Fulton superior court.

In passing sentence, Judge Wyatt remarked that it is not within his power to punish the offender according to the seriousness of the crime committed.

"You are guilty of an offense of great seriousness," the court said. "When you sell a man this stuff you do him more harm than if you took a gun and shot him down. The latter act, in fact, would be merciful by comparison with the former."

The court expressed regret that under the present law in the state a misdemeanor punishment only might be imposed.

U. S. Trials Sought For 8 Held as 'Reds'

Trial of eight negroes under indictment for circulating insurrectionary literature may be transferred to the federal courts as the result of a petition for removal filed in superior court Friday on behalf of the negroes.

In the petition asking that the cases be transferred to the United States district court, John Geer, negro attorney, contends that the law under which the defendants are indicted deprives them of the equal civil rights guaranteed by the fourteenth amendment to the national constitution, deprives them of the right of free speech, and is in violation of the due process clause of the amendment.

It is further charged that Fulton superior court is prejudiced against the petitioners.

Woman Is Exonerated In Fatal Bottle Fight

Charges against Mrs. Clara Cobler, 29, of 129 Ellis street, N. E., growing out of the death of Frank Spencer Heath, 37, of 83 Cain street, N. E., were dismissed Friday afternoon at a hearing in recorder's court.

Witnesses testified that Mrs. Cobler had an argument with Heath in a lunchroom on Courtland street near Ellis on Thursday night a week ago. They said Heath first struck her with a beer bottle and that she then hit him over the head with a soft drink bottle, fracturing his skull.

Heath died at Georgia Baptist hospital on Monday night, with neither hospital attaches nor the funeral home knowing the cause of his injury, police stated.

Relatives of Heath reported the case to police on Wednesday and City Detectives J. P. Wood and E. I. Hildebrand arrested Mrs. Cobler on disorderly conduct charges.

Heath is survived by his wife, a son, John Gober Heath; a daughter, Mrs. Homer Lockhart, and his mother, Mrs. W. E. Heath. He was buried in Greenwood cemetery on Wednesday afternoon.

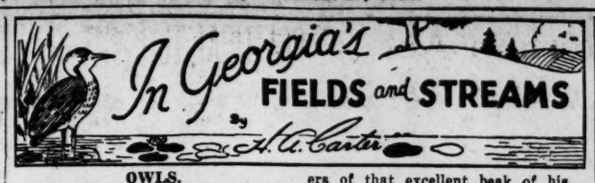
GOV. ALLEN'S WIFE SHOWS IMPROVEMENT

HOT SPRINGS, Ark., Oct. 26.—(AP) Mrs. O. K. Allen, wife of the governor of Louisiana who is visiting here with her husband, was reported resting much better this morning after having suffered a severe heart attack yesterday.



OWLS.

The other morning something woke me up. It was still dark. I have no luminous face on my alarm clock, for I have no alarm clock; therefore I cannot tell what time it was. There was nothing whatever unpleasant about this particular wakening, however, for I heard almost at once the calling of a screech owl outside my window. It went through its entire range of calling, from the high-pitched, tremulous call to the scarcely audible whicker, and I fell asleep again with the fading of the last note.

The job our hawks tend to by day is taken over by the owls at night. That is to say, they are instrumental in keeping rodents under control. If we had no hawks and owls, we would be in a sorry mess, for the rats and mice would be into and onto and over everything in just a short time.

Take a few of these fellows as individuals. The barn-owl, for example. Here is the perfect example of a friendly cuss. He has a nice face. Affection fairly radiates from his great dark eyes, yet he is called—spare the mark!—the monkey-faced owl. Is that any way to treat a friend? I think not. Yet the name stands. His colors are beautiful, the feathers about the face are models of decorum, for they stay in their places regardless of what happens. He is the most amiable owl I know, provided you do not interfere with his personal liberty. Then he is all too willing to demonstrate the powers of that excellent beak of his.

Then there is the great horned owl. Instead of the dark eyes of the barn owl, here we have glaring, yellow eyes, in which black pupils stand out with dreadful intensity. He looks like what he is; a blood-thirsty marauding night pirate. Not an owl to be caressed. Have you ever seen one ruffle his feathers and hiss at you, ending the hiss in a rapid clicking of the bill? Go back several years and read Ben Ames Williams' splendid novel, "Paschal's Mill." There you will find a true characterization of the great horned owl. You may have all of them I get.

On the other extreme is the little screech owl, who so kindly introduced the subject today. I have even caught these little fellows in butterfly nets, on auspicious occasions. But then, my butterfly nets have been used to scoop up vicious snakes and to capture bats that had unwittingly strayed indoors. We will return to the owls later.

DECCA RECORDS, INC., OPENS BRANCH HERE

Decca Records, Inc., of New York, announces the opening in Atlanta of a branch office and distributing salesroom.

Because of the strategic position which Atlanta occupies as a focal point for the entire southeast, it was selected as the distributing point for this section. This is in keeping with the company's policy of giving to its dealers, in the territory, fast and prompt delivery service, it was pointed out by Warren Fitch, manager of the local branch.

Decca Records, Inc., manufactures and distributes high quality phonograph records, portable phonographs, needles and accessories. For the first time in the history of the business it is possible to secure the finest recordings of such leading popular artists and entertainers at a price heretofore believed impossible.

Among the more popular artists recording for Decca exclusively are included Guy Lombardo, Bing Crosby, Mills brothers, Ted Lewis, Casa Loma orchestra, and many others.

According to Mr. Fitch, by a new method of recording every tone is now brought out in the Decca records. By using the finest material available needle scratch has been eliminated to a minimum and the result is a fine, clear, true reproduction of the recording artist.

The Decca branch here is one of three located in the south. The main southern branch is at New Orleans, La., and another branch has recently been established in Dallas, Texas. The local office and salesroom is located at 225 Pryor street, S. W.

Retrial Given Mother Who Killed Baby Here

Mrs. Ethel Peeples, given a life sentence after a non-jury trial for the murder of her infant daughter last April, was granted a new trial Friday by Judge Virlyn B. Moore.

Mrs. Peeples based her appeal for a new trial upon affidavits that she had not consented to a trial without a jury.

The 14-month-old baby died from poison administered by the mother in a downtown hotel. Mrs. Peeples later tried to take her own life by drinking some of the poison, and Grady hospital physicians testified at her trial that she has suffered permanent injuries which may eventually prove fatal.

Len B. Guillebeau, the woman's attorney, said that upon the retrial of the case, a defense of insanity at the time of the crime will be offered.

UTW WILL EXTEND STRIKE SANCTION

Cases Where Operators Fail To Honor Settlement To Be Approved.

NEW YORK, Oct. 26.—(AP)—The emergency board of the United Textile Workers of America agreed tonight to sanction strikes in mills where no adjustment is made by managements after settlement of differences is effected by representatives of the national labor relations board.

Sanction of the use of the strike weapon will be given by the UTW to unions asking for such permission only after efforts at adjustment of differences between workers and employers has been made by the labor relations board, it was announced.

Members of the emergency board would not predict how many strikes they expected to result from their action because "the union has no desire to forecast what may be the possible number of recalcitrant employers."

Vice President Francis J. Gorman, leader of the recent textile strike, said 363 mills had been reported to the national labor relations board for discrimination against strikers and of these, 100 cases had been adjusted.

Reports from all parts of the country, the board said, indicated "a surprising degree of hostility to the terms of the Wynant board report and a defiance of the terms of strike settlement approved by President Roosevelt."

The states and number of reported discriminations against strikers by mills was reported by Gorman as follows:

North Carolina, 90; Georgia, 58; South Carolina, 61; Mississippi, 3; New Hampshire, 2; New Jersey, 8; Tennessee, 5; Texas, 1; Massachusetts, 15; Alabama, 22; Oregon, 2; Pennsylvania, 46; Rhode Island, 14; Indiana, 1; Maryland, 2; Maine, 8; Connecticut, 14; Vermont, 1; Virginia, 2; West Virginia, 3; New York 8.

Insull, Insolvent, Paid Self Dividend--Charge

CHICAGO, Oct. 26.—(AP)—The Corporation Securities Company, in which investors lost $100,000,000, paid Samuel Insull $252,547 in cash dividends, the Insull mail fraud jury was told today.

As another sensational touch to their case against the Chicago utility executive, prosecutors produced evidence that he and other directors voted one of the dividends on November 2, 1931, with $53,539 going to 11 of the men on trial.

That was two and a half months after the corporation became insolvent, according to earlier testimony by government accountants. The charge was regarded as having important bearing on the civil suits which piled high against Insull during his unsuccessful flight to Europe in 1932.

DEKALB LAUNCHES HOUSING CAMPAIGN

The preliminary work of the better housing campaign in DeKalb county has been completed and the organization, under the direction of Mrs. W. S. Kell, manager, is moving into the second phase of its development.

Many new booths and exhibits of model equipment have been added to the display room in the headquarters of the organization in Decatur.

The employment bureau, a part of the better housing campaign, already has begun to function, and it has been necessary to enlarge the provisions made for this phase of the work.

Public-spirited men and women of Decatur are assisting in the house-to-house canvass, and every effort is being made to co-operate with the federal program for stimulating business, giving work to the unemployed and restoring the homes of DeKalb county.

Abuse of Moratorium Act Charged by FCA Heads

WASHINGTON, Oct. 26.—(AP)—An assumption that unscrupulous attorneys were persuading reluctant farmers to take advantage of the Frazier-Lemke debt moratorium measure was made today by farm credit administration officials.

The Frazier-Lemke bill, vociferously indorsed by Senator Huey Long, provides machinery for a drastic scaling down of farm indebtedness under federal court supervision and for a five-year moratorium for the debtor if the attempt at adjustment fails. He must go bankrupt to get the moratorium.

Financial interests regard the measure as an example of radical and dangerous legislation and several speakers said so at the Bankers' Association meeting.

Reports to the FCA are that the increase in the number of cases filed under the Frazier-Lemke act in the second and fourth land bank districts are attributable largely to a systematic effort by some lawyers to get business.

Officials said also there were indications that some conciliation commissioners were co-operating heartily with the attorneys in the effort to persuade debt burdened farmers that the Frazier-Lemke bill was the quickest and best method of relief.

Conciliation commissions have been set up in virtually every rural county in the country. A preliminary to the moratorium sections of the Frazier-Lemke bill is an attempt to scale down farm debt through the commissions, and the fee is increased if the farmer pleads bankruptcy. Officials said that many of the commissions were composed of only one or two members.

The second land bank district includes Pennsylvania, Virginia, West Virginia, Maryland and Delaware; the fourth, Ohio, Indiana, Kentucky and Tennessee.

Officials said they had no accurate data on the actual number of cases under the Frazier-Lemke bill but their information was that comparatively few farmers had instituted bankruptcy proceedings outside the two districts. A possible exception, it was said, was the seventh district, which includes North Dakota, Minnesota, Michigan and Wisconsin.

Apparently, however, for FCA attorneys said farmers in the seventh were using the legislation without outside instigation.

The constitutionality of the Frazier-Lemke act is in doubt. Only one federal court has passed upon it, Judge Chestnut in Baltimore holding it unconstitutional in that it confiscated property without due process of law.

From the first, the FCA has been cold toward the Frazier-Lemke bill. Soon after the president signed the measure the administration issued an explanation of the bill along with the explanation, however, went what amounted to an outright plea to farmers to use the legislation only as a last resort.

The FCA has loaned over $1,000,000,000 to farmers in an effort to prevent foreclosures. Any wholesale resort to the Frazier-Lemke act would cause the administration to lose heavily. Insurance companies and other concerns holding farm mortgage paper would lose also.

"We feel that the farmer should try voluntary means first," Scott Hovey, general counsel of the FCA said today. "We feel too that a great many farmers are being misled as to the applicability of the the Frazier-Lemke bill.

FCA officials said that apparently there was nothing the justice department or other federal executive agencies could do to prevent lawyers from soliciting Frazier-Lemke business. This was a matter, it was said, that was up to the federal courts, themselves, or the bar associations.

Ellen McAdoo Not Yet Wed To Philippine-Born Actor

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 26.—(AP)—Ellen Wilson McAdoo isn't married, didn't obtain a license today, and doesn't know when she will marry.

The 19-year-old granddaughter of the late President Woodrow Wilson returned home early today to deny she had eloped with Rafael Lopez de Onate, Philippine-born film actor.

She came back after leaving home at 11 a. m., yesterday without saying a word to anyone. She explained her absence by saying she and De Onate had been calling on friends.

"I have no statement to make other than I made before," said Miss McAdoo. "Our marriage plans are indefinite."

She had been threatened with disinheritance by both her mother and her father, Senator William Gibbs McAdoo if she goes through with the wedding to the 38-year-old actor. Her parents are divorced.

Miss McAdoo and De Onate had planned to return to Riverside today to obtain their marriage license.

The county clerk at Riverside, without saying who, if anyone, had asked him not to issue the license, said he would not give the couple a license until De Onate had conclusively proven he was not part Filipino. De Onate claims he was born of Spanish parents in Manila.

William H. Neblett, law partner of Senator McAdoo, declared the marriage was "definitely off—permanently off."

While Miss McAdoo was absent from her home last night, Neblett said "it seems Ellen has made up her mind to do something foolish." Mrs. Eleanor Wilson McAdoo, the mother, a daughter of President Wilson, was prostrate as a result of the situation, Neblett said.

Swain Seeks To Recover $9 'Courting' Expense

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Oct. 26.—(AP)—John Esmond spent $9 buying doughnuts, coffee and ice cream cones for Madeline Green during the 15 months he courted her, she told the clerk of the district court today, and now that their romance is ended, he wants the $9 back.

She came to court to stop Esmond from collecting from her. The clerk explained he could do nothing until Esmond began proceedings to recover his $9.

CHANGES ARE SOUGHT TO SPEED UP TRAFFIC

Elimination of downtown stop signs and making Forsyth and Pryor one-way streets will be proposed at the police committee meeting next Thursday night by Councilman Joe Berman.

Berman said by substituting "slow" signs for stops in the downtown area traffic would be speeded up. He declared the same degree of safety would be provided and that with Forsyth and Pryor made one-way streets from Peachtree to Trinity avenue a great deal more traffic could be handled in the section. His proposal will advocate allowing only southbound traffic on Forsyth and northbound on Pryor.

POLITICAL TENSION SPREADS IN AUSTRIA

Schuschnigg Orders Regulation of Tax Rights of State, Cities.

VIENNA, Oct. 26.—(AP)—Political tensity throughout Austria, bringing direct forecasts of new civil strife, increased tonight as the government proclaimed new legislation regulating taxation rights of the federal, provincial and municipal governments.

Facing renewed activity by socialists, communists and nazis and anxious over conflict between Austria's two "private" armies, Chancellor Kurt Schuschnigg's cabinet nevertheless stirred up an old hornets' nest by taking from the provinces and municipalities their right to share in taxes collected in Vienna.

Veteran political observers, declaring tensity greater than that of July when nazi rebels assassinated Chancellor Engelbert Dollfuss, pointed to conflict between the heimwehr (fascist home guard) headed by Prince Ernest von Starhemberg and Schuschnigg's Catholic storm troops as particularly ominous.

The trouble between the heimwehr and the storm troops reached the point of open clashes today at Innsbruck and Graz. In the former city, police were called out.

Socialist and communist opposition, although suppressed, continued to harass the government. They were reported planning separate uprisings in upper Austria and upper Styria. It was reported troops which had been massed near the Yugoslav border since the Austrian insurrection in July had been sent to the upper sections.

Mrs. Roosevelt Flays Administration Critics

SYRACUSE, N. Y., Oct. 26.—(AP)—Hammering a fist into the palm of her hand and raising her voice, Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt, first lady of the land, speaking here today, struck back at critics of the federal administration who contend it is "wasteful"

"I do not question for a minute," she said, speaking before 1,200 women, "that there are wastes in certain places. You do not always get the proper persons to get things done. But an honest effort is being made."

"I have yet to hear a man or woman candidate who has told you they could do or would do" (if in office in place of persons now there).

Mrs. Roosevelt came here for an address in behalf of her long-time friend and business associate, Mrs. Caroline M. O'Day, democratic candidate for representative-at-large.

DETECTIVE SCORED FOR TAKING PISTOL INTO U. S. COURT

H. M. Speer, railroad detective, learned conclusively Friday that firearms are barred from the federal district court when Judge E. Marvin Underwood strongly reprimanded him for carrying a pistol with him to the witness stand. Judge Underwood then ordered the detective to leave the courtroom and "park" the weapon.

W. A. Yates, another detective, came under Judge Underwood's criticism for arresting Jim Burton, one of the negroes on trial at the time, without a warrant and bringing him here without extradition papers. Yates contended that the negro came willingly, and Judge Underwood thereupon scored Yates for bringing him in handcuffed.

Three negroes, Willie Stone, of West Point, Ga., and Jim Burton and Shorty Brown, of Lanett, Ala., were on trial charged with stealing merchandise from a freight car. Judge Underwood directed a verdict of not guilty for Stone and Burton, while the jury acquitted Brown.

Tech Meets Tulane Today; Georgia Faces Mighty Alabama

ALEX TO START RESERVE TEAM AGAINST WAVE

Regular Backfield Will Open Game at New Orleans.

By Jimmy Jones.

EN ROUTE TO NEW ORLEANS WITH GEORGIA TECH FOOTBALL TEAM, Oct. 26.—Having tried starting first teams and second teams in recent games with little success, Coach William Alexander of Georgia Tech, decided on a mixture of both for the game with Tulane tomorrow afternoon in dear old Noo Orleans.

Coach Alexander announced in the first press conference, held in the smoker of the Crescent Limited tonight, that he was going to start a combination of his first and second string line and his regular backfield with the exception of left halfback, where Lawrence Hays, a sophomore, is set down.

"This, while it may prove nothing, will at least do no worse than some of the lineups we have started in the last two games in which we have failed to score a touchdown," Alex remarked with a good humored grin on his face.

OLD RUSES.

The Tech coach, in effect, was going back to some of his old ruses along this line which have worked out beautifully. It will be recalled that two years ago, he started a second team against a powerful Alabama club at Grant Field and that the second team played 45 minutes of a possible 60 and defeated Alabama, 6 to 0.

In other games, he has followed similar procedure with excellent results. So if you should hear and read where Coach Alexander's latest "Duke's mixture" has played a pretty fair game of football, don't be surprised.

The lineup which will take the field for Tech before an enthusiastic (you can bet on that) Tulane homecoming crowd, is as follows:

TECH'S LINEUP.

Thompson and Gibson, ends; Lindsey and Eubanks, tackles; Brittain and Beard, guards; Lyons, center; Roberts, quarterback; Hays, left halfback; Perkerson, right halfback, and Phillips, fullback.

Of the above group, Lindsey, Brittain and Beard are starting their first games for the Gold and White.

While Tulane is a top-heavy favorite to win from Tech and should do so, by all means, it is entirely possible that Tech might play its best game of the season, despite its quota of injuries. Past history shows that Tech, in recent years, has been the underdog against the Green Wave, but usually has managed to give the Louisianians quite a game of it.

Last year, Tulane was considered lucky indeed to win, 7 to 0, on a soggy field in Atlanta, chiefly because Bucky Bryan, one of those flaming sophomores, took a kickoff, burst through an aperture in Tech's downfield sweep and stepped 101 yards through the slime for a touchdown. Barney Mintz kicked the extra point and that decided the game. But the statistics show that but for that lone masterpiece of Bucky's, Tech outplayed the Wave on ground gained very badly.

TULANE LUCKY.

The year before—1932—was another instance wherein Tulane was a little lucky. It will be recalled that Tulane scored a questionable touchdown in the last minute of play when Don Zimmerman took the ball through the line, fumbled and lost the ball, but that it was ruled a legal touchdown, which gave Tulane the ball game, 20 to 14.

While Tech has had her share of the injuries, it appears that Coach Ted Cox's Tulane squad is not in what is called rousing good shape. It seems that Moss, allegedly the best o' the Tulane tackles, is out of the game, having been hurt in the melee with Georgia last Saturday, and that Bob Simon, a guard, may have to move out to tackle to take his place.

Coach Cox also had planned to use Marion Monk, a reserve guard, in Simon's place in case he went through with the shift but it develops now that Monk also has been injured, letting him out.

Harry Martinez, the alert commentator of the New Orleans States, comments on Coach Cox's troubles as follows:

MOSS INJURED.

"The injury to Bill Moss and the general shortage of reserve tackles, may force Ted Cox to shift his 'Handy Andy' man, Bob Simon, around Saturday to improve his tackle situation in the game with Tech. It is almost impossible to expect two tackles like Roy Ary and Bob Tessier to play through 60 minutes of the kind of football the Greenies will get from Tech. It is an old saying that the tackles are in for a busy afternoon when they're opposing the Jackets.

"As long as Coach Cox had Bill Moss, he was able to worry along with one outstanding substitute. The big sophomore was coming through fine but he hurt his arm in the Georgia game and that might keep him out for the rest of the season. Stroble was converted from an end to a reserve tackle and now he's the only one with experience available."

But no one will feel sorry for Tulane, despite this handicap. It is a known fact that Coach Cox has decidedly more experienced linemen than Coach Alexander.

TULANE FAVORED.

The odds will remain heavily in favor of Tulane, for Tech hasn't scored a victory over the Greenies since 1928, when Coach Alexander's Rose Bowl team took their measure, 12 to 0. The Jackets have lost consistently since and by large scores, with the exception of the muddy battle of '33 and the tough game of '32. The worst defeat at the hands of Tulane was suffered on the last visit to New Orleans in 1931, when the Wave blocked several punts and won, 33 to 0.

The year before that, 1930, Tulane won, 28 to 0, so you see that if Tech should win tomorrow it will go down along with the miracles of 1934. That Tech may play the Wave fairly close, in case Dean rejoins the squad and kicks well, is not at all an impossibility.

The New Orleans sports writers, strangely enough, give Tech a very good chance. Here is what Mr. Martinez says:

A GOOD LINE.

"Tech has a good line above all. Ted Bank, one of Tulane's assistant coaches, says the Tech line is better than Florida's forward wall. The Atlanta scribes wrote last week deploring the line weakness of the Georgia team, but if they come any stronger than Harry Mehre's line we would like to see them. One writer went as far as to say that if Tech.

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., Oct. 26.—Georgia's football team will answer a whistle at Legion field Saturday afternoon in what is viewed, in the quarters where the cold, cold dope is scanned, as a forlorn fight.

They are to move down to meet the charge of the Crimson-clad host from Alabama, undefeated and looking ahead to a claim for the national championship.

Has Georgia a chance? Does human endeavor ever transcend the cold facts and figures and make a mockery of force and power?

Come with me to the sweltering benches of the Georgia stadium, newly dedicated to Dr. S. V. Sanford, who has just left the field carrying a loving cup presented by his fond and admiring alumni.

There is a great perspiring mob there, lured by the appearance of Yale—the first time Yale has ever been south.

Yale—for decades synonymous with football—had come down.

Over in a corner are Harry Mehre's lambs—about to be led forth to the slaughter—sacrifices on the altar of glory.

The whistle shrills and the Georgia boys, most of them sophomores from the red clay hills of their native state, surge down the field.

The gauge of battle hangs for a moment and then the fight begins to go the other way. Ten minutes before there was not one man, woman or child of the 30,000 people present who believed that Georgia had a chance to win. There may be one or two now who say they did. But they did not.

The tide turns. A new name leaps into headlines—Catfish Smith—Herb Maffett—Red Leathers—Red Maddox—Ripper Roberts—all these crowd in and more.

Georgia won, 15 to 0. Yale never had a chance.

This is but one item in the archives of the game called football. There are dozens of them.

Last week Georgia was beaten, 7 to 0, with five minutes left to play. Georgia had the ball on her one-yard line. Two plays later Georgia had scored.

This is another item. There are hundreds of them. There is scarcely a football field that does not have its story.

ALABAMA TO WIN.

Alabama should win tomorrow. I think Alabama will win from Georgia. But the thing is not settled in advance. There is no need to surrender before the game.

It may be that Georgia's crippled team may be defeated soundly and by a number of touchdowns. It may be they will fight all the way and lose by a point or one touchdown.

Or it may be that destiny has a little surprise and Georgia will win. There is no telling about these things.

And so, I say—Alabama to win.

But these things are never sure, because they deal with human emotions and human frailties and inspiration. There are times when the odds of two to one are even. I will not fall in a faint if Georgia wins, even though I do not see how it can be done.

ALABAMA'S ELEVEN.

Alabama presents the ideally balanced football team.

It has four great ends, four great tackles and good guards and centers. It has three backs who can pass and kick; one who plunges well.

It has three backs who have what the boys call "a wrinkle." Which means that elusive side-step, change of pace, which stamps the ideal back.

It is skilled on defense against running plays and passes. It is resourceful.

It has, and this is important, one outstanding back whom all teams fear in Dixie Howell.

The advantage of one outstanding back is this—he may run for a touchdown any time he gets the ball. If the opposition concentrates too much on stopping him, some other good back will get away and win the ball game.

Georgia has such a back in Glen Johnson. Georgia has another in Cy Grant, who can't play today because of injury.

Alabama is superior at ends and tackles. And you may mark this down as one of the infallible rules of football. And that is there never was a great football team without great tackles and ends. Especially tackles.

Tulane, Alabama, Vanderbilt, Duke and L. S. U. are undefeated at this writing. The south hopes, of course, that one of these teams will go on undefeated to give the section some representative in national ratings.

Alabama appears to have the better chance.

But one never can tell—those who pull the strings in the dance of life do some peculiar things. And some ironic things.

SATURDAY'S GAMES.

Duke is likely to beat Tennessee on Saturday, but there again comes the old rub. How far did Tennessee climb and how far did she fall back after that Alabama game? That was the contest the Tennesseans wanted.

Tomorrow they will either be back or still disappointed by the loss to Alabama. If they are back, they will beat Duke. I'd pick Tennessee by a slim margin.

Vanderbilt, undefeated and untied, meets L. S. U., with two ties against her. Vanderbilt has the better pass game, but L. S. U. has the most power. Somehow I lean toward power in this game. L. S. U. by the margin of a field goal.

Tulane should win from the crippled Georgia Tech team by a comfortable margin. Tech may rise, so to speak, and make a great showing. But cripples can't beat well men and a good little man will lose every time to a good, big man.

Tech will make a gallant fight. I know that. But Tulane has the guns.

Gainesville Beats North Fulton, 49-6

GAINESVILLE, Ga., Oct. 26.—Gainesville High defeated North Fulton here today 49 to 6, scoring practically every time they got the ball. North Fulton scored late in the first half when McAdams returned a punt 60 yards.

Gainesville made 12 first downs to North Fulton's four, and 280 yards to North Fulton's 80 from scrimmage.

PRAISES BUZZ.

PHILADELPHIA—Paul Scull, who scouted Navy for Pennsylvania, seems to think Buzz Borries, midshipman star, is quite a football player. He says Buzz is the best ball toter since "Red Grange, and considering what Grande did against Penn that's a big compliment.

COACH SCOUTS.

BLOOMINGTON, Ind.—Although Indiana has an open date on its football schedule this week, Coach Bo McMillin won't be idle. He is going to watch Iowa and Minnesota play to get a line on two future opponents.

Bonebenders Beat Druid Hills, 33 to 0

Howard Allen and James Fuller led the Bonebenders to a 33-0 victory over the Druid Hills Pioneer football team at Piedmont park Friday afternoon.

Bobby Goree played well for the losing Pioneer team.

Cedartown Beats Rome High, 12-7

CEDARTOWN, Ga., Oct. 26.—Cedartown High defeated Rome High here, 12 to 7, in one of the most thrilling football games ever played on the local gridiron.

DUCKY POND.

NEW HAVEN—Ducky Pond, Yale coach, apparently has solved a lot of problems this season but not all.

"Our main job," says Ducky, "is to keep the team clicking along and to keep the players in the winning frame of mind."

CRONIN IS SOLD TO BOSTON SOX; WILL PILOT CLUB

Price Paid for Senator Manager Between $125,000 and $250,000.

By Dillon Graham.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 26.—(AP)—Clark Griffith, master trader of the big leagues, jingled between $125,000 and $250,000 in his jeans today—a result of baseball's biggest swap in years—and looked for a pitcher and perhaps an infielder to buy with his surplus cash.

The gray-haired president of the Washington American league club sold his young two-year manager, Joseph Cronin, to the Boston Red Sox for a huge but unannounced sum and arranged the deal so that Cronin, who recently married Griffith's adopted daughter, would be playing manager of Boston under a five-year contract.

The price Griffith got for Cronin was variously estimated here from $125,000 to $250,000. The Washington Star said the price was twice as much as Colonel Jake Rupper paid for Babe Ruth in 1919—$125,000. But to all questions Griffith would say only that Cronin brought more than any other player in the history of the game.

NEEDS MANAGER.

By the sale, however, Griffith knocked a huge hole in his infield and brought down upon himself the problem of selecting another manager for his Nationals.

Although he got Lynford Lary, the Boston shortstop, in the trade, and may use him, baseball experts here rather expect Griffith to use Lary in another swap that will bring a stronger player to the Senators.

Listening to Griffith, the Senators' catching department and the outfield already are formidable enough. The "old fox" concedes, however, that he is in the market for a top-notch pitcher or two and may need a first baseman if Joe Kuhel, who was out part of last season with a broken ankle, fails to regain his past form.

"I have no definite plans now regarding other deals or as to who will be manager next year," Griffith said today. "The Cronin deal has come about so suddenly that it has left me without any immediate ideas."

RUTH MENTIONED.

Asked is Babe Ruth might be chosen as field boss of the Senators, Griffith said he hadn't considered Ruth or any other baseball man for the job. Rumors here were to the effect that Stanley (Bucky) Harris, deposed Boston manager who led the Senators to a world championship in 1924, might be Griffith's choice. Several of the veteran Washington players, as well as Walter Johnson, now manager for Cleveland, were spoken of as possible successors to Cronin.

"We hope to strengthen enough to have a good ball club in the race next year," Griffith said. "I want to buy a player or two, but it is uncertain that the ones I would like can be obtained."

Pleased with the monetary exchange and with the opportunity the deal offers Cronin, Griffith was saddened by the thought of parting with the youngster, who for seven years played with the Nationals, led them to a pennant two years ago and only last month married Griffith's adopted daughter, Mildred June Robertson.

"It was not the tremendous cash that prompted the deal," Griffith said, "it was the opportunity it held for Cronin. Joe was in on the deal and it was consummated with his full knowledge and consent."

TECH, AUBURN FRESHMEN TIE

By Elmer G. Salter.

AUBURN, Ala., Oct. 26.—Well-coached freshman elevens of Auburn and Georgia Tech battled to a 7-to-7 deadlock here Friday afternoon in the best freshman game seen on Drake field in several years.

After Jordan, giant Tech right end, partially blocked Hitchcock's punt in the first quarter, the Baby Jackets took the ball on Auburn's 25-yard line. Edwards scored for Tech on a beautiful sweep around right end behind perfect interference in which Kenneman shone brilliantly. Jones converted with a perfect kick from placement.

In the second quarter, bad handling of Perry's long punt, paved the way for Auburn's touchdown. Scarbrough took a pass from Ellis on the 14-yard line and raced to within one foot of the goal. Ellis carried the ball over right tackle to score on the third play and then converted the point.

PUNTING DUEL.

The remainder of the game was a punting duel between Hitchcock and Simms with he Tech freshmen leading in ground gained with seven first down to Auburn's three.

Sivell, Whitten and Hart, linemen, played well for Auburn, while McKissick and Bogue were the outstanding ends. Both were good on defense. In the backfield, Auburn's best were Hitchcock, brother of Auburn's former All-American, Ellis, and Suydam.

For Tech, Jones and Jordan played well at end and Nixon, center, was the outstanding lineman.

BEST BACKS.

Kenneman and Edwards, backs, turned in splendid exhibitions of ball-carrying.

HARTWELL WINS.

HARTWELL, Ga., Oct. 26.—Hartwell defeated the Lincolnton team here today, 33 to 0. Hartwell had the heavier team and reached midseason form in blocking. The Hartwell team plays Washington here next Friday and expect a hard game.

A Pair of Petrel Aces

Same Leslie, left, is shown passing the ball to Sully Sullivan in somewhat the manner fans will see the pigskin change hands on certain plays today when Oglethorpe meets Howard at Hermance field. Leslie and Sullivan are halfbacks and very shifty. Each has scored touchdowns this season. Oglethorpe is a slight favorite to win its fifth game of the season this afternoon. The kickoff is at 2 o'clock. Staff photo.

Rotary Teams In Third Round

The Rotary sandlot football tournament is soaring away. The third round in the contest will be played Saturday at 9 o'clock at the Tech Rose Bowl. The teams, so far, have played excellent football. From various parts of the city, the fighting youngsters have come determined to win the championship.

Much to the surprise of the followers of the tournament; the 120-pound league is putting on the best show. These boys seem to have the spirit and from these ranks will come many prospective football stars. The Decatur Bantams, the Rinkidinks and the O'Keefe Panthers are in the lead. The Decatur Bantams are favored, but they will have to battle down some strong opposition. In the 135-pound league it looks like a runaway for the Northwest Yellow Jackets. So far no apt rival has appeared to challenge their position on the mount.

The percentage ration of the teams in the tournament, up to date, is as follows:

Emory Freshmen And Juniors Meet

Freshmen and Juniors will fight it out for the temporary leadership in the intramural football league at Emory this morning at 9 o'clock. Both teams won their first game of the season last week.

The Juniors came through in expected style last Wednesday, beating the Seniors, 13-0. The Freshmen surprised with their last-minute, 7-6, victory over the Sophomores.

The Juniors have a heavier and better co-ordinated team than the Freshmen and should win handily. They showed much power in the game last week. The Freshmen have very little power and only a mediocre passing attack. It was their desperate passing attack which finally clicked which won for them in their first game.

Cairo High Wins Over Camilla, 49-6

MONROE UPSETS RIVERSIDE, 13-7

MONROE, Ga., Oct. 26.—Red Barron's Monroe Aggies sprang a major upset of the Georgia Interscholastic Athletic Association here this afternoon with a well-earned 13-to-7 victory over Riverside Military Academy. Monroe's win eliminated Riverside from the undefeated ranks and toppled the Gainesville team's chances for a a chance at the state prep championship.

Monroe had lost to both Boys' High and G. M. A., but came back with two fine games to tie the undefeated Tech High eleven and turn back Riverside.

The Aggies outplayed Riverside from the opening whistle and came dangerously near scoring in the first few minutes of play. Monroe tackled harder, took advantage of every opportunity and played the greatest game of the season to break Riverside's winning streak.

Riverside scored first in the third quarter when O'Conner, behind some excellent interference and fine blocking, ran 55 yards to Monroe's 6-yard line. Carlin bucked the ball over on the next play and Agee kicked the extra point. It was Riverside's only real scoring chance of the game, though its forward pasing attack was a continual threat to Monroe.

Monroe fought back and scored a few moments later. The Aggies received a punt on their own 23-yard line. Three plays gained but 7 yards and Black punted 42 yards to O'Conner, who fumbled and Mizell recovered for the Aggies on Riverside's 28-yard line. A pass failed and Fontane passed 28 yards to Mizell over the goal for the touchdown. Mizell kicked the extra point to tie the score.

Late in the fourth period, Monroe received a punt on Riverside's 38-yard line and drove to another touchdown. Allred's 25-yard dash to a touchdown was the feature of the drive. The extra point was blocked.

Down the Alley

A splendid inter-city match is to be played by two duckpin teams tonight at Blick's at 7:30 o'clock.

J. Carson Pritchard will bring his Carrollton All-Stars from Carrollton, Ga., to Atlanta for a five-game match with the Tidwell Company, an all-star Atlanta group.

George Tyler, D. I. Tignor, Carl Tidwell, Walter Lawson and A. J. Sossong will bowl under the Tidwell banner. Johnson, Carter, Kayler, Feeley and Hamrick will furnish the essential competition under the Carrollton name.

Also, the handicap duckpin sweepstakes will be staged on the regular basis with cash prizes to the winners. The event begins at 8 o'clock and entry may be made right up to game time.

4,591-to-1 Shot Paid at Newbury

NEWBURY, Eng., Oct. 26.—(AP)—The biggest double ever paid on an English track, 2,296 pounds (roughly $11,500) today went to the lone bettor who picked the winners of the two races in the daily double at Newbury race track.

The bettor wagered only 10 shillings ($2.50), which made the bet a 4,591-to-1 shot.

Colored Foes Meet Here Today

Morris Brown and Morehouse College will fight it out on the gridiron today at Ponce de Leon park, when the two noted colored elevens will decide who will play Clark University for the city negro championship. The game will start promptly at 2 o'clock.

They are traditional rivals and spirit among the student body of the two schools is at fever heat.

Advance ticket sale has been surprisingly high. Several added features, the singing of the students and the cheering of both sections, not to mention the Morehouse band, are scheduled.

Morris Brown, undefeated since the late fall of '32, will enter the game as a slight favorite. The return of Lamar to the Tigers' backfield reduced the margin of superiority, and it is expected that the two backfields will be about even.

Both squads tapered off training Friday afternoon with hard signal drills that lasted way after dark. Coach Williams, of Morehouse, gave a long lecture after the practice.

Thomasville Wins Over Bainbridge

THOMASVILLE, Ga., Oct. 26.—The Bulldogs of Thomasville High kept their slate clean today and advanced another step toward south Georgia football honors by defeating Bainbridge Bearcats, 13-0.

After missing one scoring chance early in the game, the Bulldogs scored their first touchdown in second period when Letchas passed from Thomasville's 35-yard line to Pearce, who took it on Bainbridge's 40 and raced to a score. He was aided by good interference. Letchas dropkicked the extra point.

Second score came in the fourth period when Letchas fought his way nine yards for a touchdown on the fourth down.

Thomasville's passing attack kept the ball in Bainbridge territory most of the game. Letchas twice attempted field goals but failed. Neither team was able to gain consistently on running plays and both resorted to passes.

Roosevelt Reduces Game Refuge No. 1

WASHINGTON, Oct. 26.—(AP)—President Roosevelt has issued a proclamation reducing the area of the Cherokee national game refuge No. 1 in Tennessee.

The area to be maintained as a game reserve will include all of the watershed of Big creek, Short creek and Tolliver Shanty branch, tributaries of the Ocoee river.

The proclamation specifies that the boundaries of Cherokee national game refuge No. 2 in Georgia are not changed in any manner.

RESERVE BACKS MAY OPEN GAME FOR BULLDOGS

Mehre Considers Holding Regulars Back. Line Is Okay.

By Ralph McGill.

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., Oct. 26.—While Georgia's coaches professed to be hunting around for a little Dutch boy who would stick a fist in the dyke and hold back the Crimson Tide here tomorrow, there was some alarm in the Alabama quarters.

You see, confidentially, Georgia and Alabama are to play a football game at Legion field Saturday afternoon. The Bulldogs of Georgia arrived here early tonight and the Crimson Tide of Alabama will flow in here in the morning in Pullman cars.

There is an advance guard here from Alabama and they are a bit popeyed about the Bulldog team. The dope has the Tide winning by a margin of two touchdowns at the least, but what do I find but the Alabamas in a state of the upset jitters?

That Tulane game of last week in which Georgia almost tied, and played the Tulanes even almost all the way, losing, 7 to 6, scared the Alabamas nigh to death.

'BAMAS JITTERY.

They do not expect to lose but they are so frightened at the prospect they are not pleasant people with whom to be. I left them for the Georgia people who are also hoping. But they are not jittery about it. I can endure grimness more than the jitters.

Harry Mehre, who has the look of the condemned prisoner awaiting the ham and eggs, isn't certain what he will start against the Alabamas.

The line is fairly certain with Turbyville and Wagon at ends, West and Opper at tackles, Brown and Johnson at guards and McKnight at center.

But Mr. Mehre is dallying with the idea of starting a reserve backfield and then throwing another one in there and alternating with them as much as possible.

He needs to do that because the thing Georgia coaches fear most is the team wearing itself out in the first half and then lacking the actual physical strength to hang in there and stop them in the second half.

RESERVE STRENGTH.

Alabama can play only 11 men at one time. That is quite true. But they have capable reserves. So they may keep pouring them in there when one tires.

Georgia is no anaemic creature. The Georgias have some reserves. And good ones. But not as many.

If this game is to be played on the basis of manpower and nothing else, Alabama will win by several touchdowns.

There are many possibilities in football. The best team does not win more than three-fifths of the time. The other two-fifths will find a team not quite its equal winning the game by inspiration and what we call the breaks in the game.

GEORGIA HOPING.

Georgia coaches are frankly hoping to catch Alabama a bit flat. The Alabama eleven undoubtedly reached some sort of a peak for the Tennessee football game. It remains to be seen if the team is great enough to keep up the pace for the game tomorrow.

Georgia hopes not. Georgia hopes to put an inspired team on the field which will take the fight to Alabama, make the breaks and take advantage of them.

There will not be a more elusive halfback on the field than Glen Johnson, the boy from Savannah. It remains to be seen whether he will get the necessary blocking.

Georgia's pass game is probably almost as effective as Alabama's.

Georgia's line lacks reserves and is especially weak in that department at the guard positions. Injuries have also depleted the lists of ends and backs. Cy Grant, one of the south's best, will not play. He is out for two more weeks because of an injury in the North Carolina game.

CITY IN FEVER.

The city is in a fever of excitement. There are bands, whistles, yells, shouts, drunks and plain happy people without stimulation.

This game caught on. The Georgia showing against Tulane has packed the town. One may expect 20,000 people out at Legion field tomorrow.

Frank Thomas, with Dixie Howell, Young Boozer, Demmy Demyanovitch, Joe Riley and other great backs; four splendid ends, four big tackles and a good line, should win by two touchdowns.

But there are other possibilities, dim though they be.

Meanwhile the hysterical city, promising to sleep but little tonight, awaits the whistle.

STETSON FACES MERCER TODAY

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., Oct. 26.—(AP)—Coach Herb McQuillan and his squad of 31 Stetson Hatters billeted tonight at undisclosed quarters to chart final plans for a clash here tomorrow with the Mercer Bears.

While the Hatters gathered full strength for the battle, Mercer lamented the loss of their sterling quarterback, Allan Bloodworth, who was injured last week when the Bears fell before a stronger Furman University team.

However, there was some consolation in the announcement that Bloodworth will be replaced by "General" Robert E. Lee, who was a sensation in Mercer's games with the Army and the Navy last season. Lee's progress this year has been considerably hampered, however, with injuries.

Neither team has had very much success so far this season, and each is counting on victory in tomorrow's clash.

Cruickshank Leads In Virginia Tourney

HERMITAGE CLUB, RICHMOND, Va., Oct. 26.—(AP)—Losing only one stroke to par while most of his competitors were losing four, Bobby Cruickshank, with a score of 216, led his nearest competitor by five strokes after 54 holes of play in the state open golf tournament today.

Benny Loving, Petersburg professional, posted 221 after faltering coming home and taking a 76, while Billy Howell, with the day's only par-equaling performance, scored a brilliant 73 for a 54-hole total of 222, and third place.

Cards Will Train At Bradenton Again

BRADENTON, Fla., Oct. 26.—(AP)—The world champion St. Louis Cardinals will again hold spring training at Bradenton.

R. M. Beall, chairman of the city's general baseball committee, announced today he had received a letter to that effect from Sam Brown, president of the St. Louis club.

It will be the Cardinals' sixth consecutive training season here.

WARNER CHANGES.

PHILADELPHIA—If Ward Cuff, of Marquette, doesn't beat Temple this week, he at least can have the credit for shaking Pop Warner loose from one of his regular coaching systems. Warner usually concentrates on attack with little time for defense but reports of Cuff's punting ability made put in considerable time on defensive formations this week.

Petrels Established as Favorite Over Howard This Afternoon

BIRDS PREPARE FOR HARD FIGHT AT HERMANCE

Game Begins at 2 O'Clock. Half of Bulldog Squad on Injured List.

By Jack Troy.

The fellows who give an odd and take it away have established Oglethorpe as a slight favorite in today's game with Howard College at Hermance field. The kick-off is at 2 o'clock.

They're basing pools and other take-a-chance propositions on the fact that Howard got cuffed around considerably in the Mississippi game, which Howard won. And looking back they're figuring the physical toll the Mississippi State, Alabama and Loyola games extracted from the Bulldog ranks has weakened the team.

Oglethorpe's Petrels have come through five hard games with four victories and few injuries. There are only a couple of players who have injuries that may prevent them from starting. But even these players will be ready to play if necessary.

Howard's defending S. I. A. A. champions, coached by Shorty Propst, got in town last night after a short drill in Birmingham.

PROPST SILENT.

Coach Propst, who predicted his Bulldogs would beat Ole Miss last week, was reluctant to speak out on the outcome of the game with Oglethorpe today.

"I am afraid that injuries in the Mississippi game have cut down our chances to beat Oglethorpe. I only have three regulars who are in good shape. They are Berger, guard; Johnson, tackle, and Christian, a sophomore back. We hope to give Oglethorpe a battle. I'd like to say we will beat the Petrels. But injuries prevent such a prediction."

The Oglethorpes aren't taking very much stock in the injury stories. They are prepared for, perhaps, their toughest game of the season.

Howard's great defense has been acclaimed the length and breadth of the south. And Oglethorpe expects to face it at full strength.

MASSEY HURT.

Alumni Coaches John Patrick and Harry Wren are uncertain as to whether Ed Massey, who has played full time in the five games, will be able to start. He has a leg injury. McCullough has been understudying him in the scrimmages and has looked very good.

The starting team otherwise will be the same with the exception of right end. Rudy McNamara will start in place of Tubby Thompson.

Oglethorpe's starting backfield is subject to slight revision, but is expected to take the field as announced.

Captain Frank Mitrick, who is muscled like an Aurochs bull, is Oglethorpe's offensive leader. He also is one of the staunchest players on defense in his role of backing up the line.

Mitrick is figured as the only back with sufficient power and drive to cope with Howard's rugged forward wall.

AERIAL ATTACK.

Oglethorpe's plan of attack will be based on wide sweeps, reverses, spinners and a multitude of passes and kicking.

Belton Clark and Jack Puryear, who will alternate at quarterback, will handle the kicking and passing. It is expected they will be able to match the fine kicking of Snell, 182-pound left end, who kicks for Howard.

If Oglethorpe chances to hit upon a combination that can gain on ground plays, passes will be few and far between. For Howard, it is reported, has thrown up a very capable defense against aerials.

The Petrel line is figured slightly inferior to Howards, but the offense is considered stronger. And for this reason Coach Patrick will venture nothing behind an even chance for his team. The breaks, he thinks, will have considerable to do with the outcome. Kicking, he is certain, will play a vital part.

HALF INJURED.

Howard brought 24 players to Atlanta and reported half of them injured in some way or another. But in the squad were listed such stars as Harbin, halfback; Penrod, fullback, and Allen, quarterback, who are ready to go.

The Gold and Black student body held another rousing pep session last night and is all set to back up the Petrels to the ultimate today.

Player spirit is at a peak. The mental and the physical angles are in Oglethorpe's favor. But Howard can shoot everything in this game because the remaining games, outside of Birmingham-Southern, are not so terribly tough.

It is one of the most promising battles Atlanta fans will see this season. The kickoff is at 2 o'clock at Hermance field.

ALEX TO START RESERVE TEAM

with her fine line, had Georgia's backs to give the Jackets an offense, it would make a great team. We doubt very seriously if Tech has a better line than Georgia, but even if it is on par with the Bulldogs, it will provide a busy afternoon for Tulane.

"Jack Phillips, Tech's fullback, gave Tulane lots of trouble last year. He had the Jackets near the Greenies' goal line a couple of times and Ted Cox has lots of respect for him. The Jackets will have a boy in the backfield who was out of last year's Tulane-Tech game with injuries who is said to be pretty good. He is "Sundial" Martin. Besides, "Shorty" Roberts is a pretty good back himself. The Jackets might not have many outstanding backs but it looks as if Coach Alexander has at least one set that appears better than average and as long as they're in the game they'll uphold the Jackets' end."

This year's Tulane team, however, is unbeaten in four games with Chattanooga, Auburn, Florida and Georgia. And here are some of its accomplishments with the football:

FOES ARE CHECKED.

The Green Wave in four games this year has scored 13 touchdowns compared to three for the opposition.

The Greenies also have collected 11 out of a possible 12 extra points against none for the opposing teams.

The Greenies made 54 first downs in the first four games compared with 35 for the other side and gained 1,164 yards from scrimmage against 471.

They have fumbled 13 times in four games and recovered 11 including two of the opposing team's fumbles.

Centers—Lyons, Preston, Shaw. Guards—D. Wilcox, J. Wilcox, Beard, Brittain, Warner, Fitzsimmons.

Tackles—Williams, Lindsey, Eubanks, Smith. Ends—Gibson, Katz, Thompson, Boulware, Sackett. Quarterbacks—Roberts, Moore, Byrd. Halfbacks—Perkerson, Martin, McKinley, Hays, Street. Fullbacks—Phillips, McKay, Tharpe.

Davises Victors In Father-Son Title Shoot

By Jack Troy.

C. L. Davis, hot as the smoking gun he held in his hands, broke a 50 straight—his first at skeet—to enable him and his dad, H. O. Davis Sr., to win the father-and-son championship of the Southern States skeet shoot yesterday afternoon at the Capitol Gun Club.

Davis broke his first straight on the new elevated field in the face of a bitter wind that howled down the hollow leading to the field. His dad broke 21. This gave them a narrow lead on the field.

When they switched to the old field the wind still was making the targets duck and skip like an adagio dancer with the palsy.

ANOTHER STRAIGHT.

But Davis, cool as the wintry wind, cracked down for another straight and his daddy added a 24 to his 21 to sew up the race at 95x100. They represented the West End Gun Club.

Dan Glenn Sr. and Dan Glenn Jr., the fine sportsmen from Birmingham, finished second, with a score of 86.

There wasn't a single winner in the practice class event. Archie Comer, the pilot, and C. L. Davis tied in Class A with 50 straight.

There was a five-way tie in Class B. Dan Glenn Jr., Joe Wofford, Tom Cassels, W. C. Freeland, of the Selma Gun Club, and Clyde King deadlocked with 47.

T. O. Smith and Jimmy Calhoun tied in Class C, each with 44.

All ties will be decided on the first 25 targets of today's championship.

JONES PACES PROS.

Jack Tway led the way in the .410 championship. Tway broke a .45. Benson Freeman Jr. and Hugh Nunnally were tied for second at 44 and Clyde King Jr. was third at 42.

Buddy Jones paced the pros in the two events. Jones broke a 48 in the class shoot and was followed by the venerable Walter Huff, of Macon, at 45, and Abe Moore, another fine sportsman, at 44.

Buddy Jones also topped the pros in the .410 race, breaking 42. George Hatcher was runner-up at 39.

Hugh Nunnally broke the first straight on the elevated and consequently won a free round. The only other straights of the day were those made by Davis and Comer. The wind was right in there.

The closing events today will be the southern states championship and the junior event. Firing will begin at 10 o'clock.

Dave Murry, of Birmingham, the south's finest skeet official, is the official referee. He may appear very strict but he is all there when it comes to judging a shoot in the proper manner.

TRAUNG, CHENEY MEET IN FINALS

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 26.—(AP)—California, already in possession of three of the world's greatest golfing titles, was assured of the woman's western championship today when two of the Golden State's stars advanced to the final round.

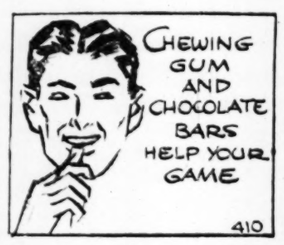
Mrs. L. D. Cheney, seven times a state champion and twice winner of the western title, defeated Mrs. W. E. Shepherd, Los Angeles, 5 and 4, while Miss Dorothy Traung, 20-year-old San Francisco girl, turned back the middle west's last hope, white-haired Mrs. Melvin Jones, of Chicago, by the same score.

Although Miss Traung was a finalist in the national championship this year, Mrs. Cheney, playing the finest golf of her career, was favored to win tomorrow over the 36-hole route.

The western crown will be added to the California collection of trophies brought home by Olin Dutra, national open champion, and Lawson Little, national and British amateur champion.

The San Gabriel woman played brilliant golf, turning the first nine in 36, two under par, and won the match on the fourteenth, three under.

GOLF FACTS



Annette Kellerman once told me that she used to eat small sandwiches or chocolate bars during the performance of her long distance swimming feats.

It gave her more energy. Miss Kellerman asked me to try it while playing long matches on the course. I did and found that I could be fresh at the end of 36 holes.

The energy wasted by the average player calls for some little stimulant by the time he has gone eight or ten holes. Eating a small piece of plain chocolate or even chewing gum will furnish that pep needed to make a crisp swing.

The act of chewing on something also helps the nerves.

ARMY VS. YALE, NAVY VS. PENN FEATURE TODAY

Midwest Interest Centers on Minnesota-Iowa Tussle.

By Eddie Brietz.

NEW YORK, Oct. 26.—(AP)—One of the dizziest campaigns on record reaches the half-way mark tomorrow with an amazing number of football's blue bloods cooling their heels on the second row mourners' bench.

An epidemic of startling early-season upsets finds such top-flight elevens as Columbia, Pittsburgh, Southern California, Michigan and Notre Dame defeated and removed from national consideration so far. If the form reversals continue, they may have to move back tomorrow night to make room for company.

Anything can and may happen in a dozen headline attractions scheduled for stadia, ball parks and other arenas from one end of the country to the other.

In the east they are wondering if Army can maintain the class it showed in four starts against inferior opponents against a Yale team which is coming along with every game. The Cadets are favorites but may be lucky to win.

HOLY CROSS VS. COLGATE.

Holy Cross, conqueror of Harvard, fears it may be headed for one of those let-downs when it meets Colgate's Red Raiders, aroused by a defeat at the hands of Ohio State. This is another toss-up.

Navy, which rose magnificently to defeat Columbia's Rose Bowl victors, has been warned against overconfidence and told to keep both eye and mind on Pennsylvania's sophomore halfbacks.

Dartmouth's big Green machine is favored over Harvard. Pittsburgh, trimmed by Minnesota, will regain its breath against Westminster. Cornell hardly figures to give Princeton more than a test. Columbia has no setup in Penn State.

Mid-western interests center around the Minnesota-Iowa tussle. The Hawkeyes are geared for the contest, but not even a group of select plays, contrived especially for Ozzie Simmons, Iowa's vanishing negro back, is expected to offset the crushing offensive of the Gopher, now headed for national honors.

ILLINOIS VS. MICHIGAN.

Illinois, with a chance at its first Big Ten title in years, goes against Michigan still in the doldrums but threatening to get started any minute.

Notre Dame, back in stride once more, should beat Wisconsin. Ohio State and Northwestern, both defeated by conference foes, meet at Evanston, with the Buckeyes favored. Chicago entertains Missouri's "scoreless wonders." Carnegie Tech tackles Purdue and Oklahoma and Kansas tangle, with no outstanding choice in either case.

Four games stand out in the south. Duke's clash with Tennessee marks a renewal of the coaching feud between Major Bob Neyland, of Tennessee, and Wallace Wade, of Duke. Two of the less than a Tennessee dozen defeats during Neyland's long regime there were administered by Wade-coached Alabama teams. Duke is favored again.

Alabama, steamrolling its way toward a Southeastern title, meets Georgia, which has a lot of power and is always threatening to make it click. Tulane, also undefeated, fears Georgia Tech, always a tough customer for the Greenies.

FOR McGUGIN.

Vanderbilt followers are worrying lest Biff Jones' husky Louisiana Staters ruin the outlook for an undefeated season for Coach Dan McGugin.

COLEMAN, BROWN PROMISE ACTION

Abie Coleman and Orville Brown, two of the most consistent grapplers in big-time wrestling today, will headline Henry Weber's first mat card at reduced prices next Tuesday night at the auditorium.

Prices for all seats in the house have been set for 40 cents, and fans will be given their first chance to see Coleman in action in Atlanta this season.

Coleman, is well known in Atlanta. Fans here remember him for victories over Chief Chewacki and others last season. The "Little Hercules" is squalidly framed and goes in for the clean, scientific type wrestling.

Brown will be able to take care of himself. He has been a consistent winner here and expects to continue. Only recently he carried the battle with Jim Browning all the way, though losing on a disqualification. Browning, who is one of the first three in the mat game, was glad to get through with the match with Brown. Orville's combination arm lock is a potent factor in his attack.

He is very adept in embracing an opponent's wing in his vise-like hold. And once he clamps down, the opponent's arm is practically useless for the rest of the evening.

The match is scheduled as a two-hour bout.

George Hills will meet Ellis Basharа in the one-hour bout.

Andy Rasher and Jack League meet in the one-hour opener.

'Kingfish' Long And His Party Off for Game

BATON ROUGE, La., Oct. 26.—(AP)—A joyous, shouting army of football fans, some the guests and others the debtors of Senator Huey P. Long for the trip, entrained here late today for his invasion of Nashville, Tenn., to lend their cheering support to Louisiana State University in its grid battle with Vanderbilt there tomorrow.

The mass movement of practically the entire cheering section of the Louisiana school made possible by Long's distribution of several thousand dollars to students lacking the train fare, got under way shortly after 5 p. m. with the Kingfish and the 125-piece university band aboard "the white special."

The university's 1,500 cadets, equipped yesterday with new gray uniforms for their parade in the Tennessee capital and at the game, were scattered throughout other sections of the five-train fan special.

The band and the cadets are the senator's special guests, while the thousand or more other students in the invading army of rooters were beneficiaries of the Kingfish's largesse to the extent of a "loan" of $7 each, $6 for fare and $1 for food.

Louisiana state police armed with guns and given special permission so equipped to enter Tennessee as game wardens patrolled the trains to preserve order on the huge excursion.

A warning against the use of liquor, one of the conditions imposed by Long in promoting the trip, was given to each student boarding the special in dodgers distributed by university officials.

Long spent his last moments before boarding the train giving the "Ha! Ha!" to a report that he would use the occasion to announce his candidacy for president of the United States in 1936 on his "share-the-wealth" platform, and turning down a request to speak in behalf of Tennessee democratic candidates as "a physical impossibility" because of his role in the football activities.

He did say, however, he would speak at the game, but refused to divulge what his subject would be.

About the rumored "announcement" of his candidacy for president, the Kingfish said:

Typists Beat Decatur, 12-0

Playing its greatest game of the year, Commercial High defeated Decatur High, 12 to 0, Friday night at Decatur, to take top position in the North Georgia Interscholastic conference standings. It was a play-off of a scoreless tie two weeks ago and placed Commercial in the favorite spot to win the 1934 crown, as Marist, the defending champion, has been defeated. Russell also is still in the running and will settle accounts with Commercial next Friday afternoon.

Friday night's defeat was the first for Decatur on their home field since the middle of the 1929 season.

Commercial scored in the first quarter when Bryan took a short pass from Captain Lloyd, following a short drive. The final score came in the fourth quarter when Lloyd bucked the ball over, after Commercial had recovered a Decatur punt.

Decatur launched a fine passing attack that was a continual threat, but when within scoring territory the passer was rushed and the attack was stemmed.

In the third quarter Decatur was on Commercial's 4-yard line and goal to go but the Typists' line held like a stone wall and turned back the Decatur drive.

Commercial threatened to score in the third quarter but Decatur's line checked the drive a few yards short of a touchdown.

Captain Lloyd and Dodson, in the backfield, and Ludwig, in the line, were outstanding for Commercial while Pelot, in the backfield, and Thomas, in the line, was best for the losers.

ROSS KAYOED BY ROMANOFF

The fun started as Jack Ross and George Romanoff, claimant to the world's middleweight championship, returned to the city auditorium ring for the third fall last night.

From somewhere Ross had procured a blunt instrument which he secreted in his trunks. The action was getting fast and heavy, with the referee in the middle of it. Suddenly Ross brought out the weapon and hit Referee Red Carlton over the head with it. Romanoff, feeling himself in a tough spot, then wrested the weapon away from Ross and hit him on the head, knocking him out. So Romanoff won the match. Each had won one fall previously.

Policemen leaped into the ring and helped carry Ross out. Romanoff picked up the referee and raised his hand in token of victory. And they toted the referee out. The crowd milled around the ring in such numbers that the lights finally were turned out to get them out of the building.

There was a great crowd assembled for the matches. The semi-windup seemed to please as much as any match on the card. It ended in a draw with Honey Boy Hackney and Tarzan Jordan so groggy they couldn't see their way around. They each had started a flying tackle and butted heads. Hackney won the first fall with a flying head scissors and Jordan won the second with a series of flying tackles.

Sammy Miller, the Greek terror, was plastered by Jack Russell with a body block after about 28 minutes of fast action. There was a series of body slams and then Russell pinned the Greek with a resounding block.

The boxing commission last night suspended Ross for bringing the weapon into the ring, it was announced.

FIVE BIG GAMES FEATURE CARD IN SOUTH TODAY

L. S. U.-Vandy Game in Nashville Offers Most Color.

By Kenneth Gregory,
Associated Press Staff Writer.

An imposing array of gridiron battles, weighed with action, color, tradition and championship hopes, provides a thoroughly entertaining program for southern football fans this afternoon.

For action, it's doubtful if more could be found than will take place in five big games headlining the slate that includes one of the best October campaigns witnessed in Dixie.

Supported by a scattering of important combats among the smaller schools, these five contests stand out as major attractions:

Louisiana State-Vanderbilt at Nashville.

Georgia-Alabama at Birmingham.

Duke-Tennessee at Knoxville.

Georgia Tech-Tulane at New Orleans.

Auburn-Kentucky at Lexington.

With Kingfish Huey Long, accompanied by the Louisiana State band and army of cadets, advancing on Nashville to cheer the Tigers in their battle with Vanderbilt, there will be plenty of action and color for all the spectators.

L. S. U. FAVORED.

The Commodores, rated the underdog in this important clash of undefeated elevens, face the Baton Rouge gridders with high hopes, but unless Dan McGugin's warriors perform more coherence than existed in their last two games the Louisianans loom as the victor in a close struggle. Biff Jones' crew has made an impressive record thus far and appears the more versatile of the two squads.

Tradition surrounds the Alabama-Georgia encounter, which renews a rivalry that started in 1895 after a lapse of three years. The Crimson Tide, leading candidate at present for the Southeastern crown, possesses a great line, a fine group of backfield performers and according to dope should conquer the Bulldogs. Georgia, however, has improved immensely after a slow start and a terrific tussle may result.

Although conference honors are not involved, the conflict between Duke and Tennessee, products of the traditional roaching rivals, Wallace Wade and Bob Neyland, promises to furnish lots of spectacular play. No two teams have put on as colorful and thrill-packed contests as these aggregations have in their last two meetings.

TECH PITIFUL.

Tulane ranks along with Alabama and Vanderbilt as co-leaders in the conference standings at the present, each boasting three victories, and of the trio the Green Wave seems to have the easiest assignment today. Tulane's enemy is Georgia Tech, already trampled by Vanderbilt, Duke and Michigan. The Yellow Jackets invade New Orleans in a badly crippled condition.

Probably one of the closest fights is in prospect in the Auburn-Kentucky scrap. In this game the Plainsmen go up against their old coach, Chet Wynne, who took over the coaching reins at Kentucky this year after a commendable record at Auburn for four seasons.

The University of Florida journeyed to Baltimore to play the strong Maryland combination in an inter-conference joust that looms as a bitter struggle. Against Navy the Old Liners displayed a powerful offensive in losing by only three points, while the 'Gators also possess a strong attack as evidenced by the walloping they gave North Carolina State last week.

MISSISSIPPI, SEWANEE.

Mississippi and Sewanee tangle in a less important Southeastern contest at Oxford, while Centenary, of the Southern Intercollegiate Athletic Association, plays host to Texas Christian at Shreveport in the only important intersectional fray for a Dixie squad.

Southwestern and Chattanooga clash at Chattanooga in a Dixie conference go, while Furman and Centre meet at Greenville, S. C.; Mercer and Stetson battle at Jacksonville and Middle Tennessee and West Kentucky play at Murfreesboro in important S. I. A. A. tilts.

Other games on the card bring together Murray and Birmingham-Southern at Murray, Ky.; Louisiana College and University of Mexico at Mexico, D. F.; Tennessee Tech and Hiawassee at Cookeville, Tenn.; Oglethorpe and Howard here; Presbyterian and Catawba at Clinton, S. C.; Georgetown and Cincinnati (night) at Cincinnati, and Louisville and Hanover at Hanover, Ind.

SMITHIES BEAT CHARLOTTE, 34-0; SCHUTTE STARS

Tech High Regains Scoring Punch To Win Easily.

By Roy White.

Tech High exhibited an improved offense and defeated Charlotte High, 34 to 0, Friday night at Ponce de Leon park.

While showing a decided improvement in the attack, Tech High continued its fine defensive play and turned back every Charlotte scoring threat.

Herbert Schutte and Jack Newlands, were the leading lights in the Tech High backfield. Schutte scored three touchdowns and Newlands added two more and Schutte kicked four goals after touchdowns.

Newslands scored in the first quarter, following a 40-yard drive, after Schutte had intercepted a Charlotte pass. Newlands came back with another early in the second quarter after a 47-yard drive. Schutte's 22-yard run was outstanding in the drive.

Late in the second quarter, the Smithies put on another drive of 40 yards and Schutte scored. A 24-yard pass, Schutte to Gibson was the longest gain of the march.

Three successive first downs, including Schutte's 16-yard run to the touchdown, gave Tech High another score in the third period. Early in the fourth period, Schutte again scored on a 7-yard plunge through Charlotte's line after he had returned a punt 25 yards to place the ball on Charlotte's 23-yard line.

Charlotte was heavily outweighed, but fought gamely all the way. The visitors exhibited a fine passing attack and it was due to their passing that four first downs were registered. Tech High gained 19 first downs.

PRINCETON, N. J.—All-American players don't mean a thing to the Princeton varsity—that is they don't when they're playing on the third team. Earl Martineau, All-American at Minnesota a decade ago, and Campbell Dickson, another assistant coach, went in with the thirds yesterday but they couldn't push the regulars back.

PRICE AGREEMENT ON MILK REACHED

$2.70 a Hundredweight for Class 1 Milk Agreed on at Washington Meet.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 26.—(AP)—Producers and distributors of the Atlanta, Ga., milk shed were reported today to have reached an accord with the farm administration on provisions of a market agreement for their sales area.

B. H. Sullivan, attorney for the Atlanta Milk Dealers' Association, said the producer prices arrived at were $2.70 a hundredweight for Class 1 milk, and $1.85 for Class 2, with Class 3 based on the Chicago butter market.

It was understood no resale prices will be written into the agreement.

The Atlanta delegation returned home after a three-day conference with administration dairy experts. Sullivan said they left feeling assured the prices agreed upon would be adopted by the administration. The attorney predicted the agreement would become effective about November 15, unless unforeseen objections arise.

Under the present milk policy, the market of a milk shed is prorated among the producers on the basis of their production in relation to the consumption. It was understood allotments will be made to producer-distributors in Atlanta as well as direct distributors. The prorations will be made by a market administrator appointed by Secretary Wallace.

Sullivan said harmony prevailed within the Georgia delegation throughout the conferences here. Frank Buchanan, of the Georgia Milk Producers' Confederation, was reported to have wanted a $2.90 price for No. 1 milk, but agreed upon the $2.70.

Atlanta has sought more than a year to bring its milk distribution under the agricultural adjustment machinery, with the view to stabilizing the market and raising returns to producers. Hitherto, however, the Georgians disagreed among themselves and the administration was perplexed also by the producer-distributor problem in this milk shed.

$100 Reward Is Paid For Return of $21,000

ST. LOUIS, Oct. 26.—(UP)—A $100 reward was paid today to Fred Hockerman, unemployed painter, by the Northwestern Trust Company, in appreciation of his voluntary return of $21,000 of the bank's funds he found on the floor of a street car where a clerk had dropped it. Hockerman hasn't had a regular job in eight years. He is married and the father of a young son, Fred Jr.

I. E. JACKSON PASSES; WAS POLICE VETERAN

I. E. Jackson, 74, of 725 Crew street, S. W., who less than two years ago retired from the Atlanta police force on which he enrolled September 11, 1889, died Friday afternoon at his home after a brief illness.

Mr. Jackson, whom Captain A. J. Holcombe lauded Friday night as a faithful and well-liked police officer, served a total of 39 years and eight months on the force, having left the force for short periods between 1890 and 1900. He retired November 1, 1932.

He was born in Fayette county March 12, 1860. He came to Atlanta a few years later and enrolled as a patrolman on the force when he was 29 years old.

He is survived by his wife; two brothers, Melvin Jackson, of Boyse, Ala., and Jewel Jackson, of McDonough, and two sisters, Mrs. Emma Burke, of Rome, Ga., and Mrs. Elizabeth Benson, of Boyse, Ala.

Funeral services will be conducted at 2 o'clock Sunday afternoon at the Capitol Avenue Baptist church with the Rev. W. H. Majors officiating. Burial will be in West View cemetery with Harry G. Poole in charge.

REVIEWING THE SHOWS

Hollywood, Radio City Merge for 'Gift of Gab'

"Gift of Gab," at the Fox, as you may have noted elsewhere in these columns, is the offspring of an unholy union of Hollywood and Radio City. The advertisements chronicle the names of 30 stars of lens and "mike" who participate, a list too long to reprint here, but your correspondent will be unable to verify the accuracy of the assertion until he may again see the film. However, several of the radio stars lingered before the camera long enough for identification and of these Ruth Etting stood out with Phil Baker for the honors.

The problem of presenting such a large group of well-known performers in one picture is solved quite naturally by "shooting" them in action before microphones. The story is held together by the career of Edmund Lowe and his romance with Gloria Stuart, program director for WGAB, where the talkative lady killer aspires for fame and fortune. The picture abounds in variety, for Lowe is not only a master of ceremonies, but a flying reporter and is on hand for whatever broadcast thrills are possible. Barred from the broadcasting booth of a football stadium, he describes the game from a lapel microphone hidden in a crysanthemum and later redeems himself for giving a fake news broadcast by dropping from an airplane, microphone and all, into a mountain protected forest to scoop the world on an air catastrophy.

Graham McNamee, the Downey Sisters, Phil Baker, June Knight, Gus Arnheim's orchestra and the negro entertainers, Ethel Waters and the Beale Street Boys, have substantial roles and should please their many regular fans. Of the half dozen musical numbers written especially for the production, "I Ain't Gonna Sin No More," is the easiest to hum.

The sets are lavish and Hollywood has drawn heavily from her own talent. Paul Lukas, Chester Morris (at his best so far as comedian), Boris Karloff and Alice White are seen.

A Betty Boop cartoon, a short subject, "Man's Mania for Speed," and a Movietone newsreel are shown.

—BRUCE MANNING.

Humor and Excitement Abound in Grand Picture

A little bit of everything is gotten together in a very pleasing olio in "Transatlantic Merry-Go-Round" which opened Friday night at Loew's Grand. The getter-uppers of the film scoured Hollywood to make up the passenger list of the ocean liner whereon the scene is laid with well chosen results.

On the vessel, Jack Benny holds forth in charge of an entertaining crowd of entertainers. His star performer, Nancy Carroll, a nice little lady with a past, meets up with Gene Raymond, a gentleman with a present, and they decide to go in for a future. As the vessel chugs along crook meets crook, diamond bracelets disappear with scarcely a passenger on board lacking a motive for the theft, mysterious bebearded creatures sneak from tarpaulined lifeboats, with plenty of excitement and thrills throughout and not a little bit of humor.

There's some nice music, featuring among others the Boswell sisters. Mitzi Green with her clever imitations, and Patsy Kelly with her wisecracks give you an idea of what to expect. Benny gets together some lush girls for some pretty dancing figures and kaleidoscopic effects.

Inasmuch as a detective on vacation spends it in the usual manner by solving the mystery of the disappearing sparklers, it wouldn't do to tell you too much about the story. But a couple of murders occur eventually and Nancy and her friend, the crook, finally come out all to the good, with a promise of a recommendation for probation for the boy-friend, which is, after all, about as much as a lady with a past could ask.

The Dartmouth lads at their winter sports furnish an excellent sports offering and there's an eyeful novelty in the way of a colored-film variation of the Satyr and the Fawn, to round out the program.

$3,914.63 Suit Filed For Football Taxes

W. E. Page, collector of internal revenue, filed a notice of a tax lien of $3,914.63 Friday in the federal district court as the amount owed to the government in amusement tax covering the football games of Georgia Tech for the months of September and October.

Associations and individuals named in the lien were the board of control of the Georgia Tech Athletic Association, the Georgia Tech Athletic Association and the Georgia Tech Athletic Association, Inc., Dr. M. L. Brittain, Dr. W. V. Skiles, Dr. J. B. Crenshaw, Dr. Gilbert Boggs, Professor Floyd Field, Dr. A. H. Armstrong, George W. McCarty, Robert T. Jones Jr., Jack Phillips, D. Kalkhurst and W. H. Glenn.

The University of Georgia also is embroiled in the argument with the collector's office over the necessity of paying amusement tax on receipts from athletic contests. The two schools contend that as government institutions they are not taxable, and a temporary injunction restraining collection was granted on this ground. Mr. Page said, however, that since the granting of the injunction the athletic associations have been made separate corporations, which may be taxed.

Atlanta Prize Fighter Sentenced in Robbery

Frank C. Adams, Atlanta prizefighter, was found guilty of robbery by intimidation Friday in Fulton superior court. The jury fixed his term at from 2 to 4 years with a recommendation for misdemeanor treatment, which was carried out by Judge G. H. Howard.

According to testimony, Adams and J. W. Brooks, the complaining witness, left a party in a taxicab and, according to the taxi driver, at the end of the trip the two got out and engaged in a scuffle. Officers said that Brooks' watch and wallet were recovered later in Adams' apartment. Brooks was said to have lost $42 in cash besides his watch.

NEW YORK, Oct. 26.—(AP)—Reactionaries and tories of the nation, Postmaster-General James A. Farley said tonight, need to be reminded that "the constitution, like the Sabbath, was made for man."

The people asked President Roosevelt "for bread and a chance to work," the postmaster-general stated, "and President Roosevelt could not deny them with the arguments now advanced by the critics of the New Deal.

"Franklin D. Roosevelt, may it be said to his everlasting credit, will never plead the statute of limitations against a hungry man."

ROOSEVELT TURNS SINCLAIR DOWN

Denied McAdoo Aid.

Any hope Sinclair may have held for active speech-making support from Senator McAdoo was blasted tonight by the senator himself. He said he had to make speeches in Arizona and Utah in support of democratic senatorial candidates there and would not reach California until election day.

When informed of Creel's letter, McAdoo obviously was not surprised. Creel was reported to have shown a copy of the letter not only to McAdoo but to others.

Questioned as to his position, the California senator said so far as he was concerned it was unchanged from the statement he made after the state convention at Sacramento, Cal. Then he stated he would support democratic nominees running on the platform that was adopted.

McAdoo said he did not know whether Sinclair had gone beyond the platform as contended by Creel and that he preferred not to enter the controversy at this time.

"I'M MAN WITHOUT VOTE" GEORGE CREEL DECLARES

BALTIMORE, Oct. 26.—(AP)—George Creel, whom Upton Sinclair defeated for the democratic nomination for governor of California, tonight said "as far as the governorship is concerned I am a man without a vote."

Creel said his withdrawal of a previous offer to support Sinclair, former socialist, was not the result of recent conferences he has had with President Roosevelt and democratic leaders in Washington.

"Make that plain," he asked. "President Roosevelt is having nothing to do with the California fight."

Creel asked it also be "made plain" he would not vote for Governor Frank F. Merriam, the republican nominee, or Raymond Haight, the independent whom Creel said "hasn't a chance."

Creel's withdrawal of support for Sinclair and his "epic" (end poverty in California) plan was made known in a letter written the nominee several days ago and made public in New York today. He said his withdrawal was based on Sinclair's plan for "immediate epic," which contained the features to which he had objected most strenuously in the original Sinclair plan—features which, he said, Sinclair had promised to remove.

Creel added he did not believe the withdrawal of his support would seriously effect Sinclair's chances of winning.

"He has a very good chance," he said.

As to the Literary Digest poll which shows Merriam in the lead, Creel said:

"You can't go by that. It hasn't touched Los Angeles county and that's where Sinclair has his strength. That county contains 50 per cent of the vote of the state. I beat Sinclair out in the state by 20,000 but he won in Los Angeles by 150,000."

HOPES FOR SUPPORT OF ROOSEVELT FAIL

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 26.—(AP) Sinclairite hopes of possible support from President Roosevelt and George Creel, administratoin supporter, went glimmering today but the democratic candidate for governor of California announced his EPIC organization would continue functioning regardless of the outcome of the approaching election.

In response to further questions about Upton Sinclair's candidacy, President Roosevelt said he could not take part in any state campaign.

In New York, Creel, who was runner-up to Sinclair in the primaries, made public a letter to Sinclair in which he withdrew a previous offer of campaign support. Creel charged Sinclair had deviated from an agreed modification of his EPIC plan.

Asked if he planned to continue his novel program for putting the unemployed to work under state auspices, Sinclair made this verbal statement:

"Yes, of course. It has always been our plan. There never has been any doubt about that.

"We have established ourselves and organized to end poverty in California, and if we don't win in the first skirmish we shall try again. In other words, we have enlisted for the war."

Creel, who was chairman of the committee that formulated the state democratic platform after Sinclair's nomination, objected in his letter to the trend of Sinclair's activities since the party's state convention.

This cryptic retort came from Sinclair headquarters here:

"The Sinclair forces are delighted to hear that Mr. Creel has got a job that probably will pay him a little money.

"Mr. Creel is not the first one whose interest in the democratic party was dampened by an opportunity to make a little money.

"We wish Mr. Creel every success in his field and will look forward with anticipation to reading his future writings."

Despite growing predictions of defeat for Sinclair and victory for acting Governor Frank F. Merriam, Sinclair headquarters here said in a statement the pendulum of public feeling was again turning toward the democratic candidate. The statement expressed confidence of a Sinclair victory.

SINCLAIR FAR BEHIND IN DIGEST'S POLL

NEW YORK, Oct. 26.—(AP)—The Literary Digest's "straw" poll for governor of California gave Frank F. Merriam, the republican candidate, a lead over Upton Sinclair of about two and a half to one, according to returns tabulated to date.

Of 62,208 ballots cast, Merriam was given 42,141 and Sinclair, democratic candidate and "EPIC" proponent, 17,284. The percentage was 62.70 per cent of the vote for Merriam and 25.72 per cent for Sinclair.

The remainder of the votes were divided among three other candidates.

About 700,000 ballots were mailed out, the number representing approximately one-half the number of voters in the last California election for governor.

FOUR-TO-ONE ODDS SET AGAINST SINCLAIR

NEW YORK, Oct. 26.—(NANA)—Recent events in the California gubernatorial campaign have made acting Governor Frank H. Merriam a 4-to-1 favorite over his democratic opponent, Upton Sinclair, according to Jack Doyle, who is now offering 1-to-4 against Merriam's election and 7-to-2 against Sinclair.

Doyle, Broadway's best known betting commissioner, said the odds on Merriam had risen from 2 1-2 to 1 to 4 to 1 in three days. Most of the betting now is on the extent of Merriam's majority. It is even money that the acting governor will carry the state by 200,000 votes and the city of San Francisco by 50,000.

SINCLAIR AID WITHDRAWN BY DEFEATED CANDIDATE

NEW YORK, Oct. 26.—(AP)—George Creel, unsuccessful candidate for the democratic nomination for governor of California, in a letter made public today withdrew support of Upton Sinclair, the nominee.

Sinclair, he asserted, had deviated from an agreed modification of his "EPIC" plan.

"'Immediate EPIC,' I am sorry to confess, puts me back exactly where I was in the primary campaign," Creel wrote to Sinclair on October 18, according to the text of a letter published in the World-Telegram.

"In its essence it is the original EPIC plan that I attacked as unsound, unworkable, and un-American, designed to appeal to the credulities of ignorance and despair, and immeasurably hurtful in its effect on true progressivism.

"It is, therefore, with the very real regret that must always be stirred by lost opportunities, that I withdraw my offer to campaign in your behalf."

Steel Employment Drops in September

NEW YORK, Oct. 26.—(AP)—Employment in the steel industry was 6 per cent lower in September than in August and nearly 10 per cent below September, 1933, the American Iron and Steel Institute reported today. Pay rolls also declined.

The number of employes on hourly, piece work or tonnage wages during September was 343,064, compared with 364,583 in August and 380,271 in September, 1933. All employes in the industry totaled 381,828.

The total pay roll of the steel industry in September dropped to $29,142,802 from $34,362,208 in August and $37,322,250 in September, 1933.

The average of hours worked a week by each employe declined to 24.2 in September from 26.5 in August and 32.8 in September, 1933. Average earnings per hour were 73.8 cents in September, against 72.2 cents in August and 63.6 cents in September, 1933.

Oysters at their Best

In Daufuski Brand Oysters we have delightful and nutritious food, conveniently and constantly at our disposal for the preparation of many appetizing meals.

The food value of this bivalve mollusk, so universally esteemed as a delicacy, is well recognized. Like milk it is an almost self-sufficient article of diet. In addition to its general wholesomeness, it especially abounds in iron and iodine . . . the former element essential to good rich blood and the latter a well-known preventive of goiter.

The housewives of Georgia who are selective in the choice of their foodstuffs are enthusiastic over the fine quality of Daufuski Oysters. Perhaps this superior quality is due to the integrity and experience of the packers—L. P. Maggioni & Company, Savannah, Georgia—one of the oldest and largest packers of Cove Oysters in this country, being established in 1870. They have sold Daufuski Brand Oysters in this market for over thirty years.

THE LAUGHING GIRL MYSTERY

By Viola Paradise

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE:

Sheridan Dinard, chief aid to Dr. Coe, an Egyptologist who has a private museum in New York, is hurrying up the stairs to the studio apartment of Adelaide Sayre, his fiancee, when he hears a girlish burst of laughter cut off short. He remarks to Oswald, the colored janitor, that the girl must be a blond with lavender eyes and a short upper lip. Later he laughingly says to Adelaide and Lester Wilcox, also connected with the museum, that it is easy for an archaeologist to reconstruct a girl from her laugh. A girl answering this description is found dead from a stab wound in the apartment of Mr. and Mrs. Coggs, who are at their country place. An Egyptian statuette, taken from Dinard's desk, had been used as a door knocker to hide a newly bored peep-hole in the Coggses' hall door. Inspector Higgins wants to arrest Dinard, but Assistant District Attorney Alby holds him back. A Florentine dagger used by the murderer is missed from the museum, and Marlin, the English caretaker, disappears. Dr. Coe, supposed to be at his country place, appears at the museum in a daze. Adelaide destroys a cerise baggage check which shows up mysteriously on her desk. A trunk with such a check is delivered to a man registered at the Hotel Astrakan as Dennis Swift, who disappears with a packet of letters taken from it. As Alby is questioning witnesses, among them Sam and Sarah Tidewell, unemployed theatrical people, Coggs practically accuses Dinard of being the murderer. Alby has Rankin make handwriting tests. NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

INSTALLMENT XXVI.

Alby made no reply. While Garson repacked the trunk he dictated to Harrod another cable to Scotland Yard.

Alby's cable to Scotland Yard read:

"Identity of murdered girl established as Daisy Satterly also called Diantha Sheridan, English, arrived New York yesterday. Obviously ballet dancer. Kindly trace her friend, also dancer, first name Gertrude, photographed by Hanford Birmingham, 1932." (Here he gave a description of Gertrude's picture. Then followed the dates of Daisy's photographs and the potographers' names.) "Ask Gertrude about possible visits of Daisy to fortune tellers. Also marital status, and children. Also friends and relations there in United States. Check possible connection with Peter Marlin."

Alby finished as Garson was lifting the top tray into the trunk. "You and Smith had better hang 'round," Alby said, "just on a chance of Swift's coming back. The rest of us can move on."

"Now what?" asked Adelaide, bracing herself for the worst.

"Now perhaps Mr. Dinard would like us to stop with him at his apartment while he collects what he will need for the night—"

"You're not—not arresting him!" Adelaide cried.

"Not tonight. We made another plan, didn't we? I'll conduct you both to your house, where a suitable chaperon should be waiting. No need of your staying, Harrod. Just send that cable, and phone H. Q. to feature Marlin in everything they give the press. Now, Joey, call us a taxi."

Joey held the taxi door while Sheridan, Adelaide and Alby got in, but did not close it at once. "Please, Mr. Alby," the bell boy begged in his quick, young voice, "let me come along. Please!"

Alby shook his head, but he smiled at the youngster. "I'll let you know when I need you."

"Listen, Mr. Alby," Joey persisted. "I want to be a detective. You won't have to pay me. The worst my old man could do to me for throwing up my job here would be to wallop me. But if you tell him you need me to help solve a murder—"

"Hang on to your job, Joey," said Alby. But, as the boy's face fell, he added, "there's nothing to prevent your thinking about the case. If you have any further observations to contribute, just let me know."

Disconsolate, Joey watched the taxi move off. Life was suddenly dull. "If you have any further observations to contribute," Alby had said. . . . Funny, how he had seen but not noticed till afterwards that Dennis Swift had turned his hand upward to show that scar, made to look like Dinard's scar. If he could only think of something else like that. . . .

He couldn't. And it burned him up. Here he was, almost in on a murder, and letting it slip away! How could a fellow contribute further observations, when he had to stick round a slow second-class hotel!

Mr. Astrakan's manner was the last straw. "Well!" said the hotel proprietor sarcastically. "So you decided to come in? I thought maybe you were going along to solve the murder for the police."

Joey had an inspiration. I couldn't go off duty in my uniform, could I?" he replied righteously.

"What do you mean, go off duty? You've another hour yet."

"I'll make it up, Mr. Astrakan. This is important! And if my old man calls up before I get home," Joey concluded loftily, "tell him I'm working with the police on the case of the girl who died laughing. In my spare time, see?"

It was midnight when Adelaide, Sheridan and Alby reached Twelfth street. They found a wiry old woman waiting on the steps. Alby introduced her, "Mrs. Galloway, a veteran police matron, will chaperon you to your landlord's satisfaction. Dinard, you might help her move the chaise longue into the dining room. She will make herself comfortable there with a book." Upon which Alby took his leave.

Alby did not go far, however—only to a delicatessen on Sixth avenue. There he bough some rolls, butter, sliced ham, Stilton cheese and several bottles of beer. Then he returned and rang the Coggses' bell.

Mr. Coggs came to the door in his night shirt, Mrs. Coggs in a flannelette kimono close behind him.

"My land, are we to have no peace!" Mrs. Coggs scolded. "Here we were in bed—

"Sorry," Alby apologized. "But you gave me a valuable lead this afternoon, and there are several aspects of the case I thought we would discuss. May I come in? I brought a snack with me. We might have a little supper as we talk."

"Well, my land, I didn't mean to keep you standing in the door." Mrs. Coggs' crossness vanished at the mention of food. "Papa, put on your bath robe. You were sneezing only this evening."

"And meanwhile," said Alby, "Mrs. Coggs and I will unwrap these things in the kitchen."

"I'll set the table in the dining room," Mrs. Coggs offered.

"Let's stay in the kitchen. It's cozier."

"Fancy you—" Mrs. Coggs broke off to sniff the Stilton cheese. "Fancy you being one to like coziness!"

"And I'd never have fancied you could be so friendly," Alby replied. "That cheese does look good, doesn't it?" Here have some beer."

"Who's this Marlin they were talking about that didn't show up?" Mr. Coggs asked as he limped into the kitchen.

"Marlin is one man I especially want to talk to you about," said Alby. "He worked at the museum. Did you ever see him?"

"Nope. But I did see that snooping gas man that looked like Dinard. And Mamma did. You just wait. I'm as sure what the gas company will say as I am that I'm drinking beer."

"Come to think, Papa," Mrs. Coggs put her glass down for a minute. "Remember that man came with a package for Miss Sayre two weeks ago Saturday when she wasn't home? Just before we went off to the country?"

"Why, yes! Of course I do. With a gray hat and coat. Now I wonder, could that have been Marlin?"

"Did he have a growth on his neck?"

"I didn't notice. Did you, Mamma?"

"You couldn't see. He wore a muffler—black and white striped, it was."

"Did you notice anything strange about his actions?"

"Can't say as I did. Did you, Ma?"

"No. He did kind of look around a bit. But no more than anybody would in a strange house.'

"What makes you think that he came from the museum?"

"Well, I don't know that he did. I just thought he might. Because after a bit Miss Sayre come downstairs, and she asked was there a package for her? And she said her bell must be out of order, because somebody had telephoned her that nobody answered her bell, and she was there all the time. So we looked to see, and sure enough her bell was out of order."

"Maybe Marlin and Dinard did the murder together," said Mrs. Coggs.

"Shut up, Mamma. A smart fella like Dinard wouldn't take anybody else in with him on a muder."

"Well, papa, you don't know. Couldn't you find out maybe where Marlin lived, Mr. Alby, and ask his landlady what kind of man, he was?"

"He moved away and left no address," said Alby.

"Well, that's suspicious, ain't it?" she persisted.

"Yes, but there's no evidence to connect Dinard and Marlin. Or Marlin and the girl who was murdered. A little more cheese, Mrs. Coggs?"

"Mamma, you be careful. Last time you ate too much cheese you got indigestion."

"It wasn't the cheese did it," Mrs. Coggs helped herself generously. "But this Marlin now, did his landlady give him a good character?"

"Yes. Not only the landlady but the landlady's attractive young daughter. Especially the daughter. I'm sorry you can't tell me more about Marlin. But the fact that he has been in this apartment may prove helpful. And I want your opinion as to why the murderer—whoever it was—chose your apartment for the job."

"That's just what papa and me can't figure out," said Mrs. Coggs. "It don't seem sensible."

"Of course, Miss Sayre'd be likely to know we go away week-ends and she might have mentioned it to Dinard," said Mr. Coggs. "But unless there was some connection between him and that girl that died, and Miss Sayre was in on it, it don't seem likely that he'd have brought her to the same house with Miss Sayre to kill her.

"You haven't any theory, then?"

"No, we haven't," said Mrs. Coggs. "How did he know where our key was hid in the first place?"

"Well, that'd be easy, Mamma. He could have guessed we'd leave it where Oswald could get it. That's probably why he came snooping round as the gas man—so's to be able to figure out where the key would be hid, and get the lay of the land. And that's why he went into all the apartments. Sounds reasonable, don't it, Mr. Alby?"

"Worth considering, at any rate," Alby replied.

"Still, Papa, say what you like, that Mr. Dinard looks too smart to go and kill a girl right in the same building with his sweetheart waiting upstairs for him to take her out to dinner."

"Yes, unless he figured it'd be the last place anybody'd expect him to do it."

"Then there's the door knocker," Alby continued. "And it has been definitely learned that a muslim dagger was used."

"There! What'd I tell you! He did it," Mr. Coggs exclaimed.

"All the same, Papa, why wouldn't he of used a kitchen knife or an ice pick, instead of a dagger? And why'd he have given himself away with a door knocker?"

"Maybe he'd figure he could wipe off the dagger and put it back and nobody any the wiser. The door knocker, though, that's got me stumped. Unless—no, I got it! Maybe he got here early, before the girl came, and drilled the hole so's he could look out afterward and make his getaway, and took the door knocker along to cover up the hole."

"Hmn." Alby made a noncommittal sound. "And you're sure you never let any friends or relatives use your apartment?"

"No. We told you we didn't have any relatives."

"Yes, yes. So you did. Your son died, I believe, in the San Francisco fire."

"Yes. Now, now, Mamma!" Mr. Coggs' voice was half-way between tendernes and irritation, for Mrs. Coggs had begun to cry. "There she is, at it again," he complained to Alby. "I tell her it's unnatural, after all these years."

"Men," said Mrs. Coggs bitterly, swallowing her tears and a large mouthful of bread and cheese, "men don't know what it means to a woman. He was such a nice baby, and just the image of my poor father."

"That's too bad, Mrs. Coggs. Have you a picture of him?"

UNCLE RAY'S CORNER

A LITTLE SATURDAY TALK.

A pleasant little poem has come to me from Martha Oldham, age 12.

"Summer follows spring.
And then comes fall;
All through the meadow
The black birds' voices call,
'It's fall! It's fall!'
The grass is turning yellow
And the apples turning mellow,
The leaves are softly dropping
And the squirrels are swiftly hopping,
In the fall, in the fall."

As I remarked last Saturday, I think the autumn is the most beautiful season. The origin of the word "autumn" is not clearly known; but all of us can tell why the name "fall" was given. The falling of the leaves from most trees (though not from the evergreens!) is a sad part of the season; but we comfort ourselves by the thought that the leaves will return in the spring.

Arthur Tortalana, age 13, writes a long and heart-felt letter telling of his enjoyment of opera.

"Why is it," he asks, "that some people like jazz music so well, and do not care for opera? One night some boys and I went to hear a small band concert. They played some very, very cheap 'jazz' and my friends clapped for them, saying the band was doing well, but I didn't think so."

I am glad that Arthur has a taste for good music. One answer to his question is this. "It takes many kinds of people to make a world." Personally, I care little or nothing for jazz music; when my radio is on, and I hear such music, I change the station, and try to find something better. On the other hand, there are some persons (largely youths in their middle or late teens), who are "jazz mad." They may even feel that nothing else deserves the name of music. This feeling they are likely to outgrow when they become older.

I enjoy many, but not all, opera songs. Sometimes the singers pitch their notes too high, and make me feel very much as did the three-year-old boy who—while listening the other day to a high-pitched song—asked me:

"Why is that lady yelling so hard?"

My favorite music is that which comes from symphony orchestras, from such a violinist as Fritz Kreisler, from a fine chorus, from a well-played organ or piano, or from a soloist as John McCormack.

Miss Candler and Miss Ewing Make Formal Bow at Luncheon

Inaugurating the many formal debut parties to be given this season was the luncheon given on Friday by Mrs. William Candler and Mrs. Morris Ewing in compliment to their daughters, Misses Rena Candler and Dorothy Ewing, who are listed among the prominent members of the 1934-35 Debutantes' Club, at the Biltmore hotel. The guests for this auspicious occassion included only members of the Debutante Club who were received by the hostesses and honor guests who stood before a bower of palms foliage plants and floral tributes sent by friends of the two debutantes.

The luncheon table in the ballroom was made in the form of a square and completely surrounded a sunken garden effect. In the center of this arrangement was placed a fountain from which water fell over soft pink lights. A color scheme of pink prevailed in the garden effects, which was formed of chrysanthemums, dahlias and other autumn flowers.

The place cards were in pink, with the names of the guests written in silver, and silver candelabra holding pink tapers were placed at intervals on the tables. Interspersed among these were baskets of pink flowers. During luncheon, a stringed orchestra played.

Miss Candler was attired in black velvet, trimmed with ivory Lame and tiny rhinestone clips. Her black hat was a close-fitting model of velvet, trimmed with clips to match those of her gown. Her costume was enhanced by a shoulder bouquet of orchids.

Miss Ewing was costumed in black crepe, trimmed at the neck-line with silver cloth, edged with tiny pleated ruffles of crepe. The gown was fitted closely to her slender figure, and she wore a becoming hat of black. A shoulder bouquet of orchids completed her ensemble.

Mrs. Candler wore a model of black velvet trimmed at the cuffs and neck-line with ivory tinted silk. Her hat was also of black velvet and her flowers were white gardenias.

Mrs. Ewing was gowned in black crepe, trimmed with gold metal cloth and made along simple lines. A smart black hat and other accessories in black, and a shoulder boquet of gardenias completed her ensemble.

Mrs. D. B. Teabeaut, grandmother of Miss Candler, chose a costume of black velvet, and Mrs. J. H. Ewing, grandmother of Miss Ewing, also was gowned in black. Both wore bouquets of orchids.

Mrs. Teabeaut and Mrs. Ewing assisted in entertaining.

Friendly Counsel

By CAROLINE CHATFIELD

Problems of general interest submitted by readers will be discussed in this column. Correspondence invited. Your name held in confidence. Write Miss Chatfield, care The Atlanta Constitution.

There is a certain woman who, when she wishes to pay a person the highest of all compliments, remarks that he or she has great dignity. Once she went so far as to say that her favorite pet, a dog, was a dignified little fellow. One of her friends called her to account and asked how in the name of common sense a dog could exhibit a trait so distinctly spiritual. Quick to justify her claim, she countered, "When I come in he greets me cordially but he doesn't jump all over me and demand to be played with. He waits for me to make the move toward a romp. I call that dignity."

And so the talk turned on dignity: Definition of it, manifestations of it, its advantages to the individual and some things that destroy it. Dignity is the expression of several traits of character that all thoughtful people admire: It is the outcropping of pride and self-respect, of an independence of spirit and an inner poise. It manifests itself in the way one dresses, in the way one walks on the street, enters a room, sits in a chair, converses with people, in the way one accepts disappointments and sorrows as well as joys. The dignified person is quiet and serene, lofty without being superior, equal to the occasion, whether it be a painful or a pleasureable one.

The person who has dignity is courteous and consequently invites courtesy at the hands of others. His dignity forbids the familiarity that breeds contempt. It is a buffer between him and bores. It is fine insurance against unwarranted liberties being taken with him and against rude attacks being made on him. His dignity says eloquently, "I am reserved. I don't invade your privacy nor do I permit you to invade mine."

A person may cover up a multitude of deficiencies if he has dignity. He may be a dolt, yet conduct himself in such a dignified way that it takes acquaintances a long time to discover his stupidity, and when they discover it they won't treat him with disrespect. A woman may be ignorant, poverty poor, dependent upon charity for her daily bread and yet carry on with a dignity that makes the neighbors as well as the welfare workers who supply her with the necessities of life respect her. The humblest sometimes have dignity while the highest sometimes lack it.

It is an asset in the kitchen as well as in the living room, in the office as well as in the factory, and it is a prime requisite for success in the life of any man or woman who is in the public eye. Without dignity a man can't keep the respect of his employes or his family. Without dignity a woman cannot preside gracefully over her home, maintain her position as wife or rear children who will have deference to her. Even little children are more attractive when they display it.

One of the group commented that her maid possessed so much dignity that when she found it necessary to correct her she couched her criticisms in courteous language and administered them cautiously. Her servant's self-respect had commanded the self-respect of her mistress. Her becoming reserve had protected her against attack.

There are some well-known destroyers of dignity and chief among them is alcohol. For this reason no wife can endure to see her husband take too much to drink. A few drinks remove inhibitions, more drinks and reserve vanishes, more drinks and dignity is destroyed. To feel ashamed of the man she loves before people is one of the greatest humiliations a wife has to bear. To see her husband stripped of his dignity putting himself at a disadvantage before outsiders, behaving in such a way that she who loves him must despise him and know that those who don't love him feel unspeakably contemptuous of him, crucifies her. She knows that when and if he takes too much to drink this is likely to happen.

Temper given way to, has much the same effect as alcohol. All defences go down in the insanity of temper, and all the rules that dignity lives by are forgotten. Courtesy, moderation, pride and restraint are flung to the forewinds. The temper addict is at the mercy of anybody who wishes to rush in when all guards are down.

In the last analysis, then, this trait we find so attractive in others and so protective to ourselves is the very flower of self-control. The person who has dignity advertises to the world that he is the captain of his own soul. He places a high valuation on his personality and others accept him at his own valuation.

CAROLINE CHATFIELD.

Culbertson on Contract

By ELY CULBERTSON, World's Champion Player and Greatest Card Analyist.

A Defensive Trump Hold-Up.

If it becomes obvious to the defense that the best plan of campaign is to force the declarer and shorten the latter's trump holding, every defensive move must be directed to this end. There is more, however, to forcing the declarer than merely leading a suit of which he is void every time you get on trick. There are times, for instance, when the dummy as well as the declarer is void of the suit, and a lead of the suit, instead of shortening the declarer, will be ruffed in dummy, enabling the declarer to get a valuable discard. In this instance the defense must do everything in its power to force the declarer to remove all of dummy's trumps. This can often be effectually done by holding up a high trump. The technique of this play is shown in the hand below:

North, dealer.
Neither side vulnerable.

	♠ A K 2 ♡ 8 6 4 ◇ 5 3 ♣ K Q J 8 6
♠ 10 9 3 ♡ A 7 5 2 ◇ K Q 10 8 ♣ 9 2	N W E S	♠ J 8 7 4 ♡ 9 ◇ J 9 7 6 2 ♣ A 5 3
	♠ Q 6 5 ♡ K Q J 10 3 ◇ A 4 ♣ 10 7 4

The bidding:

North	East	South	West
1♣	Pass	1♡	Pass
2♣	Pass	3♡	Pass
4♡	Pass	Pass	Pass

West's opening lead was the diamond queen. South won with the ace, and the heart king was led. West could count one diamond trick, one heart trick, and a probable club trick in the East hand. A fourth trick was needed to defeat the contract.

The only possible hope seemed to lie in West's fourth trump or an extra diamond, and neither could be established unless the declarer could be shortened by diamond leads. Naturally, only one more diamond could be led while the dummy still had small trumps, so West did not go up with his heart act on the king.

South continued with the queen, and the West player again stayed off. The declarer, of course, was now absolutely helpless. He could not shift to clubs as if he did this East could merely hold up on the first round of the suit and then give his partner a third round ruff. South had no choice but to continue with the heart jack.

West naturally won this time and led the queen of diamonds, which he followed with still another round of the suit. South had to trump, and his heart ten pulled West's last heart. He cashed three spade tricks, but now had to let the East player in with the club ace. The latter had very carefully discarded spades on the earlier trump leads and then when the spade suit was run had got rid of his two small clubs. East therefore won the last three tricks with his club ace and two good diamonds, and the declarer's contract was defeated two tricks.

Had West not held up on the first two rounds of hearts, South would have been able to fulfill his contract, losing but one diamond trick and the two aces.

Atlanta Girl Scouts Will Join Celebration of National Week

Eight hundred and fifty Girl Scouts of Atlanta will join with 350,000 members of the organization throughout the United States Sunday in celebrating the opening of national Girl Scout week. This national celebration, in memory of Mrs Juliette Lowe, a Savannah woman, will continue throughout the week, it was announced by Miss Lucile Cannon, director of the Atlanta Girl Scout council.

Other branches of the service featured during the week will be homemaking, Monday; handicraft, Tuesday; thrift, Wednesday; courtesy, Thursday; community service, Friday, and outdoor activities, Saturday.

While this city-wide observance of community service day is a part of the scout week program, this phase of activity is conducted throughout the year by individual troops. Mrs. John F. Heard, a member of the local Girl Scout council and special activities committee in making her annual report this week on the services of this committee, of which Mrs. William F. Talley is chairman and Miss Rhoda Kaufman, adviser, announced that the community service this year has included in its activities the Atlanta Child's Home, Hillside Cottages, Home for the Aged, Decatur Orphanage, Scottish Rite, Egleston, Base, Grady and Wesley Memorial hospitals, the Family Welfare and the Salvation Army.

By FREDERICK GARDNER.

NEW YORK, Oct. 26.—(AP)—Stocks yielded with other markets to a mood of depression today and prices were again revised downward all around.

The dollar gave a long show of strength in foreign exchange dealings. Wheat rallied briskly to recoup losses of about 2 cents a bushel, but the main drift in commodities, as well as securities, was toward lower levels.

Renewed selling in stocks, concentrated on steel shares and a few weak issues, shook the market out of the narrow groove it had occupied for two weeks. It stteadied after a forenoon decline and trading lapsed into the dull routine so familiar of late.

The reversal of recent trends embraced the bond market too, although highest-grade issues resisted pressure.

Save for several unfavorable third-quarter corporate earnings reports, including the Bethlehem Steel statement, the day's news offered no clear-cut explanation for the bluish color of sentiment as reflected in the performance of markets.

Steel Shares Drag.

Bethlehem Steel preferred broke 6 1-2 points to 56 1-2 on the omission of the $1.75 dividend paid on the stock in the previous quarter and the poor profit showing made for the third quarter. United States Steel common and preferred, Republic Steel and other shares representative of the industry lost fractions to more than a point.

A further sharp decline in Baldwin Locomotive issues in consequence of the company's move to suspend interest payments on bonds in the sinking fund also was disturbing. The preferred dropped to a new low at 20, where it was off more than 4 points, but rallied a little before the close. American Locomotive preferred dipped 4 1-2 points and the common more than a point.

Rails Decline.

Rails slipped with the market, despite a seasonal gain in carloadings last week. Santa Fe, New York Central, Union Pacific, J. I. Case, General Motors, Air Reduction, Du Pont, International Nickel and International Cement were among issues showing losses of fractions to about 3 points.

The Standard Statistics Company average for 90 stocks dropped one point to 69.9, the lowest since September 20. Turnover declined to 869,850 shares compared with a little more than a million in the preceding session.

Sustained firmness in the dollar against foreign currencies, particularly those of the European gold bloc, kept inflation sentiment in cold storage and traders shunned the bull side of commodities. Cotton ended with losses of 20 to 30 cents a bale, but grains were little changed at the close as result of the late rally. Wheat closed 1-8 to 7-8 of a cent a bushel higher.

O'CONNOR IS OFFERED $24,000-A-YEAR JOB

WASHINGTON, Oct. 26.—(AP)—The federal reserve board today offered the post of reserve agent at San Francisco to J. F. T. O'Connor, comptroller of the currency.

The post pays $24,000 a year compared with O'Connor's present salary of $10,000.

Brokers' Views

STOCK OPINIONS.

FENNER & BEANE—We believe that adherence to the constructive side will prove the best policy.

BEER & CO.—Judging by the action of the list Friday it seems that the burden of proof lies with the bulls.

DOBBS & CO.—It would not be surprising to see somewhat higher prices Saturday.

LIVINGSTON & CO.—It hardly seems possibly that enough bullish enthusiasm can be generated in the face of election uncertainties to bring about a renewal of the upward trend and entry into new high ground.

COTTON OPINIONS.

FENNER & BEANE—From a near-term trading viewpoint still further testing of the price structure appears likely.

COURTS & CO.—We still favor the long side of the market.

BEER & CO.—We continue to favor the constructive side of the market on declines of importance.

HUBBARD BROS. & CO. TO DOBBS & CO.—The market is evidently in a waiting position and we are still inclined to doubt whether it develops any pronounced or definite trend pending the appearance of a more active consuming demand.

LIVINGSTON & CO.—Futures are selling below the loan parity which in itself justifies the belief in higher prices.

GRAIN OPINIONS.

FENNER & BEANE—We think the wheat market is now in a healthy position from a bull standpoint.

LIVINGSTON & CO.—Technical market conditions and bearish operations have for several days obscured all legitimate factors but the atmosphere seems to be clearing.

VALUES ON CURB TURN DOWNWARD

By BERNARD S. O'HARA.

NEW YORK, Oct. 26.—(AP)—With few exceptions, curb stocks finished lower today. Losses of fractions to around 2 points were numerous in the industrial list. A number of inactive specialties recorded greater losses.

Alcohols resisted the downward trend. Hiram Walker was up nearly a point net at the close, while Distillers Corporation-Seagrams also improved.

Quotations were generally easier from the opening and the volume of selling increased during the late forenoon. Offerings leveled off after midday but little recovery appeared.

Losses of around 1 to 2 points occurred in Aluminum Company of America, American Cyanamid B, Gulf Oil, Pepperell Manufacturing, Safety Car Heating, Sherwin Williams, Singer Manufacturing, Swift Internacionale and United Shoe Machinery. Smaller recessions were shown by Electric Bond & Share, International Petroleum, Parker Rust Proof, Pittsburgh Plate Glass, Lake Shore and Humble Oil.

Transfers approximated 145,000 shares compared with 166,000 the day before.

FURTHER GAINS SEEN BY DUN & BRADSTREET

NEW YORK, Oct. 26.—(AP)—Reports received from all parts of the country this week, said the Dun & Bradstreet Weekly Trade Review today, "brought a tide of statistical evidence that October operations will be the most satisfactory that have been recorded since spring."

The Review sighted the 8-to-12 per cent gains in dollar totals for retail trade above the 1933 figuresd as testimony to the sharpest rise in unit turnover in many months.

"The abandonment of the central bank project and the shifting of emphasis from monetary and other governmental measures," it continued, "to a pressure for expansion of private loans are considered indicative of a heavier bearing to the right in order to achieve business revival.

"Although somewhat more favorable, the leading industrial indices lacked sufficient uniformity to set a definite trend, but the upside was favored.

"The rise in retail distribution, which has been cumulative since the first of the month, was extended by the favorable weather for shopping, which prevailed in most districts during the week.

"Both in the volume of new business and in re-orders wholesale totals were larger than last week. Constant demand has made such heavy inroads on retailers' stocks that many buyers made unexpected trips to the markets to replenish reduced inventories."

Cotton, Leaf Exchanges May Form Affiliation

NEW YORK, Oct. 26.—(AP)—The New York Sun said today that negotiations looking to the linking together of the New York Cotton Exchange and the New York Tobacco Exchange were under way.

The newspaper said it was probable that proposals for uniting the interests of the two boards would be drafted in the form of resolutions which would be submitted to the members of the respective institutions in the near future.

Current plans, the story added, do not contemplate an actual merger of the exchanges, but rather an affiliation in which each organization would maintain its identity.

Those who favor the union are said to feel that both exchanges would gain mutual benefit because of the parallel features of the cotton and tobacco crops with regard to growing territory and crop values.

The tobacco exchange is the newest of the local commodity markets having started operations on its own trading floor about a month ago.

NEW YORK, Oct. 26.—(AP)—Cotton futures lost a little further ground today under liquidation and scattered selling prompted by weakness of other markets. December contracts after selling down from 12.30 to 12.20, closed at 12.23, with the general market ending steady at net declines of 4 to 6 points.

Early declines in grain made an unfavorable impression on sentiment and late weakness of the stock market discouraged long operations.

An increased trade demand developed around 12.20 for December, however, and last-hour fluctuations were irregular.

A rally encouraged by the later firmness of grain carried December up to 12.18 or about 8 points from the lowest, but the advance failed to hold and closing quotations were within 3 or 4 points of the lowest on the more active months.

The first sale of cotton for delivery in October, 1935, was closed at a discount of about 18 points under July and the difference later widened to about 22 points through selling by houses with Liverpool connections.

Exports today 17,113, making 1,223,348 so far this season. Port receipts 48,257. United States port stocks 3,146,041.

COTTON IN NEW ORLEANS DECLINES 2 TO 5 POINTS

NEW ORLEANS, Oct. 26.—(AP)—The cotton market was only moderately active today and prices developed a slight downward tendency mainly in the afternoon trading in sympathy with easier outside markets. There was a slight gain of 3 points in the morning on some buying by scalpers, but prices eased off during the afternoon 11 to 12 points from the highs. After a slight rally of about 5 points in the final trading on short covering the market closed steady with prices showing net declines for the day of 2 to 5 points.

The opening was barely steady. Liverpool cables came in slightly better than due, but sterling was lower. Private cables stated that there was hedge selling against outside grades in the Liverpool market and near months were sold by spot houses on reported fears of southern offerings. Manchester cabled that there were fair sales of cloth and yarns.

Liverpool is due on New Orleans tomorrow 1 to 3 penny points down.

By VICTOR EUBANK.

NEW YORK, Oct. 26.—(AP)—Secondary loans were noticeably heavy in today's bond market, but prime investment issues, as a whole, were fairly steady.

The trading volume dwindled on the decline. Transfers totaled $10,233,000, par value, against $12,906,000 yesterday.

The Standard Statistics Company average for 60 domestic corporate bonds showed a loss of four-tenths of a point.

A substantial drop in the third quarter earnings of various important corporations was said by dealers to have contributed to some of the gloom in the day's proceedings. There was little change in the general news picture.

United States government securities were somewhat reactionary, but there was no excessive selling pressure on this department. The turnover here amounted to about $2,550,000 compared with $3,300,000 in the previous session. Declines ranged from 1-32nd to 10-32nds of a point.

Among the better acting corporate loans were some of American Telephone, American Sugar Refining, Postal Telegraph, Virginia Electric and National Steel.

Baldwin Locomotive 5s, reflecting the decision of the directors to suspend sinking fund payments, dropped 6 1-4 points to 100 1-4, but the 6 per cent issues on the curb steadied. Bethlehem Steel and Consolidated Gas issues were off fractionally to around a point.

The rails were the softest of the corporate divisions. Among losers of 1 to 3 or more points in this section were some loans of Baltimore & Ohio, Southern, Great Northern, Illinois Central, Missouri Pacific and New York Central.

Losses of a point or so were suffered by various issues of Liggett & Myers, International Paper, International Hydro-Electric, Western Union, United States Rubber, United Drug, Paramount and American Rolling Mill.

The foreign group was dull and irregular.

CHICAGO, Oct. 26.—(AP)—Violent late rallies that resulted from flurried buying in an oversold market led to gains today for corn, and practically overcame sharp losses in wheat.

The recovery staged after wheat and rye had reached a new low price record for the season, influenced by about 3 cents fall of wheat today at Liverpool. Augmented buying on down-turns in Chicago was attributed largely to the fact that wheat here was off nearly 5 cents and corn 4 cents from figures current earlier this week.

Corn closed strong 1-8 to 7-8 above yesterday's finish, May 76 3-4 to 76 7-8, wheat irregular 1-4 off to 3-8 up, May 96 1-8 to 96 1-4, oats at 1-4 decline to 1-8 gain, and provisions varying from 7 cents setback to a rise of 10 cents.

Dominated at first by acute weakness of foreign markets and by talk of proposed radical changes in Canadian government plans as to wheat trade methods, the Chicago wheat market suffered sharp early tumbles, showing in some cases 2 cents drop.

In contrast with wheat weakness, corn showed stubborn resistance to selling pressure, and toward the last virtually displaced wheat as the market leader. At this stage, many wheat brokers flocked into the corn pit, and joined in aggressive buying of corn.

Oats and rye paralleled the course of wheat.

Provisions were easy, responsive to hog price declines.

Market Outlook

By OTTO E. STURM, United Press Financial Writer.

NEW YORK, Oct. 26.—(UP)—Support was thrown into the stock market today after a drop of fractions to more than two points.

Many stocks rallied from their lows. Current selling appeared to have spent itself. Wall Streeters looked for a rise as the next important trend.

Underlying this belief was the new spirit of co-operation evinced by the administration and the country's bankers.

Sooner or later this will be mirrowed in the stock market, observers said. They pointed to quiet accumulation of better grade dividend paying stocks in recent weak markets as proof.

Most of the bad third quarter earnings reports are out of the way. They, more than anything else, took the edge off the bullish implications of the president's ABA speech.

LOSES INFLUENCE.

The Baldwin Locomotive situation, another depressant, lost its influence today. Stock of the company which announced its inadequate working capital was sold heavily until it hit a ne wlow of 5 1-2, where it met support and closed at 5 3-4.

Aside from the soldier bonus question, which will be a sore spot until after the next session of congress, clouds now overhanging the market appear temporary.

There is strong latent buying power in the market. It gave a hint of its presence today when prices were at their lows. A pickup in business such as could easily follow closer co-operation of government and banking will bring it out of its shell.

The long-term viewpoint in Wall Street, therefore, is predominantly bullish. So far it has shown itself only in buying on price dips. Caution is still the watchword, but it would take only a few concrete assurances of the permanence of the government's "right" swing to start traders reaching for stocks.

PRICE WAR CONTINUES.

The oil price war continued on several fronts today, but feeling was better because of the growing government activity in the "hot" oil situation of east Texas. Oils consequently made a better showing, with the exception of Jersey, which was involved in the immediate price cuts.

An example of the temporary stock market effect of earnings reports was furnished by Consolidated Gas, which was in good demand after yesterday's reaction and closed 1-4 higher at 26.

By the end of the session most of the losses had been cut to fractional proportions, Steel rallying from 31 3-4 to 32 1-8, Montgomery Ward 26 3-4 to 27 3-4, Chrysler 34 1-8 to 35 1-8 and so on throughout the list.

Good demand came into some speculate favorites of the building supply, packing and chemical groups at the day's lows. Autos also were well taken. Steels were still depression by the Bethlehem earnings statement, but moved up from the lows. There were plenty of rails for sale, but they steadied late.

Bank Clearings

NEW YORK, Oct. 26.—Bank clearings are trending upward again, as the total amount for the 22 leading cities in the United States for the week ended Wednesday, October 24, as reported by Dun & Bradstreet, Inc., was $4,429,909,000, against $4,694,164,000 for the same week of last year, a loss of 5.6 per cent. This contrasts with a decrease of 7.0 per cent in the previous week. At New York city, clearings for the past week were $2,814,476,000, a reduction of 13.6 per cent, while the aggregate for centers outside of New York of $1,615,433,000 was 12.5 per cent higher.

The loss in the total was again due wholly to smaller clearings at New York city. At all centers outside of New York the amounts for the past week exceeded those of a year ago. Clearings throughout the greater part of 1933, however, continued considerably restricted and at a number of points the restrictions was very great. At most of these centers, clearings now show the most pronounced gains.

The total for the latest week exceeding that for the present week by $310,440,000, whereas a year ago, for the same two weeks, the increase amounted to $265,594,000. Gains the past week were especially large at Philadelphia, Buffalo, Chicago, Detroit, Cincinnati, St. Louis, Kansas City, Omaha, Baltimore, Atlanta, Richmond, New Orleans, Dallas, Portland, and Seattle.

COMPTROLLER ISSUES BANK CONDITION CALL

WASHINGTON, Oct. 26.—(AP)—The comptroller of the currency issued a call today for the condition of all national banks at the close of business Wednesday, October 17.

The bank call issued today was the first since June 30. In some quarters it was estimated the call would show a gain in national bank deposits of between $500,000,000 and $1,000,000,000.

Deposits in June were $19,932,660,000, with 5,422 banks reporting, compared with $18,790,487,000 on March 5, when 5,293 reported. On October 25, 1933, deposits of 5,057 banks were $17,055,208,000.

The comptroller of the currency is required by law to call for condition statements of all national banks at least three times annually, but four are usually requested. He may select any date desired, and sometimes the call, such as today's, is placed in the middle of a month to minimize the possibility of "window dressing" of bank assets. The institutions are given 10 days in which to prepare sworn statements, but on request this time may be extended.

Under the banking act of 1933 the call also includes private banking firms not subject to state examination which elect to be examined by the comptroller. The law provides they must subject themselves to examination by the comptroller or the federal reserve board.

Autumn calls have been issued every year since 1914, with the exception of 1918 and 1926. The spring calls were omitted in 1932 and 1933.

Capt. Zogbaum Honor Guest At Annual Navy Day Banquet

Plea for Adequate Defense Made by Commander of Navy's Air Station at Pensacola.

Naval officers stationed here and officers of the Atlanta naval reserve unit held a dinner at the Biltmore hotel Friday night at which a number of prominent Atlantans and Captain Rufus Zogbaum, commander of the naval air base at Pensacola, Fla., were guests of honor. The dinner was held in celebration of Navy Day.

Lieutenant Commander Jesse Draper presided and introduced the speakers. The honor guests were Captain Zogbaum, Dean W. Vernon Skiles, of Georgia Tech; M. L. Brittain, president of Tech, and Robert Ramspeck, congressman from the fifth district.

At the outset of the dinner Commander Draper read messages of felicitation from General George Van Horn Moseley, commander of the fourth corps area, and from Senator Richard B. Russell Jr. Short talks by Mr. Draper, Dr. Brittain, Lieutenant W. B. Tucker Jr., Captain W. S. Fellers, of the marine corps, and Commander M. C. Bowman, of the naval department at Georgia Tech, followed. Congressman Ramspeck also spoke, lauding the work of the Atlanta reserve unit in winning the trophy as the best of its kind in America for four consecutive years.

The guest of honor, Captain Zogbaum, formerly commander of the airplane carrier Saratoga, compared the present-day navy with that of pre-war days, and gave a brief history of that branch of the service. He said that the navy is a necessary and integral part of the national defense, as it is "the first line of defense." He outlined the latest developments, particularly in regard to naval aviation. He made a plea for adequate protection and lauded the work of congress in voting for the construction of two more air carriers and the enlarging of the naval air force.

Reserve Unit Inspected.

During the day Captain Zogbaum inspected the naval reserve unit here and the naval R. O. T. C. unit at Georgia Tech and expressed himself Friday night as being highly pleased with the work being carried on here. Following the dinner he spoke over radio in commemoration of Navy Day.

Navy Day exercises were in honor of the birthday of Theodore Roosevelt, who was responsible for much of the improvement of the navy. Along this same line was a statement issued Friday by Governor Eugene Talmadge calling attention to the fact that today is the birthday of the late President Roosevelt and calling upon school children of Georgia to emulate him and to continue to honor him. The statement follows:

"Saturday, October 27, is the 76th anniversary of the birth of that great man and president of the United States, Theodore Roosevelt. I am delighted to add my word of tribute to his memory. He fought for human rights against claims of oligarchical despotism; for a united nation against the claims of section or class, race or land of birth. He taught respect for the law, labored for civic decency, defended a people's heritage of natural resources. He set youth aflame; he enlarged man's vision; and made the hearts of his countrymen glow with his own love of life.

"I hope our children will be taught the vital principles which governed the life of this rugged, virile man, and will continue to do him honor in the years to come."

Officers at Dinner.

Those who attended the dinner Friday night included the following:

Captain Zogbaum, Commander Draper, Dean Skiles, Lieutenant William S. Turner, of the 524th coast artillery; Major Thomas H. Jones, of Georgia Tech; Lieutenant Commander S. P. Jenkins, of Tech; Lieutenant Commander D. C. Woodward, G. M. A.; Lieutenant Harry F. Dobbs, commander of the United States naval reserve here; Lieutenant Commander F. B. Britt, U. S. N.; Lieutenant F. R. Walker, U. S. N.; Captain W. S. Fellers, United States marine corps; Lieutenant G. C. Griffin, Georgia Tech; Lieutenant Randolph Smith, U. S. N. R.; Lieutenant Gilmer Western, naval reserve; Ensign J. S. Hall, naval reserve; Lieutenant W. V. Gearhart and Lieutenant R. R. Brewin, both of the naval communication reserve; Lieutenant Corwin Lewis, naval reserve; Lieutenant W. B. Tucker, adjutant of the naval reserve; Lieutenant J. R. Cain, reserve; Ensign H. C. Clark, reserve; Lieutenant J. E. Cooper, of Tech; Lieutenant Ben Scott Custer, of Pensacola, aide to Captain Zogbaum and pilot of his plane; Lieutenant Commander W. H. Ferguson, of Tech; Lieutenant Commander L. F. Bellinger, retired; Commander H. G. Cooper, of the U. S. S. Antares; Commander Bowman, Mr. Ramspeck and Dr. Brittain.

Captain Zogbaum led the city's observance of Navy Day two years ago and is well known here. He will fly back to Pensacola with Lieutenant Custer at about 10 o'clock this morning.

COUSINS OPPOSE ANNE REYNOLDS' TRUST CHANGE PLEA

WINSTON-SALEM, N. C., Oct. 26.—(UP)—Four grandchildren of the late R. J. Reynolds, multimillionaire tobacco king, today were represented in Forsyth county superior court as opposing a motion asking that a $1,000,000 trust fund for Anne Cannon Reynolds and her mother be set aside.

The request for setting aside the trust fund was brought by the Cabarrus Bank and Trust Company, guardians of Anne Cannon Reynolds, so that the girl, daughter of the late Z. Smith Reynolds, might share in the R. J. Reynolds estate.

P. Frank Hanes, guardian of Charles Henry Babcock II, Barbara Frances Babcock, Nancy Jane Bagley and Mary Katherine Bagley, all of Greenwich, Conn., and grandchildren of R. J. Reynolds, today brought action opposing the Cabarrus Trust Company's motion.

Attorneys today believed an agreement was near which would settle a large sum on Anne Cannon Reynolds, daughter of Z. Smith Reynolds by his first marriage, and on Z. Smith Reynolds II, son of Libby Holman Reynolds, and half-brother of Anne.

DRUNKENNESS ARRESTS DROP IN BALTIMORE

BALTIMORE, Oct. 26.—(AP)—A decline of 9.4 per cent in arrests here for drunkeness the first nine months of 1934 compared with the same period of last year was shown today in the police report.

From January 1 to September 30, 1933—while prohibition was still in effect—3,135 arrests were reported on drinking charges, in the same period this year, after repeal, only 2,838 arrests were made.

In the same period arrests for all offenses fell off 3.2 per cent, the records indicated.

TARZAN AND THE LION MAN No. 36

By Edgar Rice Burroughs

As Tarzan gazed with fascination upon the furious battle, he determined to aid the stranger, for he wanted to know this man who fought a thousand warriors, and who bore a perfect resemblance to himself. He sprang into action, knowing that if he failed he would share the stranger's fate—torture and death. . . .

. . . In the camp of the safari, immediately following the Basuto attack, the unknown details of Stanley Obroski's fate were the source of fearful speculation. But it was taken for granted that he had been captured and slain by the savages. "Poor Stanley!" said Rhonda. "He won't even get a decent burial."

"Doesn't deserve one," growled Jimmy, an assistant cook; "he deserted under fire." "No one is a coward because he wants to be," Rhonda replied. "We ought to pity him." Bill West grunted. "Perhaps we would if we were all stuck on him." Bill was still under the misapprehension that Rhonda loved Obroski.

Suddenly Pat O'Grady thrust his head inside the cook tent and called to Orman. "The Arabs say they'll stand guard alone from midnight to six." "O. K.," Orman answered appreciatively. He would have paused indeed had he known that the wily Arabs had suggested this arrangement to help their own evil plans!

DRIVE CAREFULLY TODAY

TREACHEROUS TRACTION.

Autumn days—added hazards for the motorists—decreased visibility, earlier darkness and fallen leaves along the streets and highways. Why does your car sometimes skid on apparently dry concrete? Leaves on the highway look innocent enough but they accumulate frost and dampness these chilly nights. When touched by wheels under brake pressure, they provide a perfectly greased surface.

DAILY SHORT STORY

YOUR CUR, SIR!

Taking Care of the Boss' Dog Was Good Business, So Charlie's Wife Informed Him.

By KATHERINE CALDWELL.

Charlie knew the value of business contacts as well as any one. Mrs. Townsend was constantly urging him to make them. She sometimes read aloud from a book which showed that if he, Charlie, had met a certain man on a certain day he might have been the Sweetheart of America.

The truth was, Charlie did not want to make contacts and did not really mind being just assistant auditor for Herp & Herp. He privately believed he was a fortunate man.

Mr. Herp, the vice president of the company, lived in Groveland, too, but as he lived on Quality Hill and Charlie's modest home was on Slipping street they were not likely to meet.

Mrs. Townsend said Charlie was not ambitious. She said it many times as they returned from their two weeks' vacation at Fish lake. It was a hot day and the train was crowded, but when they reached Groveland Charlie was ambitious enough to run to the end of the latform to make sure of a taxi.

When he returned Mrs. Townsend was deep in conversation with the station agent.

"Hey!" called that gentleman, "I was just asking your wife if you didn't work for Herp's."

Charlie admitted it.

Well, they're out of town and their house is closed, and there's a dog for 'em. I can't keep him here. What'll I do?"

Charlie started to say that he knew nothing about it, but Caroline pinched his arm severely and gave him a meaning look.

"Why—why, I suppose we might take him for a day or two," he stammered.

When they were in the taxi he turned a bewildered gaze upon her satisfied smile.

"Why did you want the dog, Caroline? You don't even like a dog."

Caroline nodded significantly. "This is your chance to do a favor for Mr. Herp. This is your chance to get acquainted with the vice president. It is not what you know—"

He looked at her blankly.

"We do not know what this may mean for us," she added.

Caroline never spoke a truer word. In the days that were to come they learned much about keeping a dog.

"If he is a dog!" Caroline would say harshly. "He seems more like an elephant."

He was not a cross dog at home. It was only that he made such a hideous volume of noises if they kept him in the basement, and left desolation in his wake if they allowed him to go out.

Every evening when Charlie came home Caroline would meet him with some new tale of disaster.

"Make out a check for Mrs. Hayes for $10. He ate her bedspread off the line," Caroline would sigh. Or, "He went over to the Barton's yard, and drank the water out of little Artie's sunken tub pool, including Betty and Letty, the goldfish." And one evening, "As soon as it gets dark we must go out and bury little Essie Merritt's kitten, he killed it and brought it home. She must never know."

He bit little Jackie Marsh. It was hardly a bite at all, just a mere taste, but the Marshes were quite unreasonable about the matter.

He chased Mr. Haley down the street, and Mr. Haley gave them notice to keep him tied up. "Or else!" said Mr. Haley.

Finally Mr. Herp returned. Mr. Herp was very busy, of course, and probably did not have time, at first, to read Charlie's explantory memorandum about the dog. Two days passed and Mr. Herp said nothing.

Charlie took a package of bones home to the dog. He chained him to the clothes post. After dinner he sat down to the desk to untangle his budget. The budget had suffered terribly from the dog. In food, and in damages, he had consumed all of education and entertainment, and had practically annihilated dentist and doctor.

A violent sobbing interrupted him. It was Caroline.

"Oh, Charlie," she wept, "my honeysuckle that I brought from my old Kentucky home has been dug up and torn to pieces."

This was tragedy. They had left the city and bought a bungalow in order to get a yard in which to plant this honeysuckle. It had never bloomed, but they had been well content to see it emerge from the grip of winter every spring and grow feebly green.

"Charles," said Caroline firmly, "go to that telephone and tell Mr. Herp to come and get his dog!"

Mr. Herp, in person, answered the telephone.

"This is Mr. Townsend, Mr. Herp—your bookkeeper, you know."

"Eh, who is it? Downey? Yes, yes, Downey. What is it, Downey?"

"Why, Mr. Herp, did you want me to bring over your dog now?"

"Dog? What dog? Wait a minute," said Mr. Herp.

Charlie nodded and winked at Caroline. Perhaps they would be repaid for their trouble after all. At least after this he might stand out as an individual to Mr. Herp. A little chat with him might lead to something. Mr. Herp was gone for some time. Charlie smiled reassuringly at Caroline.

At last he heard Mr. Herp's voice.

"Downey, my wife tells me that dog was sent to my son by a friend. Now, my son has gone to Boston, so we won't want the dog."

"But, Mr. Herp—" began Charlie feebly.

"Don't mention it, Downey. It's perfectly all right. The dog's yours!"

Girl Scouts Select Officers for Year

BOSTON, Oct. 26.—(AP)—The twentieth annual convention of the National Council of Girl Scouts wound up its three-day business meeting today by electing officers, and choosing San Francisco for its 1935 convention.

Mrs. Herbert Hoover, wife of the former president, who attended all of the sessions, thought the selection of San Francisco "lovely."

Mrs. Hoover was specially honored today at a luncheon given her by the "Old Setters," an organization of women who have been Scout directors for 14 or more years.

Mrs. Frederick Edey, of New York, was re-elected president, while Mrs. Arthur Osgood Choate, of New York, and Mrs. Vance C. McCormick, of Harrisburg, Pa., were re-elected first and second vice presidents, respectively.

Other vice presidents elected included Mrs. Stuart McGuire, of Richmond, Va.

Miss Josephine Schian, national director of the council, reported an enrollment for 1934 in the United States of 356,693 against 311,760 in 1933.

Libby Holman Reynolds To Return to Broadway

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 26.—(AP) Libby Holman Reynolds, once the "moanin' low" girl of Broadway fame, plans to return to the musical stage on November 6 as costar in "Revenge With Music," described as a play based on the story "The Three-Cornered Hat."

The premiere will take place at Philadelphia's Forest theater.

Libby emerged from retirement last spring for the first time since the death of her wealthy husband, Smith Reynolds. She appeared a number of times with the Hedgerow Players at Moylan-Rose Valley, near here.

The male lead in "Revenge With Music" will be played by Charles Winninger, the Captain Andy of "Show Boat." The theater management said the cast is in rehearsal in New York.

Textile Policy Change Denied by Williams

NEW YORK, Oct. 26.—(AP)—George A. Sloan, chairman of the cotton textile code authority, made public tonight a telegram from S. Clay Williams, chairman of the national industrial recovery board, denying there had been any change in NRA policy on the machine hours limitation provision of the cotton textile code.

"The cotton textile code of fair competition and all its provisions are in full force and effect," the telegram said. "If at any time it should develop that changes should be considered, none will be made by the national recovery administration until the industry has been consulted and has been given opportunity to be heard.

"Statements in the press that the board has considered or made any changes are unfounded."

Gandhi Attends Meet Of Indian Congress

BOMBAY, India, Oct. 26.—(AP)—The Mahatma Gandhi returned to the Indian National Congress assembly today, forced out of retirement by the weapon he himself invented—passive resistance.

Cheers greeted the leader as he arrived for the initial gathering of the party pledged to independence to India.

Gandhi's determination to withdraw from party activity was broken down by seven congress delegates, including two women, who lay stretched at full length on the ground near Gandhi's quarters for 30 hours, despite night chill and midday heat.

Thirty thousand visitors watched the opening proceedings of the congress. An attempt by communists to invade the congress was repulsed by police, who were forced to use their lathis (sticks). Ten were injured in the course of another communist demonstration near the camp.

DINNER GIVEN ALDRICH BY POSTAL INSPECTORS

K. P. Aldrich, chief postoffice inspector of Washington, D. C., was the guest of honor at a dinner given Friday night at the Piedmont hotel by 25 postoffice inspectors of the Atlanta division, in charge of Inspector J. W. Cole.

An address was made by Congressman Emmet Owen.

Gugin in his last term as active coach.

Stanford, hailed as the strongest team on the west coast, figures to outclass Southern California, experiencing the most disastrous season in years. Undefeated Washington has an edge over California, already trimmed by St. Mary's. Oregon State and Washington State meet in another conference clash.

The Southwestern natural is the meeting between Rice and Texas, which contributed to the early season surprises by trimming Purdue and Notre Dame.

Two important intersectional bouts are scheduled. Southern Methodist brings its wild west show from Texas to play Fordham and Pop Warner's Temple machine journeys into the midwest to meet Marquette.

STUDENT BACKING.

IOWA CITY—Despite last week's trouncing by Iowa State, the Iowa team has plenty of backing from the student body. More than 3,500 students, headed by a 50-piece band, stormed the gates at practice yesterday and presented a victory petition with 2,000 signatures, affirming confidence in the team.

MRS. WHITNEY HIT BY LADY FURNESS FOR ADOPTION PLEA

NEW YORK, Oct. 26.—(AP)—A bitter verbal attack on Mrs. Harry Payne Whitney was made today outside the door of the courtroom where she and Mrs. Gloria Morgan Vanderbilt are contending for the custody of the latter's 10-year-old daughter, Gloria.

The former Lady Furness, twin sister of Mrs. Vanderbilt, asked:

"Why should people in glass houses sling mud? That woman has always had all she wanted.

"Why should she want to adopt this child when the asylums are full of lovely children who would appreciate being adopted? Why should she want to adopt my sister's only child?

"If Mrs. Vanderbilt had four or five children, I could understand her trying to do this, because she was fascinated by the child. But why is she trying to do this when my sister has only one child?"

A striking figure in black and turquoise blue, Lady Furness swept on out of the building.

Lady Furness, who crossed the Atlantic to testify in Mrs. Vanderbilt's defense, said she had not seen her mother, Mrs. Laura Kilpatrick Morgan, since her arrival. Mrs. Morgan has aligned herself with Mrs. Whitney, testifying that Gloria, heiress to $4,000,000, was treated by her mother like a "poor orphan."

All day yesterday and most of this morning, Lady Furness was on the witness stand. She was succeeded by Mrs. Olga Wright, the wife of the former Vanderbilt butler and Mrs. Vanderbilt's personal maid before the employment of Marie Caillot.

She is understood to have replied to the testimony of Mlle. Caillot, whose statements linking Mrs. Vanderbilt and the Marchioness of Milford Haven made Supreme Court Justice John F. Carew close the court to press and public on the third day of the trial.

Again accompanied by a trained nurse, Mrs. Vanderbilt came to court late this afternoon and remained only a short time.

Harry Hays Morgan, brother of Mrs. Vanderbilt and Lady Furness, who also came from Paris to testify for his sister, was on the witness stand when the case was adjourned until Monday.

Kin Flee in Terror As 'Dead' Man Appears

NASSAU, N. P. Bahamas, Oct. 26.—(AP)—The relatives of Felix Bode, for whom the last rites of the church were said ten years ago, today were confronted by the "dead" man and fled in terror.

Bode disappeared into heavy woods of Exhuma island, about 100 miles from here, ten years ago and bones later found in the forest were buried as those of the missing man after church services.

Today, the relatives of Bode were motoring through a remote section of the island. They were hailed by a man who asked for a ride, but when he walked toward the side of the car he was recognized as Bode.

The relatives, momentarily frightened, sped away. Later investigation revealed Bode had voluntarily exiled himself through the years in the remote country.

L. Hope school. The workers will start canvassing every home from Peachtree creek to the county line, beginning November 5, it was announced.

EX-ATLANTA MINISTER THREATENED AT TAMPA

Rev. Homer Thompson Gets Letter From 'Gang' for Stand Against Gambling.

TAMPA, Fla., Oct. 26.—(AP)—The Rev. Homer Thompson, formerly of Atlanta, pastor of the Hyde Park Methodist church here, turned over to postal authorities today a letter threatening "tar and feathers" for his stand on gambling.

The pastor complained to Sheriff W. C. Spencer this week that a gambling club was being operated outside the city where high school pupils were permitted to play. The place later was closed.

The letter to him, written in pencil on a telegram blank, said:

"See you can not mind your own business but have to stick your nose where it does not belong. You better take care of church and let other things alone. Next time you meddle in gambling things and if we hear that you say anything more in paper it will be just too bad for you as you would look fine in tar and feathers."

The letter was signed, "The Gang."

"If the underworld intends this as a challenge, I accept," the pastor said in a statement tonight. "I may go down, but never back. I am not inviting gun play, but when the underworld is ready, let it blaze away."

The Rev. Homer Thompson is widely known in Atlanta and Georgia Methodist circles. Until two years ago, when he was transferred to the Florida conference, he was pastor of the Trinity Methodist church here.
